Believe coyotes killed, mutilated top dairy cow

Coyotes apparently killed a prize milk cow from the Doug Grimsled herd near Mt. Sterling last week.

According to Grimsled, 'the heifer was okay the night before at milking time but when he went into the field the next morning to call the herd he found the cow dead with three teats missing and a hole near a front leg.

He was suspicious at first because of a cattle mutilation report near Eastman last week. However, when Grimsled notified his veterinarian, the vet said it looked like coyotes had killed the animal.
