CRAVEN HERALD AND PIONEER
FRIDAY MAY 22 1966

ON A CLEAR MORNING in March, a long, shining object with three intense white lights spaced along its side, hovered in front of Cracoe Fell. It was spotted by the wife of the local police officer as she went about her business in her kitchen.

The object remained suspended before the rock face for an hour. It disappeared as quickly as it came.

In the meantime, her husband, PC Derek Ingram, contacted his colleague, PC Steve Guest, who is stationed at nearby Grassington. He arrived complete with his camera and telephoto lens, and managed to get shots of what they concluded was a UFO.

The police officers have allowed us to reproduce one of these photographs so that our readers can make up their own minds as to what was seen. When the sighting was made, the Craven Herald asked the RAF if a target, or homing device had been placed on the fell for their trainer aircraft, in a bid to come up with a feasible explanation. But we were told it was unlikely.

What do you think ?
