PINK TRIANGLE IN THE MORNING SKY

I WONDER if readers saw anything unusual in the early morning of Tuesday, January 3?

At 5.33 am I saw an object which at first I thought was a shooting star (meteorite) going east.

It suddenly stopped and shot off in another direction.

Fast

For about 45 seconds it was shooting off in different directions at tremendous speed — as fast as that of a meteorite.

The object itself was triangular and dull pinkish-red.

I could not judge the height.

It was a clear morning with not a cloud in the sky.
