Gallery Of New Google Zurich Office

The Google employees in Zürich, Switzerland, moved to a new building, and Flickr user Tiptoe between April 2007 and January 2008 shot what seem to be a couple of photos from within. These rooms have some familiar Google office design elements, though some of them look a bit more old-fashioned than the ones of other offices, while others look even more futuristic/ odd/ cultish than usual (I think some new age sect waiting for UFO landings would instantly feel at home).

□ Graffiti on the wall.

□ If I read the pic right, both the bookshelf and the fireplace in this library room are fake.

□ This may be a meeting room (with banana on top).

□ The "therapy zone" offers free stress tests and audits to help you advance to the level of Operating Thetan massages.

□ The chill out zone.
