

Giants from outer space take robot for walkies in a Russian park

by DAVID LAWSON

THE aliens have landed. A leading Russian scientist says there is no doubt that they stepped out of their spaceship and went for a walk in a park.

Three giant creatures 12 feet tall with tiny heads chose spare ground at Voronezh, 300 miles south east of Moscow, for a very close encounter with the human race.

Their arrival was heralded by a shining ball seen by dozens of Voronezh residents.

The UFO landed and out came the giants, similar to humans and accompanied by a small robot.

"They went for a promenade near their spaceship," said official news agency Tass. "Then they disappeared back inside."

"Onlookers were overwhelmed with a fear that lasted several days."

The landing was authenticated by staff from the Voronezh Geophysical Laboratory, whose head, Genrikh Silanov, is a respected scientist.

Tass said: "Scientists confirmed that a UFO landed. They also identified the landing site and found traces of aliens."

Silanov's men discovered a 20-yard depression in the park with four deep dents, and two pieces of rock.

"They looked like deep red sandstone. But analysis showed that the substance cannot be found on Earth," said Silanov.

Tass did not say when the landing was, but its acceptance that the visit from outer space was genuine' contrasted with an article in July.

This poured scorn on a report in Socialist Industry quoting a UFO specialist who said that a burned patch of ground near Moscow was probably caused by a UFO.

Not so, said Tass. Firemen claimed a haystack caught fire and scorched the ground.
