Those little green fairies

STORIES about people from outer space landing in Russia were fairy tales in modern guise a top Soviet scientist and broadcaster told a Bristol audience.

Professor Sergei Kapitza, from the Academy of Sciences in Moscow, said: "People say they have seen something and it escalates."

The professor, who presents a TV show watched by 40 million people, was speaking before the inaugural dinner of the second Sci-Tech International Film and Television Festival in Bristol, aimed at finding the best productions in the field of science.

He is chairman of the international jury choosing the winners.

The festival, at the Watershed, is sponsored by British Gas, the BBC and Channel 4.
