

40,000 watch for UFOs

People all over Britain will be scanning the skies this week-end in search of UFOs—Unidentified Flying Objects. They are taking part in a "sky watch" organised by the International Sky Scouts Association, involving 40,000 members in 23 countries.

The "skywatch" is to commemorate sightings made 20 years ago by a United States airline pilot, Kenneth Arnold, who spotted "nine gleaming discs."

The watchers hope that members of the public will also keep an eye on the sky.
