

Experts tackle visits from above

FLYING saucers come under analysis at a public meeting to be held in Bristol next Friday.

Arranged by the Bristol branch of the Aetherius Society, the meeting is entitled "UFO's — The Facts" and will be held at 300 Gloucester Road, Horfield, at 8pm.

Organiser Dr Edward Prempeh said: "People from other planets are coming to visit earth in flying saucers."

Sighting

He claimed a survey in Bristol had shown that 10 per cent of the population had seen them and he felt interest would be strong enough to fill the hall to capacity at the meeting.

The most recent "major sighting" in Alaska last November will be examined.

The society claims to have answers to many of the questions posed about unidentified flying objects and Dr Prempeh, of Lodge Causeway, Fishponds, said he believed visitors from space came with the intention of bringing world peace.
