"I was first taken to Bridlington by my parents, and my wife and I have been to Bridlington for our holidays every year since we have been married," he said.

"We are going again this year. I love looking at Sewerby Cliffs and to view Flamborough Head from Bridlington's North Sands.

"During our 19 years of marriage, the only time my wife and I have been abroad was recently when we paid an official visit to the city's twin town — Dortmund, in West Germany.

"We love Bridlington."

Mysteries of space

ANY club or organisation can have a journey into space at any time — free of charge.

The Yorkshire Unidentified Flying Object Society is offering to give lectures to anyone who wants to listen.

Society's co-ordinator, Graham Birdsall, said: "We want to give the public a greater insight into the work we do. There is a lot of scepticism about UFOs — and ourselves.

"We'll go to any kind of organisation that invites us and give a two-hour illustrated lecture, free."

Graham, a local government officer, says the Yorkshire society has a large collection of UFO pictures.

"We've got the explained, the unexplained and a number of fakes. We want people to see for themselves."

Graham is on Leeds 622221, and anyone interested in joining the society can pop along to the monthly meeting next Sunday at 2.30, in Centenary House, North Street, Leeds.
