and the bird's-eye view from the external tank camera of external tank separation Atlantis now in its preliminary orbit commander Charlie hobaugh will now maneuver Atlantis so that cameras embedded in the shuttles umbilical well can perform photography of the discarded external fuel tank and Mike Foreman and Leland Melvin are about to use digital still in video cameras to capture handheld imagery of the tank for downlink a few hours from now a flawless climb to orbit for the shuttle Atlantis and its six crew members on route now to the International Space Station