hey I'm NASA Kennedy's sky replenishment taking you inside KSC the sharp minds behind Kennedy's transition and numerous technological advancements held center stage recently during the center's annual innovation expo Kennedy's workforce and the general public were treated to details about the inner workings of KSC and plants are bringing in new businesses Bob Behnken and Sonny Williams two of the four astronauts selecting to work closely with Commercial Crew program providers Boeing and SpaceX off the number of details about the program during a live nessa vent my elevator pitch for NASA and the Commercial Crew program is that we're really trying to develop new vehicles to give us an alternative to the Soyuz for transportation to the space station really important to have that capability out of the United States and looking forward to the days when that happens and remember spaceport magazine digs deep inside KSC