

Gunpowder Whitley Strieber
UFOrnia 27 MAY
1977

ON reading the account of Whitley Strieber's book about his abduction (Society Tomorrow, May 20), I was prompted to make a plea on behalf of any "visitors" who might be out there.

Nearly all writing about UFOs and extra-terrestrial beings assumes they will be hostile. Sci-fi and comics prepare us to resist their advances. I am more inclined to believe such beings would be more intelligent than we are and would greatly benefit this planet by saving us from our own destruction.

Perhaps they might consider putting up a few candidates in the forthcoming election. They could be sure of my vote.

I HAVE every sympathy with Mr Strieber. I, too, have been canvassed by the SDP.
