

10 NOV 1988

UFO fears grounded

PENSIONER Francis Taylor's close encounter with a strange force was a natural wonder of THIS world, official sources said this week.

And he was not alone in witnessing an all-embracing bright pink glow and a golden object shooting across the sky in the early hours of the morning.

Hundreds of people saw the same natural phenomenon when two meteorites crashed into the North Sea when the earth passed through the debris trail of Halley's Comet.

The spectacular fall-out from the sky happened at 3.40am on Thursday, October 27, and RAF bases on the Essex coast were jammed with calls.

After reading about Mr Taylor's experience in last week's Review others in Welwyn Hatfield reported seeing the same image.

Mr Taylor, 83, of Hillside Way, Welwyn, described a pink light that just got bigger and bigger until it was everywhere.

"It could have been a satellite but I have to say I believe it was visitors from another planet," he said.

But Ron West, of the Essex and East Anglia UFO Research Society revealed the illuminating vision was caused by the overlapping of two constellations.

"The Orion constellation is coming

By
Michael Sullivan

to an end and the Taurus constellation is just starting. Every year at this time meteorites fall to earth and it was the overlapping of the constellations which made it special this time."

The phenomenon didn't fool Michael

UAF in pink glow mystery

WIGNER Francis Taylor was still reading this week's Review when he wrote that he had seen a glowing object in the sky on October 27, 1988. He said he had seen a bright pink light which then became a golden object which shot across the sky in the early hours of the morning.

"I thought there was going to be an explosion. I had never seen anything like it in my life. I got out of bed and went to the window and there was a golden object hovering in the sky. It was very high up and light blue in colour. It was behind the clouds and seemed to speed up and then it shot towards the horizon and disappeared. I was very shocked and I have never seen anything like it before."

Francis Taylor has written to the Editor of the Review asking for more information about the object. He said he had seen it in the early hours of the morning and that it was very bright and glowing. He said he had seen it in the sky and that it was very bright and glowing. He said he had seen it in the sky and that it was very bright and glowing.

Flashback to last week's story.

France, of Pippens, WGC, either. "I do feel fortunate to have seen this magnificent object for it was so much brighter than normal for these things and is possibly a once in a lifetime sighting." But Bill Lawrence, of Poynders Meadow, Codicote, is still sceptical. He didn't witness the latest incident but claims to have seen irregular objects in the sky before.