550.0 Item(s)

The youngest son of Charles Willson Peale, Titian Ramsay Peale was an accomplished artist, naturalist, and explorer. This collection of ink, pencil, and watercolor sketches, with some engravings and lithographs, forms the bulk of Peale's artistic output. The drawings can be grouped into several periods of artistic output: pre-1818 (primarily watercolors of butterflies); from the Stephen Harriman Long Expedition to the American west in 1819-1820, on which Peale traveled as zoologist (there are views of animals, Indians, landscapes, etc.); for his 1821-1838 interlude period, spent primarily on the east coast (insects, animals, moose hunting in Marine, his trip to South America in 1830-1831, coin and medal designs); his period as a naturalist on the worldwide U.S. Exploring Expedition under the command of Charles Wilkes, 1838-1842; from the 1849-1873 period when he sketched around Washington, D. C. and in New Jersey; and there are more than 160 undated sketches of: animal skulls and ... Read More

Catalina Island Views, California, ca. 1900-1909

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

29 photographic prints in 1 album; black and white; 18 x 26 cm. 27 digital objects

Scope and Content This album contains 29 black and white photographs likely taken in the first decade of the 20th century by the photographers Schattman, Swenson and other unidentified photographers. One photograph is dated 1900. The views are of Santa Catalina Island located 27 miles offshore southwest of Wilmington, near Los Angeles, California. The island is one of four Catalina Islands and is part of Los Angeles County. The island is 21 miles long and varies in width up to 8 miles with mountains as high as 2,100 feet. The town of Avalon was developed for tourists by William Wrigley Jr. and his son, two of several private owners of Santa Catalina. The photographs include bay views showing the shore of Avalon with its sailing vessels, housing, and mountains. Various recreational and tourist attractions are depicted, such as the Santa Catalina Island Marine Band, people bathing on the shores, a stage coach, tent camping at the isthmus, people posing with a giant fish they caught, ...

The Records of an Unbroken Friendship but the Mortal Severance, 1907-1924

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

Circa 410 photographs of various sizes, compiled in album measuring 24 x 38 cm.; circa 30 loose items (photographic prints, drivers licenses, U.S. registration cards) of various sizes; 1 panorama photograph, 26 x 123 cm. 80 digital objects

Scope and Content The Records of an Unbroken Friendship but the Mortal Severance album contains approximately 410 photographs apparently created as a memorial to Taizo Kato, a Japanese-American who died in 1924 at the age of 36. The album title implies that it was compiled by one or more of Kato's friends. The collection also contains circa 30 loose photographs and other items and one photographic panorama. Kato was an amateur photographer and painter, and several of the photographs refer to his involvement with these practices. Although only four of the prints bear either Kato's signature or embossed stamp, it is possible that a large percentage of the work in the album is his. There is at least one self-portrait by Kato. With Kamejiro Sawa, Kato was the proprietor of a Los Angeles photo, art and stationery goods business. This business, named The Korin, is featured in some of the photographs. Sawa is likely one of the friends appearing throughout the album, and may have been the ... Read More

New York Public Library

1 videodisc (NTSC) (70 min.)

David Helfand, chair of Columbia University's Astronomy Department, delivers a slide lecture on cosmology. This recording shows only the slides and videos, not the speaker. Slides include photographs taken by the Hubble space telescope and computer simulations of galaxies colliding. Helfand begins by speaking about how astronomers gather information; the nature of light (wavelength and velocity), the extremely limited portion of light that human eyes are capable of seeing, and how light traveling from great distances reveals the past. Helfand then discusses the structure of the solar system, the distances between objects in space, the life cycles of stars and galaxies, and the nature of space and time. The lecture is followed by a question-and-answer period, in which Helfand responds to questions about wormholes in space, the big bang theory, black holes and dark matter, the extent of the universe and possibility of multiple universes.

This collection is arranged alphabetically by type of material into nine series, then chronologically within each series, where applicable. The series are Books; Correspondence; Literary Productions; Maps; Photographs; Printed Material; Prints and Drawings; Realia; Scrapbook. Primarily, the collection contains materials documenting Marjorie Hunter's time as a student at Elon College in the late 1930's, early 1940's as well as her career as a journalist/reporter for the Washington Bureau of the New York Times. The information is documented through correspondences, interview transcripts, newspaper articles, and pages from Hunter's personal scrapbooks. Not only does this collection shed light into the world of one of the greatest female journalists/reporters, but also provides unique primary sources relating to media coverage and United States history.

Goldwater, Barry M. (Barry Morris), 1909-1998.

Arizona State University Libraries

1180 linear ft. (970 boxes)

Background : This collection remained largely unprocessed through the years. Serial deposits varying in volume and format from 1959-1998 were made from Goldwater's Washington office, Phoenix office and home. The collection also had been moved several times and the boxes re-numbered. There had been numerous attempts to organize and re-folder the materials resulting in various arrangement schemes. Although inventory sheets were created, locating specific correspondence, photographs and legislative documents was reportedly difficult. Public access varied widely. Additional findings as follows.

While gem dealer Horace K. Arlington frets over the safety of his newly purchased diamond collection, which is being shipped from Europe, Dave Hanlon ingratiates himself with Horace's daughter Arlene and plots with his three cohorts to steal the jewels. As part of the scheme, Dave hires Jerry Lane and Pierre Potkins, whose carnival act includes an airplane amusement ride, to pick up the stolen gems in a seaplane. Although Pierre is scheduled to meet with his parole officer that afternoon, he and Jerry accept the job and, unaware that their seaplane belongs to the police department, retrieve from the ocean what they believe to be harmless photographs. When Pierre inspects the package, however, he discovers the jewels, as well as a box of cocaine. After becoming intoxicated from the powder, Jerry, whose only knowledge of flying has come from reading books, crash lands the plane in the Arlingtons' backyard. Horace, seeing the police insignia on the plane, assumes the two men are ... Read More

American Philosophical Society

19.0 Linear feet 38 Boxes; 147 Volumes

The Peale family is best known as a family of artists; however, family interests and activities were much more wide-ranging. The best known Peale is Charles Willson Peale (1741-1827, APS 1786), who produced more than one thousand paintings, including hundreds of portraits of leading Americans during the colonial and early national periods. Peale was married three times, to Rachel Brewster (1744-1790), Elizabeth de Peyster (1765-1804), and Hannah More (1755-1821). He had eighteen children, eleven of whom reached adulthood. Three of Charles Willson Peale's sons became artists: Raphaele Peale (1774-1825), Rembrandt Peale (1778-1860), and Rubens Peale (1784-1865). A fourth son, Titian Ramsay Peale (1799-1885, APS 1833), was a naturalist (who made drawings on the exploring expeditions he accompanied) and pioneer in photography, and another son, Benjamin Franklin Peale (1795-1870), became a naturalist and paleontologist. Peale's daughter Sophonisba Angusciola was married to Coleman ... Read More

About ArchiveGrid

ArchiveGrid is a collection of over three million archival material descriptions, including MARC records from WorldCat and finding aids harvested from the web. It's supported by OCLC Research as the basis for our experimentation and testing in text mining, data analysis, and discovery system applications and interfaces. Archival collections held by thousands of libraries, museums, historical societies, and archives are represented in ArchiveGrid.

