ALIENS explore space for different reasons, says the man who runs a UFO-hotline in Los Angeles.

Some extraterrestrial visitors to Earth appear in their flying saucers in the name of science, some visit us in the name of love.

Semjase from the Planet Pleides came to warn a farmer that the fate of Earth is bleak. The blonde, female Pleidian told Billy Meir that Earth's clock is ticking down and soon this planet will be history.

Earthlings can hear such reports of contact with the drivers of UFOs when they call the UFO Contact Hotline, run by Paul Shepherd and Rusty Weaver, son of the actor Dennis.

The Pleidians for example, "are concerned about us as younger brothers," said Shepherd.

But the ETs who kidnapped a factory worker in Mirassol, Brazil, and forced him to have sex with an ET woman had less brotherly intentions. They were looking for a hybrid link between humans and the four-foot-high, big-eared, pug-nosed alien species the worker said made him make love to one of their females.
