Hello.

It's that time of the year again when federal employees have the chance to make a real impact in their communities through the Combined Federal Campaign or CFC.

The CFC supports the vast network of deserving nonprofit organizations around the country that urgently need our help.

From cancer research, to protecting the environment and ensuring access to affordable education, to youth baseball, helping our wounded warriors, and fighting hunger abroad, the opportunities to support a cause that matters to you are virtually limitless.

The CFC is the world's largest workplace giving campaign, and just last year, federal employees contributed more than $193 million to charitable organizations across the country and overseas.

We can all be very proud of that generosity.
I am confident that everyone in the NASA Family has a shared commitment to public service that extends beyond the workplace, so please take the time to meet with the CFC keyworker in your office, take a look at the giving catalog, and select some worthy organizations that are meaningful to you.

It doesn't take much time, and the impact of your gifts is enormous. The keyworkers in your office can give you all the information you need, and once you send in your pledge, they do the rest. It's a flexible way to donate, and every single gift counts no matter the size.

In these times where so many things can seem uncertain, it's a testament to the NASA Family's character and team spirit that you have always been strong supporters of this annual event where federal workers give back to the people and causes that are most important to them.

I am so proud of all of you who joined me in supporting the CFC last year, and I send my deepest thanks to last year’s keyworkers, who helped us achieve a very high level of giving.

Please join me in taking part in the CFC again this year and help us all show how much NASA makes a difference not only in space, but right here on Earth.

Thank you.
