UFO

This picture, reputed to be a flying saucer, was taken as it hovered for 15 minutes over the Holloman Air Development Centre in the United States. It was snapped by a government employee.

EARL'S PROBE ON SPACEMEN

Beings from other worlds are about to drop in on earth after a series of sightings of unidentified flying objects and weird lights in the sky, according to a British peer.

The most vivid of recent sightings in Britain this year were in Warwickshire, where a retired naval commander reported seeing a "pulsating orange light," and in the residential area of Milton Keynes, in Buckinghamshire.

In the latter case, two policemen gave a full description of an "lozenge-shaped object" which emitted red and white lights and made a humming noise.

A Defence Ministry spokesman said the objects were probably aircraft but both the naval officer and the two cops disagreed.

All three were sure they had had a close encounter with unidentified flying objects, or flying saucers.

Reports of UFO sightings have come in from places all over Europe as well.

Galaxies

This spate of UFO activity has stirred the doyen of the flying saucer world, the Earl of Clancarty, into action.

The earl, who first appeared on earth in 1911, is instigating a House of Lords debate on flying saucers next week.

In all seriousness, he said: "I think we are on the verge of an official landing on earth from extraterrestrial beings from the galaxies.

"Reports are coming in from all over the world — from Australia to Siberia. It seems to be developing into a climax."

The earl is chairman of the House of Lords UFO study group and there are a few peers who have cast doubts on his sanity.

The guardians of Whitehall's innermost secrets are implacably opposed to most of his theories but his persistent inquiries, always written on official House of Lords notepaper are difficult to ignore. The answers he gets are written in ministry platitudes.

Earl Clancarty is "damned sure" there is a big cover-up going on in the Defence Ministry over UFO investigations and he is trying to winkle classified information out of the secret files.

The men from the ministry insist the world is being visited by nothing more sinister than twinkling meteorites, weather balloons and bolts of lightning.

"Rubbish," said the dignified peer, who under his name of William Francis Brierly le Poer Trench has written a series of best-selling books on the phenomenon of flying saucers.

Next week he is prodding a government minister with a question on how many files of the thousands of sightings of UFOs have been stamped top secret in the interest of national security.

Then Lord Clancarty intends to usher in a full House of Lords debate on the subject after getting the defence ministers to expand on an earlier admission that they had reports of 2250 sightings of UFOs over Britain between 1978 and 1981.

As a founder-member of the worldwide network of flying saucer investigators called International Contact, and former editor of the Flying Saucer Review, Lord Clancarty uses his elegant London home, in one of the capital's most salubrious areas, Belgravia, as his command post in the battle to get the official admissions he seeks.

"I know they dismiss me as a crackpot," he admits happily. "But I am not at all dotty.

"Obviously quite a number of sightings can be explained as balloons, aircraft and tricks of the light. But we are still left with a large number that cannot be explained away."

UFO enthusiasts were as delighted as other groups when the Freedom of Information Act was passed in America because they were soon allowed to read about 900 documents on flying saucers from the Washington files.

But they feel many others are still tightly bottled up. For example Lord Clancarty revealed matter-of-factly, that he is convinced that President Eisenhower had a meeting with being from outer space in 1953.

"The beings landed at Edwards Air Force Base in California and had talks with President Eisenhower, who was accompanied by aides, including an American Air Force pilot who flew the latest and fastest planes in existence at that time.

"The pilot, a friend of mine, has since told me that the being brought five types of flying saucers with them and gave President Eisenhower a display of their flying skills and their supernatural abilities to become invisible and reappear at will.

"But that meeting convinced the president that it would be premature to expose the existence of these extraterrestrial beings, fearing an outburst of panic.

"It was agreed then that the beings from outer space would make their presence known slowly over a period of years.

"Well, I think that time is now very close," said the earl.

Speculation

Famous scientist Sir Fred Hoyle, the former Astronomer Royal whose theories on the universe are regularly well in advance of those accepted later by general scientific opinion, goes along with the Clancarty UFO theories to some extent.

In a forward to one of the earl's books he writes about space travel and the difficulties of crossing unimaginable distances at speed: "My speculation is that an interchange of messages is going on on a vast scale all the time and that we are as unaware of it as a pygmy in the African forest is unaware of the radio messages that flash at the speed of light around the world.

"My guess is that there are a million or more subscribers to the galactic directory. Our problem is to get our name on the directory."