ArchiveGrid provides access to detailed archival collection descriptions, making information available about historical documents, personal papers, family histories, and other archival materials. It also provides contact information for the institutions where the collections are kept.

ArchiveGrid data is primarily focused on archival material descriptions for institutions in the United States but now also includes information about collections in Australia. This reflects the contribution patterns for descriptions of materials under archival control in WorldCat, which make up the majority of descriptions in ArchiveGrid. We may extend ArchiveGrid beyond its current scope if it is necessary to support OCLC Research experimental objectives.

ArchiveGrid illustrates OCLC's interest in advancing issues important to the archival community. Our work within ArchiveGrid gives OCLC Research a foundation for collaboration and interactions with others in the archival community. We expect to share the results of MARC and EAD tag analysis, provide discovery system analytics for contributors, document investigations of text mining and data visualization, participate in community working groups pursuing improvements to description and discovery, and more. To support those interests and objectives, we'll continue to build this extensive and current aggregation of archival material descriptions, within the constraints of OCLC Research's committed and on-going support for this project.

OCLC previously offered ArchiveGrid as a subscription-based discovery service. The subscription service was discontinued in 2012. While the freely-available OCLC Research ArchiveGrid interface is not a full production service, it shares some of the same attributes. Researchers can expect to use it for discovery of archival materials, and archives can work with OCLC Research to have their materials represented in the aggregation in a reliable and persistent way.

If you have questions about your collection descriptions in ArchiveGrid, please get in touch with us. Interested in contributing? Please let us know that as well.

Frequently Asked Questions

How do we get our finding aids in ArchiveGrid?

Your role in getting your finding aids into ArchiveGrid is simply to give us permission harvest and use them. There are no costs involved, beyond the time and effort on your part to provide us with a way to harvest your finding aid documents. We harvest your finding aids from a webpage you provide to us, and index them in ArchiveGrid. About once every six weeks, we update the ArchiveGrid index by removing all finding aid content, re-harvesting, and re-indexing. Any changes you make on to your finding aids, such as adding, editing, or removing finding aids, will be reflected in ArchiveGrid in its next index update.

Can I contribute finding aids even if I don't belong to OCLC?

Yes you can; OCLC membership is not required to contribute your finding aids to ArchiveGrid. There is no cost to contribute your finding aids, and we can accept them in EAD, HTML, or PDF formats.

Where do you get your collection descriptions?

We index finding aids harvested directly from contributors, and we also include MARC bibliographic records from WorldCat which we identified as Archival material. These WorldCat records describing archival materials constitute about 90% of the collection descriptions in ArchiveGrid.

How do you select WorldCat records for inclusion in ArchiveGrid?

There isn't a simple way to identify a MARC record that describes the types of materials held in archives, manuscript collections, and special collections. In order for a WorldCat record to be extracted into ArchiveGrid, it needs to meet the following criteria:

This filter isn't always successful. Especially for minimally-cataloged materials, we sometimes see descriptions of unpublished manuscripts of various kinds filter through. But we continue to evaluate and improve the filter as best we can.

Why does the same collection sometimes have two different entries in the ArchiveGrid index?

Duplicate entries result from harvesting finding aids and extracting WorldCat MARC records for the same collection. While we continue to work on a way to effectively cluster or de-duplicate these two forms of the collection description from the same contributor, we have hesitated in favoring one over the other as each includes access points not found in the other. We are trying to maximize access and discovery, so in this situation we've decided to favor recall over precision.

What about copyright?

OCLC does not claim copyright ownership of individual collection descriptions contributed to ArchiveGrid. More information on rights and responsibilities and a legal statement are available on the web page where you can request to include your collections.

How many institutions contribute?

Collection descriptions from around 1,000 institutions - libraries, museums, historical societies, etc. - are included in ArchiveGrid.

Why is ArchiveGrid a free service?

We transitioned from a subscription-based service to a freely available system in 2012, in order to make the index available to everyone - faculty, scholars, family history researchers, students, and others. ArchiveGrid remains an OCLC Research project, allowing us to improve archives and special collections research through studies of researchers, description, and discovery.

What do you know about your users?

When ArchiveGrid started in the late 1990s as a way to test if EAD finding aids from different sources could work well together in one search system, we mostly had faculty and college students and genealogists in mind as our researchers. We later gathered data about these user groups from studies, and we continued to make system design improvements based on their needs. In a study conducted in 2012, we surveyed archives and special collections users and learned that primary source research is still an important focus for faculty, students and genealogists, but it also plays a role for people motivated to search for archival materials by something in their personal and professional lives. This important segment of archives and special collections include filmmakers, writers, designers, hobbyists, and much more.

What are your site visit statistics like?

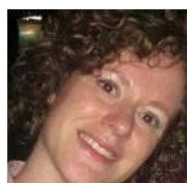

We use Google Analytics to track site visits and show selected current statistics here. We recognize that discovery frequently begins with search engines, so we put special effort into promoting ArchiveGrid's collection descriptions in Google, Yahoo, Bing, and other popular services.

The ArchiveGrid Team

Bruce

Bruce Washburn is the lead developer and software engineer for ArchiveGrid. More accurately, he is ArchiveGrid's only developer. He's grateful for all the other software engineers in OCLC Research that make it possible to work so easily with WorldCat MARC records, and of course to all the ingenious and helpful staff at ArchiveGrid contributing institutions that help us harvest their finding aids. Bruce works in the San Mateo, California office of OCLC Research.

Ellen

Ellen Eckert is primarily responsible for keeping the ArchiveGrid wheels turning. She's the front-line for questions, comments, and problem reports that we receive via email, and is your expert help when you have questions about how to contribute your finding aids to ArchiveGrid. In addition, Ellen is the editor of the ArchiveGrid blog ... you should follow that, it's always entertaining. Ellen works from her home office in Portland, Oregon.

Merrilee

Merrilee Proffitt is a senior Program Officer at OCLC Research and the guiding light of the ArchiveGrid project. Whether it's setting priorities for the discovery system, thinking about how best to connect ArchiveGrid with other systems, or developing projects to study users or to analyze archival materials metadata, Merrilee points the way. Merrilee works in the San Mateo, California office of OCLC Research.

ArchiveGrid Index Growth

Null value ✕

Interpreting These Statistics

The growth of MARC records in the last year represents identification and inclusion of additional contributors of data to WorldCat, and the on-going growth of WorldCat in general. While there has also been a concerted effort to increase the number of finding aid contributors, that form of archival description is a relatively small percentage of the entire aggregation. And some MARC records may be removed from the current set, as we improve our selection algorithms to identify archival collection descriptions.

Interpreting These Statistics

ArchiveGrid contributing institutions are currently hard to count. In some cases, what might be considered as one institution may be represented in ArchiveGrid by several different contributors, one for each archive or special collections department affiliated with the larger institution. But in other instances, one contributing institution provides descriptions for a great many more individual archives (for example, the NUCMC records contributed by the Library of Congress). Until we can more accurately identify and count these contributors, the current count of contributors will be much lower than the actual number of institutions represented.

