Pregnant wife discovers:

MY HUSBAND IS A SPACE ALIEN

After being married only five months, a Gatlinburg, TN, woman has fled from the mountaintop mobile home she shared with her husband, claiming he is a UFO alien.

"I can't believe something like this has happened to me," declares Joanna Feins, 28, who is now three months pregnant.

"I'm terrified to think of what I might give birth to.

"I only knew George for three months before we married," she adds. "At first, I thought he was just the greatest. Now I'm frightened half to death."

Attack

Joanna claims she first suspected something was different about her husband, George, when she brought him a golden retriever puppy for his birthday.

"The puppy, named Goldie, wouldn't stay in the same room with George. From the second he set eyes on my husband he began barking, snarling, and even tried to bite George's hand when he tried to pet it."

Joanna kept Goldie tied outside, thinking the puppy just needed to get used to its new surroundings.

"But the dog continued to attack George every time he got near it," she recalls. "Around other people he was just fine."

That was only the beginning of a series of strange occurrences that forced Joanna to finally believe there was something very different about her new husband.

"George was building bookcases one Saturday morning," she says. "I saw him cut his finger with the handsaw. I was shocked at what I saw.

"He was bleeding," the woman claims. "But it was not like any human blood I had ever seen.

"But I convinced myself my eyes were playing tricks on me, that it was just a reflection of the sun through our green curtains."

It wasn't long before Joanna witnessed even stranger happenings that couldn't be so easily explained away.

Peculiar

One night while George was asleep, he began speaking in another language.

"It was a language I have never heard before. He tossed and turned fitfully, mumbling in such a strange way that it scared me. Finally, I woke him up. That's when I really suspected something was peculiar about George."

Joanna claims that when her husband opened his eyes, they were orange, with a thin black line down the middle.

"He had eyes like a wildcat," she says, still trembling at the thought. "He ran into the bathroom and came back out a couple of minutes later. By then, his eyes looked normal again."

When she told George what she had seen, he laughed it off as a nightmare she was having. But Joanna was not so sure.

"I started to think about how strange everything about George seemed," Joanna says. "When we first met, I thought it was kind of cute how he didn't know how to drive an automobile, or use the stove, or even how to do laundry. Now I was beginning to be scared."

Joanna also considered that George never mentioned his family, friends, or even where he had lived before.

"He said he didn't like to talk about his past," she adds. "He kept saying he just cared about the future."

Then Joanna learned she was pregnant.

"I was even beginning to wonder what I might be giving birth to. It got so I couldn't think of anything else, so I decided to follow George on one of his excursions," she says.

Terrified

"He would walk into town every night," Joanna relates. "He said taking a long walk was good for his health. One night, I slipped out after him and followed."

What Joanna saw that night terrified her so much, she never returned home.

"I saw George meet three other men," she claims.

"I knew something was up immediately, because he wasn't walking into town at all. He headed into the deepest part of the woods," she says.

"The three men greeted George with some strange salute," she adds.

Shining

Joanna says the men all joined hands and held their arms toward the sky.

"When they did this, a yellowish glow began shining all around them. Then they began speaking in the same language I had heard George using in his sleep."

Joanna's fright turned to bone-chilling terror as the yellow light surrounding the men became brighter.

"They began to change right before my eyes," she says, shaking uncontrollably. "Underneath their skin, I could see their alien bodies. It was terrifying. They were lizards."

Joanna says she screamed, and the men turned towards her.

Screaming

"I ran back to our trailer, got into the car and drove off. And I never went back," she declares.

Since then, she hasn't heard from George, but he has left their mobile home.

"I sent my brother and his friends back to get my things," she explains. "But George was nowhere around."

Joanna still wakes up in the middle of the night, screaming, thinking of what she might give birth to. Her child is due to be born in October.
