My name is Maria Caballero and I'm a NASA engineer. The best advice that I got in pursuing my STEM career was to basically not give up, don't let anybody put you down, even if it's something that you don't normally see women in it doesn't mean that you can't do it. So, with my mom's help and inspiration from women like Catherine, I was able to pursue my engineering degree.