man probed

POLICE admitted yesterday they had investigated the possibility that a man was frightened to death by visitors from outer space.

The day that miner Mr Zygmunt Adamski, 57, disappeared from his home in Tingley, Leeds, there were a number of reported UFO sightings in the area.

The body of ex-Polish soldier Mr Adamski was found five days later on wast land at Todmorden, Yorks.

There were mysterious burn marks on his face and neck. Now police who have never closed their file on Mr Adamski's death admit they launched a serious investigation into the UFO but could find no link between them and his death a year ago. An inquest said he died from natural causes.