Feel free to make any adjustments you'd like to the styles and text in this form. As long as you keep the form element names and action as they are, it should still work.

How to Search

You can apply Boolean search logic to your keywords and terms, using AND, OR, NOT, and parentheses. You can also use specific indexes for your search terms.

To broaden your search:

Put an upper-case OR between your keywords. For example, dust OR bowl retrieves records containing either dust or bowl.

To narrow your search:

- Put quotes around your keywords to find records with an exact phrase. For example, "dust bowl" retrieves records with the words dust and bowl together, but would not match a description where those two words were not adjacent and in that order.
- Put an upper-case NOT between your keywords. For example, dust NOT bowl retrieves records containing dust, but not bowl.
- Put a ~ and a number between 1 and 4 at the end of your exact phrase. For example, "dust bowl"~4 retrieves records where dust and bowl appear within four words of each other.
- Put parentheses around your search terms. For example, (dust OR bowl) NOT oklahoma retrieves records containing either dust or bowl, but not Oklahoma.

Can I combine indexes?

Though you don't need to do anything special in your search if you are using the default "keyword" index, you can use more specific indexes for your search terms. For example, the search ("mark twain" OR "samuel clemens") NOT location:virginia will match descriptions that include the phrase Mark Twain or Samuel Clemens, and where the archival institution is not in Virginia.

Collections from land down under now aboard ArchiveGrid

Posted on May 13, 2014 by Ellen

A century-old story of the British Antarctic expedition and the Australian photographer who documented it needs to be told before going into detail about our most recent ArchiveGrid index update.

100 years ago, against the backdrop of the early stages of World War One, the national heroes in Great Britain and Norway were men who had been on expeditions in Antarctica, the world's final frontier at the time. Like the 1960s United States/Russia race to the moon, Britain wanted to beat Norway to the South Pole. Roald Amundsen took that honor for Norway in 1911, easily beating Britain's Robert Falcon Scott with superiority in skiing and dog sledding.

As a sort of consolation prize, 40-year-old Sir Ernest Shackleton, who contracted scurvy while on Scott's first polar mission 12 years before, was determined to re-capture England's glory by being the first to cross Antarctica.

Shackleton made sure that members of his expedition had the best of everything. Outfitted in Burberry aboard the new Norwegian barquentine "Endurance," the men, along with 69 sled dogs, left a south Atlantic whaling station on Dec. 5, 1914, bound for the Weddell Sea. Their plan after crossing the continent was to catch a relief ship, the Aurora, in the Ross Sea.

Strong tents, big and hearty dogs, a disease-preventing nutrition plan, and a ship built of Norwegian fir to withstand ice were supposed to help the Shackleton Expedition succeed. Instead, ice packs trapped the Endurance, crushed her, and marooned the crew. They didn't touch land for 497 days and they turned to eating their dogs, penguins, and seals for survival. Their survival was a testament to Shackleton's leadership.

Some funds the Irish-born Shackleton raised for the cross-Antarctic expedition came from news and film rights sales. That's where Australian photographer Frank Hurley comes into the picture. He provided the images that would cement what went from an ambitious undertaking to one of the most compelling stories of human survival. Not only did they help pay off debt Shackleton owed after the expedition, they are still held in high regard for their beauty and storytelling power.

Photo-journalists today can learn from Hurley's innovation and courage to push the limits for the best shots, get close to his subjects, and leave no angle unconsidered. Hurley's preservation technique of soldering negatives in metal casing is how his work incurred little damage during the expedition.

Gone is discovery done the Shackleton way, marked by hunger, strain, animal deaths, and rugged perseverance. But now you can discover photographs from the Shackleton Expedition in ArchiveGrid. New Australian contributors and collections of Hurley's work were brought aboard during our most recent index update. The National Library of Australia's collection of digitized glass plate negatives of photos taken during the expedition are just part of the collections that are newly included in ArchiveGrid.

We recently expanded the filter that selects WorldCat records for inclusion in ArchiveGrid to include more collections of images and both visual and audio recordings. After that expansion we needed to also broaden our horizons for institutions that we register for inclusion in ArchiveGrid. WorldCat contributors in Australia and New Zealand that weren't previously registered as ArchiveGrid institutions have now been added, including:

- Art Gallery of New South Wales
- Australian National University
- Central Queensland University
- National Gallery of Australia
- National Library of Australia

We were excited to see how rich these collections from Down Under are, especially the materials related to the history of South Pole exploration. We are also excited that these collections are more "discoverable" for researchers. Isn't excitement what drives people farther than they imagined? Who else on Dec. 5, 1914 felt more excitement than Sir Shackleton? Maybe, by seeing the uncharted future through Hurley's lens, we can feel a bit of that excitement, too.

With the addition of these significant collection descriptions to ArchiveGrid, the Shackleton Expedition records are just the tip of the iceberg, in terms of collections you can explore. We invite you to share your discoveries with us!

Images of McCullough's bridges in ArchiveGrid

Posted on April 30, 2014 by Ellen

Highway 101 north of Gold Beach, Ore., crosses the Rogue River on a concrete arch bridge with art deco obelisks – a design that seems out of place with the industry and resort towns 101 passes through, but not out of place with the history of Oregon's coastal bridges. The bridge, which is on the National Register of Historical Places, is one of more than 20 Oregon bridges designed in the 1920s and 1930s by Conde McCullough, an Oregon Department of Transportation engineer and civil engineering professor at Oregon State University. McCullough's distinct bridges still stand along U.S. Route 101. In ArchiveGrid, collections of images of these bridges under construction and the towns they're in can be found.

Chicago's Wrigley Field centennial is a nostalgic grand slam

Posted on April 23, 2014 by Ellen

Nowhere else in professional sports do joy and pain intersect more than for the the Chicago Cubs, the longtime residents of Wrigley Field, the venerated Major League ballpark on Chicago's north side.

Wrigley Field opened as Weeghman Park on April 23, 1914, 100 years ago today.

In the heat of summer, nothing is better than the view east from

Image source: <http://fanfoodie.blogspot.com>

“the friendly confines” of Wrigley, passing layered brick buildings and L-trains and ending where the dark sky and a serene Lake Michigan, dotted with white sails, meet.

But the Cubs haven’t won the World Series since 1908, including the 100 years at Wrigley. And still fans of “the Lovable Losers” crowd sidewalks, L-trains and parking lots to see their team play.<sup>[1]</sup> Perhaps the most famous fan in Cubs history is Steve Bartman, whose interference with a catch in 2003 cost the Cubs a playoff series.

The rustic charm of the Major’s second oldest park (after Boston’s Fenway) fosters loyalty. Ivy adorns the brick wall surrounding the outfield, and rooftops on buildings across Waveland Avenue host raucous viewing parties. Wrigley boasts a manually operated scoreboard, real organ music, minimal advertising and all the odors of old-timey baseball. Even the location is quaint, squeezed into an irregular grouping of homes and businesses affectionately known as “Wrigleytown” in the residential Lakeview neighborhood.

