

It's no place for an alien!

TO THE EDITOR

I WAS intrigued by the report of UFOs over the Fylde (Gazette, November 24) and it has reinforced my ideas that there is a large percentage of very gullible people living in this area!

I was utterly amazed at Mr Andrew Billing's observations concerning the destruction of a supposed UFO by a GR3 Tornado. If an extra-terrestrial civilization chose to visit the Earth I am sure that the last place it would visit would be the Fylde Coast.

Let's face it, the area is far from being the epicentre of intelligence.

To someone zapping in from the Andromeda galaxy or a planet circling Barnard's star, the Fylde Coast would appear as mind boggling as an amoeba expelling its food.

My tirade is not against Mr Billing who, I am sure, witnessed something strange but the way his experience was given coverage. It is quite feasible that the Tornado was zapping nothing more than a towed target.

I have witnessed some odd things myself which have turned out to be nothing more than the odd meteorite burning up in the atmosphere.

I have witnessed through my binoculars a Strikemaster (Saudia Arabian) practicing loops over Blackpool which, I may add, contravenes the laws governing aerobatics over a built-up area, something which any extra-terrestrial intelligence would probably find anathema.
