discovery you are go for the deorbit burn you said please God if every copies go for the deal arrived with that eric boe radioing up to pilot Kevin Ford that the crew is go for the deorbit burn were still discussing runway selection options based on the direction of the winds at edwards air force base but everything is in good shape to accept a discoveries crew with touchdown schedule one hour 42 minutes from now discovery good config in a bang I think you think it could take it apart the propulsion officer reports that the deorbit burn is underway to good engines good control of the orbiter discovery beginning the trip home to edwards air force base california this braking maneuver will last two minutes 35 seconds slowing discovery down by 267 feet per second enabling it to enter the Earth's atmosphere knows first all of the systems in excellent shape to support the next hour long descent back to the landing site at Edwards Air Force Base discovery a good day and nationwide copy visit good burn