

DON'T SCOFF AT MYSTERY HOLES

By Ronald Bedford

JUST what did cause that crater in Farmer Roy Blanchard's field?

MPs learned yesterday that the fist-sized object first thought to be a meteorite was, in fact, merely a piece of local rock—and nothing to do with the crater.

So we're back where we started.

Theories range from a flying saucer visit to the field at Charlton, Wilts, to a hoax. I prefer the hoax theory.

Prediction

I also predict that more mystery objects will be found in Britain.

They should not be dismissed too lightly.

A Government committee of experts should probe every report of unexplained sights or discoveries which could lead to greater knowledge of the universe.

I rate as rubbish stories of people being given rides in flying saucers.

But to assume that the Earth is the only place capable of supporting intelligent life is, to my mind, supreme arrogance.