How many times in the last century have people consumed all these sights, smells and sounds? A lot if they had Cubs seasons tickets – a 1929 hallmark of Cubs executive and female sports industry pioneer Margaret Donahue, who will be honored during Wrigley Field’s decade-themed centennial celebrations this season. Its namesake, Wrigley, is indeed the chewing gum guy – William Wrigley Jr.<sup>[2]</sup> owned the team in 1926 when it was renamed after him.

The greatness of the game itself is etched in the park’s history. Pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, third baseman Ron Santo and shortstop Ernie Banks led great Cubs teams of the 1960s. Pitcher Bruce Sutter in the late 1970s helped define the role of the modern closer and second baseman Ryne Sandberg shone in the 1980s. All are in the Baseball Hall of Fame, but none ever earned a championship ring as a Cub.

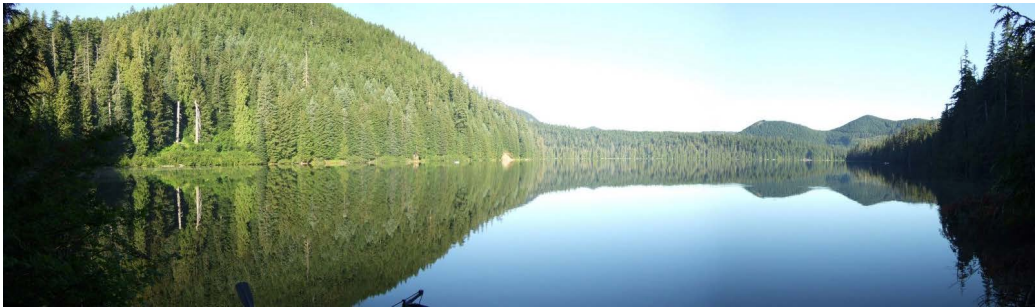

In 1998, Cub Sammy Sosa hit 66 home runs as part of a famous duel with St. Louis Cardinal Mark McGwire to break Roger Maris’ old single-season record of 61. McGwire eventually ended up winning that battle by hitting 71 bombs of his own. Both were later disgraced by allegations of steroid use to enhance their performances.

For Earth Day, find historical photographs in ArchiveGrid of car-free commuting

Posted on April 22, 2014 by Ellen

Transportation, and how much energy is consumed to get people around, is an environmental topic workers can address for Earth Day today by trying cleaner commutes. Personal automobile alternatives like walking, bicycling, and shared transport can cut carbon emissions, count toward the day’s exercise, and connect with early ways of getting around. However, according to 2012 United States Census Bureau survey data, zero-emission commutes still rank low in how the American workforce gets to and from work: Less than one percent rode a bicycle and nearly three percent walked.

Since I work from home and don’t commute, my Earth Day act is to find historical photographs in ArchiveGrid of car-free commuting. Here are five:

ArchiveGrid jogs historical memory of women in the Boston Marathon

Posted on April 18, 2014 by Ellen

This Easter weekend, athletes are getting ready to run the Boston Marathon on Monday the 21st. It was also on a Monday in April 1897, when the first Boston Marathon was run – 10 years after the Boston Athletic Association was established.

As the Boston Marathon has grown in prestige, so has its historical significance in women’s sports – running in particular. Roberta Gibb in 1966 was the first woman to run the race, although she participated unofficially that year and again in 1967 and 1968. Women weren't allowed to officially sign up until 1972. However in 1967, Kathrine Switzer registered herself under a vague name and despite efforts to physically remove her from the course, she officially completed the marathon. The next year she earned her master's degree from Syracuse University, where her papers are held. Gibb in 1981 wrote about her experience for Ms. Magazine and that piece is in a collection at Radcliffe College of letters to the magazine.

In the early 1980s, Joan Benoit Samuelson became the first person to win the Boston and Olympic marathons. Also an author, her books include Running Tide, and Running for Women. New England University in Maine, her home state, houses a collection of her newspaper clippings and articles. Crowning her achievements in 1996, Samuelson was on a Wheaties cereal box commemorating the Boston Marathon's 100th running. Radcliffe College has a box in a collection of female sports ephemera.

Other collections at Radcliffe College around the history of women in America include one for Hazel Hitson Weidman, a medical anthropologist who served in World War II. The finding aid includes details about her correspondence with family members, including her daughter-in-law running marathons barefoot – in 2013, she was about a mile-and-a-half out from the Boston Marathon finish line when terrorist bombs exploded.

What do repeat race runners do with their collections of race shirts? Diane Sherrer made a quilt out of hers, and it's in a collection at Cornell University of other materials spanning 40 years of her competitive running and journalism career. Her years at the Boston Marathon are recorded in that collection. Can't remember what the race's 1999 shirt looked like? There's one in the collection.

Weed woes inspire a 'dandy' ArchiveGrid search

Posted on April 9, 2014 by Ellen

Libraries holding too many materials and gardens exploding with dandelions both need weeding. While working evenings this week on weeding the latter, I wondered what a search in ArchiveGrid for the springtime invader would retrieve, and if grouping my favorite results here would help me learn to love the weed, commiserate with past efforts to abate it, or offer a new way to look at garden weeding.

Hopefully this list will achieve all three goals:

- A picture circa 100 years ago shows a band playing while students dig dandelions at Nebraska Wesleyan University in the Lincoln. Weeding is better with some company, or a playlist.
- That dandelions are edible doesn't keep them out of my yard debris bin, but cooking them is recorded in a Northwest folklore archive collection at University of Oregon as both a custom and a superstition. And although I could search online for some dandelion recipes, I would like to see the ones in a collection of pamphlets published last century by Cornell University's New York State College of Agriculture for the state fair commission.
- Can dandelions be used to make rubber? A retired Michigan State Archives reference archivist wanted to know and a subject that his collection at Central Michigan University covers is dandelions as an emergency source of post-World War II rubber, according to the finding aid.
- Collections of dandelions in artistic expression aren't hard to find in ArchiveGrid because they are vivid and symbolic in their nature. William E. Stafford referred to them in two of his poems, which are held in a collection at Lewis & Clark College. This photograph by a scientist who worked in weed control shows what happened when he fertilized part of an invaded lawn (which looks like parts of my lawn). Also in the collection is a photograph of a what is probably a beautiful-looking, dandelion-covered field.

Missing flight collections found in ArchiveGrid

Posted on March 31, 2014 by Ellen

Missing Malaysia Airlines Flight 370 may permanently join history's record of other vanished flights. What archival collections surrounding these unsolved air mysteries exist and can be found in ArchiveGrid? Here is a quick list:

Amelia Earhart – There are files at Radcliffe College of the FBI's investigation into her 1937 disappearance over Pacific Ocean, as she tried to be the first woman to fly around the world.

Bermuda Triangle – A former Arizona State University librarian's papers include research sources for his books about Flight 19 – a fleet of bombers that disappeared over the Bermuda Triangle in 1945 – and other vanishings in that area. They include the Star Tiger in 1948 (Lincoln Memorial University has an item relating to one of the crew members) and the Star Ariel a year later.

