to mission specialists of the STS 129 mission showed highlights of their November flight to the International Space Station to middle school students at Howard University Leland Melvin a former pro football player now considered a world expert on fiber optics was joined on Howard's campus in Washington by Bobby Sanchar a PhD and medical doctor the pair discussed their roles on the recent 11-day mission to the orbiting complex via space shuttle Atlantis degree in chemistry from the University of