

SAUCERS

Mr and Mrs Barney Hill. Their amazing stories tallied even under hypnosis world went saucer crazy. Clearly the vast majority of reports were not genuine. Of the mysterious rest, less and less was heard.

Faced with official polite disbelief, many people came not to prefer the evidence of their own eyes. Fearing ridicule, they kept quiet about what they saw.

So the Air Force's decision suddenly to go full throttle after the truth about UFO's might have attracted less attention had it not been announced at the same time that a new book came off the presses—Incident at Exeter, by John G. Fuller.

Fuller became intrigued by a report of a UFO in the New Hampshire village of Exeter in September last year.

He spent several weeks there painstakingly tape-recording interviews, gradually overcoming the reserve of the conservative residents—and the suspicion of the airmen in a big base nearby.

His book is the most detailed account of mass sightings ever produced.

IN their own words sixty people tell of glimpses of huge craft. And these are people completely familiar with every kind of aircraft that uses the base and who could not be confused.

And at the base Fuller learned that radar fixes on the UFO's were commonplace.

That although fighters had standing orders to shoot at them, they could never be overtaken.

In his most convincing interviews three policemen, one a flying veteran, told of observing a saucer over a one-hour period from 100 yards.

Two other people saw the same craft from different viewpoints.

After investigation, the Pentagon judgment was: "Stars and planets in unusual formation."

This, said Mr. Fuller, was not taken seriously even at the base. After all, pilots, both military and civil, are some of the prime sources of UFO reports.

And two of the policemen wrote to him: "The story put out by the Pentagon was not true. It could not be, because we were the people who saw this, not the Pentagon."

Fuller went to Exeter as a "friendly sceptic," he said. "But I returned feeling that something must be done."

THE most fantastic flying saucer story of them all has only just been brought to light—a story that has baffled even the scientists.

It involves an ordinary American couple, who were driving through New Hampshire after a holiday in Canada—AND WERE KIDNAPPED BY CREATURES FROM OUTER SPACE!

Incredible? Fantastic? Preposterous rubbish? OR FACT?

The story started four years ago when Betty and Barney Hill thought they'd had an encounter with a flying saucer—but were too embarrassed and ashamed to talk about it.

But they told a relative. This led to a visit from Walter Webb, a scientific adviser to the American National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena. His report on the Hills concluded:

"It is the opinion of this investigator . . . that they were telling the truth, and the incident occurred exactly as reported, except for some minor uncertainties and technicalities that must be tolerated in any such observation where human judgment is involved.

Honesty

"I was impressed by their intelligence, apparent honesty and obvious desire to get at the facts and to underplay the more sensational aspects of the sighting."

But they were still plagued by a nagging feeling that "something more had occurred." And so they went to the office of Dr. Benjamin Simon, a distinguished Boston psychiatrist and neurologist.

During World War II, Dr. Simon was Chief of Neuropsychiatry and Executive Officer at Mason General Hospital, the American Army's chief psychiatric centre.

He had extensive and remarkable success with hypnosis in the treatment of many psychiatric disorders among military personnel.

Dr. Simon accepted them as patients. During the months that followed the Hills began—under individual psychotherapy—to relive their "adventure," which proved more terrifying than either of them consciously recalled.

FOR UNDER HYPNOSIS THEY RECALLED — AND RELIVED IN HORRIFYING DETAIL — A FANTASTIC ACCOUNT OF A KIDNAPPING BY CREATURES FROM OUTER SPACE.

Their stories, even though taken separately under hypnosis, were virtually identical, and were recorded on tape by writer John Fuller, together with Dr.

Simon's analysis and comments.

John Fuller's dossier is so extraordinary that the Sunday Mirror has obtained exclusive rights to serialise it—the most remarkable flying saucer adventure ever told.

Remember: neither the Hills nor Dr. Simon claim that the story cannot be challenged.

But remember, too: Dr. Simon believes the story could be true.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF. IT BEGINS IN NEXT WEEK'S SUNDAY MIRROR.
