Motorists pointing at object over M6 last night

FOR four hours last night, traffic was at a standstill on both carriageways of the M6 near Birmingham.

People left their cars and pointed into the evening sky at a white sphere which seemed to hover over the road sixty feet in the air.

First on the scene was Mr. Nicholas Reeve from Birmingham. "I was driving along when I saw this enormous white sphere up in the sky. At first I thought it was the moon, then it moved."

As traffic began to build up on the motorway, people got out of their cars to watch the object in the sky.

"Suddenly it seemed to swoop down, then zoomed off towards the East," Mr. Reeve added.

Air traffic controllers report nothing appearing on their radar screens.

A spokesman said the ministry concerned was looking into the matter.

ITV stated late last night that they would be interviewing people who had actually witnessed the sphere.