Alaska – At University of Alaska in Fairbanks are the papers of Democratic Congressman Nick Begich, who disappeared in 1972 with Louisiana Representative Hale Boggs during a flight over Alaska.

The 21st packs March birthday madness

Posted on March 21, 2014 by Ellen

It's fun to learn who shares your birthday. Here is a list of historical figures who share my birthday today and have related collections in ArchiveGrid:

- Legendary German Baroque composer Johann Sebastian Bach died in July of 1750 at age 65. I can't be more proud to share a birthday with who was behind the majestic Toccata and Fugue in D Minor.
- Another musical legend born today was Florenz Ziegfeld, who wrote the musical Show Boat and was behind the Ziegfeld Follies and Broadway revues. He died in July of 1932 at age 65. University of Texas has a Ziegfeld collection, and materials relating to a his life when he was married to stage performer Billie Burke is at New York Public Library.
- Forty-six microfilm reels at University of Texas contain the papers of Benito Juarez, Mexican national hero and president, who lived from 1806 until July of 1872 when he died at age 66.
- A fellow native Oregonian, Phyllis McGinley was a Pulitzer Prize-winning poet, writer and author of juvenile books. Syracuse University has an extensive collection of her papers. In 1906, exactly one year after McGinley was born, John D. Rockefeller III was born in New York City, where McGinley would later live. They both died in 1978, both at age 72. She died in February and he died in July. The Rockefeller Archive Center has the family's archive.

- Arthur Honegger was a 20th century Swiss composer whose works include a piece named for his country's patron saint Nicholas of Flue, who lived five centuries earlier and died on his March 21 birthday in 1487 at age 70. University of British Columbia's archives has a recording of the piece.
- A collection at New York Public Library of Lola Maverick Lloyd, an international activist for women's rights, includes materials having to do with Alice Henry, who was born today and died on Valentine's Day in 1943 at age 85. She was an Australian journalist and promoted women's suffrage and social reform.
- In 1960, an oral history was made at of Maurice Farman, a French aircraft designer and manufacturer who lived from 1877 to February of 1964. He was 86. Columbia University houses the transcript.

Faneuil Hall led new world forums

Posted on March 14, 2014 by Ellen

Today in 1743, America's first recorded town hall meeting was held in Faneuil Hall in downtown Boston, according to the New York Times. At the University of Virginia are materials about its architect, John Smibert. He was a Colonial artist who had moved from Europe to New England, opened an art supplies shop in Boston, ran a gallery, and still painted portraits.

Faneuil Hall's original mixed-use design with a public gathering space above ground-floor retail was inspired by English country markets, but I wonder how much Smibert's design was influenced by his earlier life in London when he lived in an apartment in Covent Garden.

Nearly four decades of pieces of Smibert's life are contained in his journal, and ArchiveGrid has other records as well for related images and collections. Knowing what Faneuil Hall looked like when it was finished in 1742, and what was said during those first meetings, may be a scholarly mystery.

However, what Faneuil Hall paved for the future of the American public meeting space can be traced in other gems in ArchiveGrid for researchers to discover, such as announcing the death of a president and lottery results.

With MARC filter-flexing, ArchiveGrid index exceeds 3 million records

Posted on March 11, 2014 by Ellen

While March came in like a lion weather-wise in many places, the saying meant good news index-wise for ArchiveGrid. This week we updated the index and once again, the number of collections and items represented in ArchiveGrid spiked. In January's update, the index grew by around 600,000 records and reached 2.4 million. Now we're over 3 million.

Here's why:

MARC records from WorldCat represent at least 90 percent of ArchiveGrid's descriptions. Since no particular MARC record field tells us "Hey! Include me in ArchiveGrid," we use a combination of elements. In the "recall vs. precision" performance metric, we've tended to err on the side of recall. Details on how we filter WorldCat records for inclusion in ArchiveGrid are here.

A snow-drizzled "Fortitude" guards one side of the New York Public Library entrance, while "Patience" (not pictured) guards the other. Image source: Flickr Creative Commons

Twice this year, we tuned the filter we use to extract MARC records from WorldCat to include more record types based on the MARC Leader byte 6 value. January's update brought in records with the value of "k" (two-dimensional, non-projecting graphics). This update includes records with the value of "g" (projected medium), "i" (nonmusical sound recording), or "j" (musical sound recording). We think these adjustments allow more descriptions of the types of materials ArchiveGrid searchers could expect to find, without overloading the index with records we'd prefer to filter out: irrelevant materials or published works, items held in multiple locations, etc. So we expect to continue adjusting the filter and see the total number of records change as we get more precise.

Here are some highlights of what valuable primary sources the added g, i, and j indexes in ArchiveGrid have to offer:

- Around 1,800 sound discs, tape reels, and cassettes of nearly all of Duke Ellington's commercial and non-commercial recordings and also some radio broadcasts. Collected by Joseph Jeffers Dodge, Harvard University acquired the collection in March 1998.
- A live 1963 recording in Germany of John F. Kennedy's "Ich bin ein Berliner" speech, at Ball State University.
- A May 2, 2003 VHS recording of the "Service of death and resurrection for Fred McFeely Rogers, or Mister Rogers, at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary.

Another addition with this update is documentation for ArchiveGrid indexes. We use a number of “hidden” indexes in ArchiveGrid for testing and trouble-shooting, so in a new how to search page, we explain what these indexes are and how they can be used in a search. This should be considered a work in progress, so if you have suggestions for improvements or questions about how the indexes work, please let us know.

Would you like to be a part of this valuable resource?

One of the best ways to be represented is to include your collection descriptions in OCLC's WorldCat database. ArchiveGrid is largely made up of MARC records from WorldCat; if you are already contributing your MARC cataloging to WorldCat and don't see your records in ArchiveGrid, let us know. Otherwise, if you have finding aids in EAD, HTML or PDF format and aren't currently contributing MARC records to WorldCat, please supply the information below and we will contact you with more information.

Collections from land down under now aboard ArchiveGrid

A century-old story of the British Antarctic expedition and the Australian photographer who documented it needs to be told before going into detail about our most recent ArchiveGrid index update. 100 years ago, against the backdrop of the early stages of World War One, the national heroes in Great Britain and Norway were men who had been on expeditions in Antarctica, the world's final frontier at the time. Like the 1960s United States/Russia race to the moon, Britain wanted to beat Norway to the South Pole. Roald Amundsen took that honor for Norway in 1911, easily beating Britain's Robert Falcon Scott with superiority in skiing and dog sledding. As a sort of consolation prize, 40-year-

ABOUT ARCHIVEGRID

ArchiveGrid is a collection of over three million archival material descriptions, including MARC records from WorldCat and finding aids harvested from the web. It's supported by OCLC Research as the basis for our experimentation and testing in text mining, data analysis, and discovery system applications and interfaces. Archival collections held by thousands of libraries, museums, historical societies, and archives are represented in ArchiveGrid.

ArchiveGrid provides access to detailed archival collection descriptions, making information available about historical documents, personal papers, family histories, and other archival materials. It also provides contact information for the institutions where the collections are kept.

