AIR INTELLIGENCE INFORMATION REPORT

FROM (Agency)	REPORT NO.
Director of Intelligence Hq, 27th Air Division (Def)	2-52	PAGE 2 OF 4 PAGES

1. Interviewed the following personnel of the San Diego Naval Air Station:

a. Lt. G. L. Kearsey, to determine what Navy channels his report had gone into, and what investigation had been made. Lt. Kearsey reported only to the 27th Air Division (Def) ADOC. No investigation was made by the Navy.

EVALUATION OF ABOVE F-2.

b. Interviewed the Meteorologist on duty, who examined records of weather and winds at the time of report. Weather was as follows: 4/10ths scattered strato-cumulus at 2400 feet, visibility 10 miles, winds Northwest 5 knots, temperature 62° F., humidity 827, pressure 968, freezing level 16,000 feet, winds aloft North-easterly increasing to 45 knots at 25,000 feet. At 2012, a sounding balloon, released at the Naval Air Station, Coronado, California, was four (4) to five (5) miles Northeast of the Station at 19,000 feet on a Northeast heading.

EVALUATION OF ABOVE F-2.

2. Interviewed Mr. Ryan, Managing Editor, San Diego Tribune. Inquired if newspaper could provide any information as to the report of unusual sightings reported in their edition of 14 June 1952. Mr. Ryan talked to the City Editor, who stated that they had no record; that calls reporting the sightings and enquiries about them were by phone and were accepted at the switchboard and not put through to the city desk - no follow up had been made

3. Interviewed Mr. Donald E. Davis. See page 3.

4. Mr. Mason, mentioned in Mr. Davis's statement, could not be reached for a statement.

5. Lt. Comdr. R. H. Tuft was on leave and not available for statement, which is given second hand by Lt. Kearsey, as follows: Commander Tuft told Lt. Kearsey about having seen vapor trails made by a B-36 on a southerly heading over the Naval Air Station at approximately 2000 hours. The trails were in the sun, which was below the horizon, giving them luminous appearance. No apparent connection.

EVALUATION OF ABOVE F-2.

6. Photos were taken by the company of Mr. Davis and were annotated from sketches made on the scene. See Page 3.
