Pitched battle in 1944 left 17 creatures & 150 soldiers dead

Russia won a Siberian

TOP SECRET SHOCKER

shootout with UFO!

By DEREK CLONTZ

The Soviet military killed 17 space aliens and seized their starship in a super-secret battle during the closing stages of World War 2, a top scientist has charged.

Dr. Anatoli Tolkunov, a Soviet writer who recently defected to the West, blew the lid off the alleged encounter on a radio news show in southern France.

Citing portions of a top secret KGB file smuggled from behind the Iron Curtain, he said the Soviets actually jeopardized their war effort to confront and annihilate the aliens on a snowy battlefield in Siberia.

"That is the clear implication of intelligence reports contained in the file," said Dr. Tolkunov, who is now living in West Germany.

"Surely there are more questions raised than we have answers for. But the basic information is there for anyone to see. There was a violent encounter in Siberia."

According to the KGB documents, a crack Russian battle group consisting of two infantry battalions and a tank regiment were pulled out of line during the drive to Berlin and rushed to Siberia, Dr. Tolkunov said. Once there, on direct orders from Joseph Stalin, the group: ● Evacuated and sealed off a one-square-mile area. Later, they "liquidated the evacuees."

● Engaged the enemy and claimed victory after a bloody two-day battle. Afterward, 17 "dwarfs" and 150 Soviets were buried in a mass grave on the battlefield.

● Dismantled a "round airplane" and delivered it to KGB headquarters in Moscow. "Even more telling," said Dr. Tolkunov, "the battle group completed its mission and was never heard from again."

"The conclusion is inescapable: The Soviet military had a close and bloody encounter with space aliens in the spring of 1944.

"Russia has had the spaceship and assorted technical equipment and weapons found on the battlefield for more than 40 years."

Dr. Tolkunov and leading European newspapers independently appealed to the Soviets for more information about the alleged encounter.

Soviet spokesmen denied any knowledge of the documents and battle and responded with a simple, "No comment."

Secret Service goofs in bomb search snafu

Newspaperman Bruce Honomichl left his car parked on the street and returned to find it had been broken into and torn apart — not by thieves, but the U.S. Secret Service.

The government snoops, thinking there was a bomb in the car, had pried open Honomichl's glove compartment, smashed the lock on his trunk and left his headlights on, killing his battery.

Agents had been checking the route to be followed by Vice President George Bush's motorcade through Tulsa, Okla., when a bomb-sniffing dog indicated there were explosives in Honomichl's car.

The Feds searched the car for half an hour, roughing it up in the process, but found no bomb.

The Secret Service said the dog may have been thrown off by Honomichl's supply of safety flares, which contain some of the same elements as dynamite. The agency said it would pay for the damage.

This hotel's a real drag

A sex-swap boss, who shocked his employees by announcing that he had become a woman, has voiced another stunner — he's about to open a super swank, 5-star hotel for transvestites!

Stephanie Anne Lloyd — who was known as Keith Hull in his more masculine days — said his hotel in Manchester, England, will cater exclusively to men who simply adore dressing up as women.

The $140-a-night room tab also covers dinner, drinks and a closet full of frilly women's clothes for them to wear.

Bus driver nightmare

A bus driver was forced to pick up and discharge passengers along her route by an armed thug who robbed and raped her every time the bus was empty!

During her late-night, two-hour ordeal of terror, the Philadelphia driver was robbed and assaulted three times before the brutal gunman finally tired of his ghastly game and fled on foot.

Sicko stunts

Thousands of spectators gather on the streets of Bombay day after day to watch Indian snake-swallowers perform some of the world's most disgusting stunts.

And their favorite stomach-turner is one in which the swallower shoves an 18-inch serpent up his nose — so far that its head can be seen through the man's open mouth.