ArchiveGrid data is primarily focused on archival material descriptions for institutions in the United States but now also includes information about collections in Australia. This reflects the contribution patterns for descriptions of materials under archival control in WorldCat, which make up the majority of descriptions in ArchiveGrid. We may extend ArchiveGrid beyond its current scope if it is necessary to support OCLC Research experimental objectives.

ArchiveGrid illustrates OCLC's interest in advancing issues important to the archival community. Our work within ArchiveGrid gives OCLC Research a foundation for collaboration and interactions with others in the archival community. We expect to share the results of MARC and EAD tag analysis, provide discovery system analytics for contributors, document investigations of text mining and data visualization, participate in community working groups pursuing improvements to description and discovery, and more. To support those interests and objectives, we'll continue to build this extensive and current aggregation of archival material descriptions, within the constraints of OCLC Research's committed and on-going support for this project.

OCLC previously offered ArchiveGrid as a subscription-based discovery service. The subscription service was discontinued in 2012. While the freely-available OCLC Research ArchiveGrid interface is not a full production service, it shares some of the same attributes. Researchers can expect to use it for discovery of archival materials, and archives can work with OCLC Research to have their materials represented in the aggregation in a reliable and persistent way.

If you have questions about your collection descriptions in ArchiveGrid, please get in touch with us. Interested in contributing? Please let us know that as well.

American Philosophical Society

36.0 Linear feet

An electrical engineer and senior editor for Aviation Week and Space Technology, Philip Klass began investigating UFOs in 1966 after participating in a panel discussion on the subject for the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE). From that time forward Klass has investigated UFO sightings in an effort to find a credible prosaic explanation, and became one of the most widely recognized UFO

"debunkers." A founding member of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal (CSICOP), serving on the Executive Council and the UFO subcommittee, Klass has authored seven books and numerous articles on UFOs, including the Skeptics UFO Newsletter in 1989. In the early 1970s, he became interested in space based weapons, and began collecting material related to the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) for a possible book. The Klass Collection relate to his forty-plus years of investigating UFO sightings, and includes correspondence with many of the ... Read More

J. Allen Hynek (1910-1986) Papers 1925-1988

Northwestern University

Astronomer J. Allen Hynek led Northwestern’s Astronomy Department into the Space Age and became the nation’s foremost expert on unidentified flying objects (UFOs). He oversaw the significant expansion of Northwestern’s Astronomy Department and made important contributions to his field, most notably by successfully incorporating television technology into telescopes for the first time. However, he was best known for his work on UFOs. His work inspired the film “Close Encounters of the Third Kind.” The Hynek Papers provide a record of Hynek’s professional life but offer scant insight into his personal affairs. The papers include biographical materials, clippings, reports relating to Hynek’s work on Project Stargazer, and some materials pertaining to Hynek’s UFO work and his work at Northwestern.

Roy C. Ihde, a Peshtigo, Wisconsin native, describes his career in the Air Force from 1946 to 1966 during the Cold War. Ihde touches on family military history, enlisting in the Air Force after his house burned down, basic training at the San Antonio Aviation Cadet Center (Texas), radar school at Boca Raton (Florida), primary and basic pilot training at Randolph Field (Texas), and single-engine fighter pilot training at Williams Field (Arizona). He reflects on his love of training and recalls reasons other people washed out. He talks about his assignment to the 4th Fighter Group, 336th Rocket Squadron at Andrews Field (Maryland) and duty as a P-80 jet pilot and athletic officer. Ihde comments on flying the F-84 Thunderjet. He recalls a three-year tour based in Furstenfeldbruck (Germany), speaks of defending U.S. air space, and states he often had to intercept civilian airliners. He shares his impressions of the destruction in Munich and talks about going to the opera. Sent to ... Read More

George Herms papers 1890-2009

Getty Research Institute
231.7 linear feet (380 boxes, 65 flatfile folders)
Southern California artist, writer, and musician George Herms was one of the founders of the West Coast assemblage movement. Influenced by the art of his close friend Wallace Berman, his work brings together discards, beach trash, urban detritus and other "found objects" to create a highly original and personal mix of collage, sculpture, and assemblage. The bulk of the papers comprise full documentation of Herms' life and work from 1960-2000.

Snap Shooting Around the Golden Gate International Exposition, 1939

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library
5 albums (560 photographic prints) 191 digital objects

Scope and Content This collection consists of five albums of black and white photographs taken by P. T. Glass of the Golden Gate International Exposition. The exposition was held from February 18 to October 29, 1939 on Treasure Island to celebrate the recent openings of the Golden Gate and Oakland Bay bridges. More than 10 million people visited the exposition. A reorganized exposition was held on the site May 25 through September 29, 1940. The photographs in albums 1-4, often humorously titled, were taken between February 18 and October 29, 1939 as Mr. Glass, sometimes accompanied by his wife, parents, and friends, returned repeatedly to the exposition. The views are mostly exterior shots of the various structures, landscaping, and exhibits of the exposition. Exhibits pictured include the Court of the Seven Seas, Sun Tower, Court of the Moon, Sunken Gardens, Court of Reflections, Star Lady, Arch of Triumph, and Court of Flowers. Many architectural features are shown, as well as ...

The Michael McClure Papers: Additions, 1874-2002, (bulk 1949-2002), present a comprehensive view of his work as a writer, spanning the length of McClure's career. The bulk consists of notebooks and writings, including poems, prose, and plays in manuscript, draft and final form. There is very little correspondence. There are also professional papers, which include posters, flyers, and broadsides, many advertising readings by McClure and others, and productions of his plays, including The Beard. There is a small amount of artwork by McClure, his family, and friends; and materials by and about artists Bruce Conner, Wallace Berman, and George Herms from William Jahrmarkt and the Batman Gallery, among others. The small amount of personal papers include records and family correspondence. These papers complement The Bancroft Library's other extensive holdings documenting the postwar San Francisco poetry renaissance and its influence on American literature.

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

1,232 images selected from The Bancroft Library's Portrait Collection ; various sizes 1230 digital objects

Scope and Content California Faces consists of 1,232 photographic and other pictorial portraits of 416 men and women prominent in California's history. The portraits, selected from The Bancroft Library Portrait Collection, offer a diverse selection of artists, writers, businessmen, politicians, scientists, entertainers, and others, primarily from the early nineteenth-century until the present. Individuals from the San Francisco Bay Area tend to predominate since the library's holdings are strongest in this area. Many notable figures from California's pre-statehood and early statehood days are featured: Sir Francis Drake, the earliest Anglo to set foot on California soil; Patrick Breen and Eliza Donner from the ill-fated Donner Party; frontiersman Kit Carson, John Sutter, Lola Montez, and many others. Writers who were either born and raised in the state or who spent significant periods of time in California are included: traditional chroniclers of Western experience (Bret Harte and ... ## Merian C. Cooper papers 1921-1977

Brigham Young University - L. Tom Perry Special Collections

9 items 7 cartons (7 linear ft.) 20 oversize boxes (25.5 linear ft.) 2 half boxes (0.5 linear ft.) 75 film reels (56 linear ft.) 43 boxes (21 linear ft.)

