they performed they set goals as you will see and they went after those goals without paying any attention to people who said it could not be done and I think they provide a model a role model or role models for all of us I had joined Julianne saying we all stand on their shoulders we're just trying to do what we saw them do and you know when you when you look at Catherine's story as an example Catherine I doubt if she ever dreamed that she was gonna do anything that she did and it was while catherine was going to school with her brother her older brother she had an opportunity to do some things in the classroom when the teacher said wow you know you need to be here she was 14 years old and and the teacher talked to her father and convinced them to put her in college she graduated at the age of 18 and and then came to Langley looking for a job you know like Bill says there was there was no shortage for NACA and NASA to pick from because there were women of color who wanted to work I think the three of them and in all the women you'll see in the movie they just provide incredible role models for us in the way that they just wore through all of the resistance and all the bias and the discrimination and I will echo what what Catherine said when you're doing your work and you're having fun there's a lot of stuff going on around you you don't notice people ask you about any ago I didn't notice that and I really didn't because I was just doing what I love doing it and I was having fun
