greetings from the International Space

Station and the crew of ISS expedition currently we're orbiting the Earth at 17,500 miles an hour over 200 miles above our beautiful planet that we should all be thankful to have as our home I'd like to wish everyone on the planet Earth a happy holidays and a very Merry Christmas the holidays are a time that we treasure being with our family and our friends and we think about what we have and how much more we have then than others do times are hard all over the world but this is a time when we can all think about being together and treasuring our planet and we have a pretty nice view of it up here from up here we see one world one earth and all together we should celebrate this holiday Merry Christmas and Happy New Year
