Alaska UFOs report studied by Americans

Unidentified flying objects over Alaska are being investigated by the Federal Aviation Administration in Washington.

The crew of a Japanese Air Lines Boeing 747 cargo plane reported seeing mysterious lights after an unexplained blip appeared on radar screens

Initially the incident, on Nov. 17, was dismissed by Air Force officials who picked up the blip at Elmendorf, Alaska, as "random clutter" on the computer. But FAA investigators have now interviewed the pilot, Capt. Kenju Terauchi, and are investigating a "violation of airspace."
