The aliens are coming. That's the conclusion of experts who have closely studied an amazing series of dazzling UFO appearances in the skies over a remote farm in Wyoming.

"I believe the craft appearing over Pat McGuire's farm could be the goodwill ambassadors of an alien civilization," said Dr. Leo Sprinkle, a UFO expert and parapsychologist with the University of Wyoming.

"The area around the farm may become the showcase of an overall 'get acquainted' program which will lead to full-scale landings over the next 10 years or so."

Farmer Pat McGuire says his spread has been visited by humanoids in their multi-colored spacecraft every night for the past seven years.

His sightings are confirmed by his wife and eight children, as well as a couple who also live on the farm.

Many other people, including reporters, have seen strange, dancing lights in the sky they can't explain.

"The UFOs are about 300 feet wide and about 60 feet high," McGuire said. "There seems to be no limit to how fast they can go."

The farmer said his family were frightened by the UFOs at first, especially when they discovered mutilated cattle scattered over his 5,100 acres.

"I got frightened one time when my brother-in-law and I saw a craft hovering over a young calf one evening in 1976," McGuire said.

"We heard that calf bawling for quite a while, then when the UFO flew away it took the calf with it. We never did find out where they took it."

There have been no mutilations since that incident, and the McGuire family now feels safe again.

"I believe people like Pat McGuire are being chosen by the aliens to spread the word that they're among us," Dr. Sprinkle said.

"I believe we will see full-scale contact between us and them over the next decade or so. When that happens, we could be the race in the spaceships in future generations."

McGuire said the aliens told him to dig a well in the high plains country near his former home in Laramie.

The land is more than 7,000 feet above sea level, and he was told by geologists and drilling companies that he could sink a well forever and never find water.

But something drove him on. He bought the land and jury-rigged a well.

His neighbors too thought McGuire was crazy. They were stunned when he struck a massive underground river at 350 feet.

The well was a gusher, pumping 8,000 gallons of pure, soft water a minute. McGuire has now turned his dry patch of sagebrush desert into a 5,100-acre oasis of fertile grassland.

Under hypnosis, McGuire revealed information about the aliens to Dr. Sprinkle that had been lost in his subconscious.

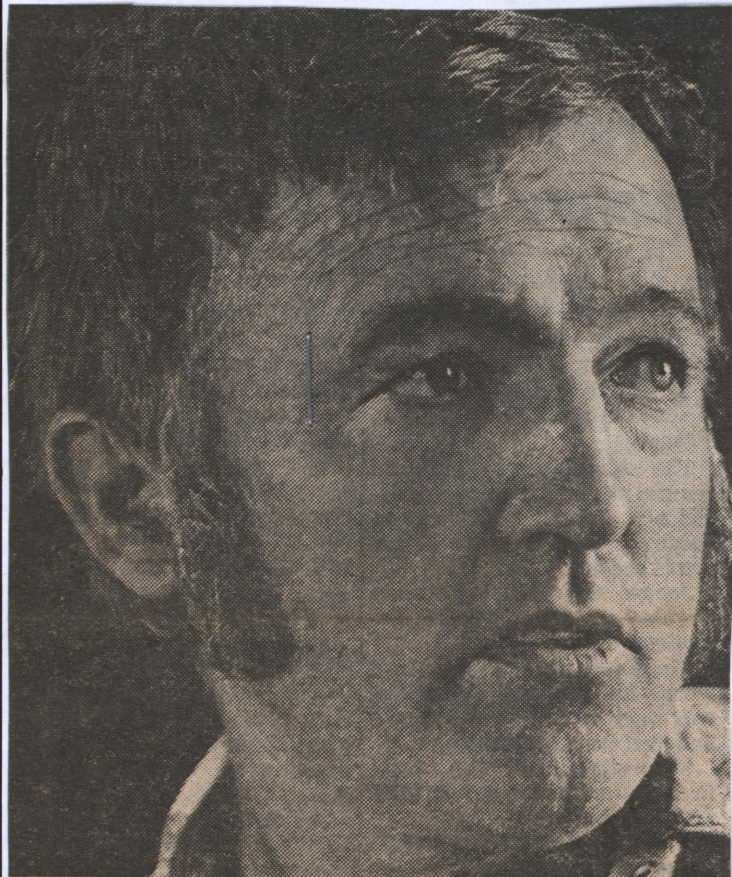

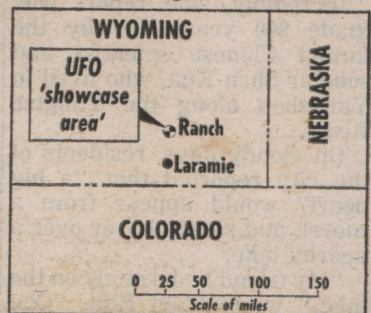

According to a psychiatrist who had worked with the UFO expert, McGuire told Sprinkle he had been taken on board an alien spacecraft, and that the aliens had told him to drill his well.

The farmer said the aliens were about 6 feet tall, around 200 pounds with large eyes, thin lips and bald heads.

UFO expert Jim Lorenzen of the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization said:

"Dr. Sprinkle is very close to the investigations there, and his opinion that the place is an alien showcase could well be valid."
