just a few seconds away from the expected spacecraft SEP we're looking at the video spacecraft separation and firmed on video unfortunately our telemetry data is a bit too noisy to discern but that we can confirm and we can see the spacecraft gently drifting away looks like the roll rates were right on the money and I don't see any tip-off at all