

MYSTERY OF DANCING LIGHT IN THE SKY

Evening News Reporter

Those mystery flying objects are with us again—officially.

A police patrol car crew reported seeing early today a "brilliant orange light looping-the-loop and doing strange aerobatics."

The police had gone to a lonely spot at Stoney Cross airfield in Hampshire's New Forest after a 999 call to Winchester police headquarters telling of a light hovering 100 yards above the ground.

The caller said the light was just staying there. There was no noise.

SECOND OBJECT

But by the time the police arrived it had shot high into the sky to give an aerial display before shooting off towards Salisbury.

Today's mystery flash was the second strange object to have lit up Hants skies within 26 hours.

Experts believe that the first was a meteorite burning out as it travelled over southern Hants before ending its journey in the Brockenhurst area.

But today's dancing light still has officials baffled.
