

'Space visitors sighted'

by Oleg Dzyuba

CREATURES from outer space disturbed the rural calm of a central Russian district earlier this month, if a number of sightings are to be believed.

According to local newspapers, children outside the village of Konantsevo in the Vologda region watched as a luminous dot on the horizon approached them on June 6, appearing as a shining sphere as it got closer.

The mysterious object is then said to have landed in a meadow and rolled to the nearby river, as the children watched only half a kilometre away.

They claim that the sphere split and "something resembling a headless person" in dark garb emerged.

The craft is then said to have melted into thin air, as the creature proceeded towards the village, before itself disappearing.

The children insisted that three more craft — two of them

'manned' — later touched down on the same meadow, only to disappear in the same way as the first.

Days later, a "fiery ball" was sighted over Vologda, hovering over the city for 17 minutes before disappearing into the sky without attempting to land, while another UFO was spotted over the city the following day.

Weeks earlier a huge mysterious object was sighted hovering noiselessly only 300m over the city of Cherepovetsk, leaving a "large radiant trail".