The Merian C. Cooper papers cover virtually every aspect of Cooper's life and his varied careers. The papers provide valuable information on documentary and feature motion picture production in the United States from the mid-1920s through the early 1950s, as well as information on world exploration, the United States Air Force (particularly during World War II), and early television. Several Cooper projects that never came to fruition are also documented, especially his unproduced film biography of Lieutenant General Claire C. Chennault of Flying Tiger fame. These projects, commended in the 1950s, represent Cooper's efforts to stay active in the entertainment business. The papers, for the most part, are housed in standard archival document cases. The designations mean oversized boxes for maps, broadsides, large photographs, and certain publications.

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

5 albums (560 photographic prints) 191 digital objects

Scope and Content This collection consists of five albums of black and white photographs taken by P. T. Glass of the Golden Gate International Exposition. The exposition was held from February 18 to October 29, 1939 on Treasure Island to celebrate the recent openings of the Golden Gate and Oakland Bay bridges. More than 10 million people visited the exposition. A reorganized exposition was held on the site May 25 through September 29, 1940. The photographs in albums 1-4, often humorously titled, were taken between February 18 and October 29, 1939 as Mr. Glass, sometimes accompanied by his wife, parents, and friends, returned repeatedly to the exposition. The views are mostly exterior shots of the various structures, landscaping, and exhibits of the exposition. Exhibits pictured include the Court of the Seven Seas, Sun Tower, Court of the Moon, Sunken Gardens, Court of Reflections, Star Lady, Arch of Triumph, and Court of Flowers. Many architectural features are shown, as well as ...

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

Number of containers: 53 boxes, 14 volumes, 2 oversize boxes, and 13 oversize folders Linear feet: Approx. 23

The Michael McClure Papers: Additions, 1874-2002, (bulk 1949-2002), present a comprehensive view of his work as a writer, spanning the length of McClure's career. The bulk consists of notebooks and writings, including poems, prose, and plays in manuscript, draft and final form. There is very little correspondence. There are also professional papers, which include posters, flyers, and broadsides, many advertising readings by McClure and others, and productions of his plays, including The Beard. There is a small amount of artwork by McClure, his family, and friends; and materials by and about artists Bruce Conner, Wallace Berman, and George Herms from William Jahrmarkt and the Batman Gallery, among others. The small amount of personal papers include records and family correspondence. These papers complement The Bancroft Library's other extensive holdings documenting the postwar San Francisco poetry renaissance and its influence on American literature.

California Faces: Selections from The Bancroft Library Portrait Collection

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

1,232 images selected from The Bancroft Library's Portrait Collection ; various sizes 1230 digital objects

Scope and Content California Faces consists of 1,232 photographic and other pictorial portraits of 416 men and women prominent in California's history. The portraits, selected from The Bancroft Library Portrait Collection, offer a diverse selection of artists, writers, businessmen, politicians, scientists, entertainers, and others, primarily from the early nineteenth-century until the present. Individuals from the San Francisco Bay Area tend to predominate since the library's holdings are strongest in this area. Many notable figures from California's pre-statehood and early statehood days are featured: Sir Francis Drake, the earliest Anglo to set foot on California soil; Patrick Breen and Eliza Donner from the ill-fated Donner Party; frontiersman Kit Carson, John Sutter, Lola Montez, and many others. Writers who were either born and raised in the state or who spent significant periods of time in California are included: traditional chroniclers of Western experience (Bret Harte and ... ## Mary Agnes Burniston Brazier Papers, 1941-1995

University of California, Los Angeles - Louise M. Darling Biomedical Library

12.3 linear feet (26 boxes)

Mary A. B. Brazier was born in England in 1904 and died in Falmouth, MA in 1955. She received a Ph. D. in physiology and biochemistry from the University of London in 1930, began neuroscience research at Maudsley Hospital, London, and in 1940 came to Boston on a Rockefeller fellowship. She remained at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard University, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for twenty years, then moved to the Brain Research Institute at UCLA until her retirement. She was internationally known as an outstanding neuroscientist, historian, author, and editor. This collection consists mainly of materials pertinent to her historical research: photocopies of texts, notes, photographs and negatives of some 500 individuals and 40 institutions important in the development of the neurosciences; there is some emphasis on Russian neurophysiology and on instances of early calculating machines. About a tenth of the collection consists of professional and personal ... Read More

University of Maryland - Archives and Manuscripts

The Keesing Collection on Popular Music and Culture consists of books, serials, recordings, sheet music, clippings, memorabilia, and teaching and research materials related to twentieth-century American popular music, and to rock and roll music in particular. The materials were collected by Hugo Keesing, a popular culture scholar and former professor of American Studies at the University of Maryland, and by Dr. Keesing's brother, Wouter Keesing. The bulk of the collection covers the period from the 1950s to the 1990s. Serials in the collection include Rolling Stone, Pulse, Discoveries, Goldmine, and many other national and regional music serials. Research and teaching materials include Dr. Keesing's University of Maryland syllabi and class notes, writings, auction lists, catalogues, and price guides. In addition to the books housed with the archival collection, there are an additional 3,000 books that are can be found through the University of Maryland catalog. The collection is broad ... ## Donald Ryder Dickey Photographic Collection, 1908-1962

72.7 linear ft. (139 boxes)

Struck by a serious heart condition during his senior year at Yale, Dickey returned to early interests in natural history and photography to occupy his mind and hands during the prolonged recovery period. By the time he had regained full strength in 1916, he had also formulated a new life goal: to establish a research center for study of the vertebrate zoology of Southern California, and to build a supporting collection of taxidermy specimens, photographs and books. This finding aid introduces the still photography part and some movie footage of that collection: over 4000 images captured by Dickey and his associates on various formats of film negatives, glass plates and slides. Each entry in the finding aid for the still photographs leads to a Dickey negative and a 5 x 8" reference card which contains a positive image, and identifying information. Three-hundred-and-fifty of the images, from 1911-1929, have been digitized and are viewable online at: ... Read More

36.0 Linear feet

An electrical engineer and senior editor for Aviation Week and Space Technology, Philip Klass began investigating UFOs in 1966 after participating in a panel discussion on the subject for the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE). From that time forward Klass has investigated UFO sightings in an effort to find a credible prosaic explanation, and became one of the most widely recognized UFO

"debunkers." A founding member of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal (CSICOP), serving on the Executive Council and the UFO subcommittee, Klass has authored seven books and numerous articles on UFOs, including the Skeptics UFO Newsletter in 1989. In the early 1970s, he became interested in space based weapons, and began collecting material related to the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) for a possible book. The Klass Collection relate to his forty-plus years of investigating UFO sightings, and includes correspondence with many of the ... Read More

Biographical Note

Charles Clayton Wylie was born in Idana, Kansas, June 18, 1886, and died in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, April 5, 1976. His degrees were B.A., Park College, Parkville, Missouri, 1908; M.A., Missouri, 1912; and Ph.D., Illinois, 1922. Wylie was at the U.S. Naval Observatory, 1913 -- 1919, and the University of Illinois, 1922 -- 1925, before teaching astronomy at the University of Iowa from 1925 onward. The astronomy program was then part of the mathematics department. His interest in meteor and meteorite sightings involved extensive public contact. Wylie wrote several books and many articles on astronomy.

My husband has acquired many pictures with written dates and times on the back of each photo. They are pictures taken by caterpillar company of Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey's Circus. in Baltimore where all of the circus employees were camped out. All photos are black and white.

Cornell University Library's Rare Books, Manuscripts and Archives

Cornell University Library offers rich special collections resources in several library units on the central Cornell campus in Ithaca, New York, as well as the Medical Center Archives at NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital/Weill Cornell Medical Center, located in New York City. Below is a description of the primary units within Cornell University Library that contain rare books, archives, manuscripts, and other special collections.

Cornell University's rare book and manuscript collections date from the founding of the University in 1865. Andrew Dickson White, Cornell's co-founder and first president, was a life-long book collector who believed that deep collections of primary research materials are central to scholarship and teaching. This founding principle continues to guide Cornell's collecting policies to this day.

The Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections, located in the Carl A. Kroch Library, is Cornell's principal repository of rare books, manuscripts and archival materials in the fields of history, literature, music, the arts, science, natural history, and technology. With more than 500,000 volumes and 70 million manuscripts, photographs, and other artifacts, the Rare and Manuscript Division features collections spanning 4,000 years, from cuneiform tablets to comic books. The Division is also home to Cornell University's Archives. Areas of significant collection strengths are described on the Division's Collections Overview page.

Also located in the Carl A. Kroch Library is the Division of Asia Collections, one of the richest gatherings of its kind in the United States. Featuring the Charles W. Wason Collection on East Asia, the John M. Echols Collection on Southeast Asia, and a strong collection on South Asia, most books in the Asia Collections are housed in open stacks and circulate to Cornell students and faculty. Associated rare books and archival materials are located in the Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections.

The Kheel Center for Labor-Management Documentation & Archives is located in the Martin P. Catherwood Library, part of Cornell's School of Industrial and Labor Relations (ILR). The Kheel Center offers 19,000 cubic feet of archival materials, along with photographs, oral histories, rare pamphlets, and related materials documenting the history of the workplace and labor relations.

The Albert R. Mann Library includes a rare book collection of approximately 10,000 volumes. Special strengths of note are the Phillips Beekeeping Collection, the Rice Poultry Collection, a significant collection of rare books on entomology, and a collection of 147 volumes on the language of flowers.

The Law Library contains a collection of rare and older books, along with special collections on Liberian law, several hundred trial pamphlets, 150 bound volumes of Nuremberg trial transcripts and documents on the Scottsboro trial. Other materials on the history of law are located in the Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections.

The Sidney Cox Library of Music and Dance features 18th- and 19th-century scores, score/parts sets, and related source materials. Highlights include first and early editions of operas, late 18th- and early 19th-century chamber music, librettos, and facsimile editions of 12th- through 20th-century sources. Other rare books and archival collections on the history of music are located in the Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections.

Located in New York City, The Medical Archives of The NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital/Weill Cornell Medical Center contains nearly 6000 linear feet of papers and records dating back to 1771. In addition to institutional records, the Medical Center Archives holds approximately 150 collections of papers and manuscripts from noted individuals associated with the institutions of the medical center.

Cupp, Easter Ellen 1904-1999

Easter Ellen Cupp Papers, 1899-1965

Bulk Dates: 1925-1946

Physical Description: 9 mss; oversize

Description: Abstract: The collection consists of papers of biological oceanographer Easter Ellen Cupp and largely documents her work at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography and her study of plankton during the period 1925-1946. The papers include memoranda and correspondence, files on diatoms and phytoplankton, Cupp's student notes and laboratory notebooks, a large collection of photographic prints, original drawings and a few photographic negatives. Many of the photographs and all of the negatives were taken personally by Cupp and illustrate her research, her friends, and her homes. The collection includes correspondence, drawings, and the original manuscript for Cupp's dissertation, A Critical Study of Certain Distinguishing Characters in Three Closely Allied Plankton Species of the Diatom Genus Nitzschia and their relationship to certain Environmental conditions, and her 1943 UC press monograph, Marine Plankton Diatoms of the West Coast of North America. Easter Ellen Cupp was the first American woman to receive a doctorate in oceanography. The collection includes only a small amount of documentation on her personal life, and no information on her career as a school teacher at Woodrow Wilson Junior High School in San Diego from 1946 until her retirement in 1967, where she taught science and English.

The collection also includes Cupp's prints of photographs taken by Eugene LaFond which depict Scripps and its staff, 1934-1936. Scripps Archives holds LaFond's papers including his original prints and negatives of his photographs in accession 86-07.

About

Our finding aids:

The finding aids on this website describe collections that are housed within the Special Collections department of Joyner Library at East Carolina University.

These documents are produced to give researchers an overview of a collection of papers, audio visual material, and more.

The finding aids are encoded in EAD, Version 2002. A large portion of our finding aids were originally outsourced to be encoded by the company Apex CoVantage. More information about that process can be read about in this article, "Outsourcing EAD: Guidelines for NCEAD Institutions considering an outsourcing solution for encoding legacy finding aids". Our University Archives department is using Archivists' Toolkit to manage their collections and to output their EAD.

This site:

Our EAD documents are indexed and made searchable with Ixiasoft's TEXTML database. Portions of these documents have also been added to an SQL database to help enable some of our "browsing" features.

The website utilizes Yahoo's YUI Grids CSS framework as well as the jQuery javascript library. For our container lists, we are using Jörn Zaefferer's jQuery Treeview plugin. For most of our icons, we are using Aleksandr Kozmenko's Led Icon Set v1.0.

Biographical History

Damon Francis Knight (1922–2002) was an award-winning American science fiction author, editor, and critic. His first story was published in 1941 in the science fiction pulp magazine Amazing Stories; over his career he has written novels, short stories, criticism and other non-fiction, and edited numerous anthologies. His best-known short story is "To Serve Man," which was adapted into a Twilight Zone episode.

Knight was a founding member of the Science Fiction and Fantasy Writers of America (SFWA), cofounder of the National Fantasy Fan Federation, cofounder of the Milford Writer's Workshop, and -- with his wife, author Kate Wilhelm -- cofounder of the Clarion Writers Workshop. These two highly-regarded writers' workshops have produced a remarkable number of award-winning writers, including Octavia Butler, Cory Doctorow, Vonda McIntyre, Kim Stanley Robinson, and Bruce Sterling.

Special Collections Research Center

Welcome

Located on the 6th floor of Syracuse University's Bird Library, the Special Collections Research Center (SCRC) advances scholarship and learning by collecting and preserving rare books, manuscripts, and other primary source materials. SCRC's collections span time and format, from cuneiform tablets to born digital electronic files. Collecting areas include activism and social reform, architecture and design, popular culture (cartoons, science fiction, and pulp literature), photography, and the history of recorded sound. SCRC is dedicated to connecting students, scholars, and the general public to its collections through exhibitions, lectures, and mini-seminars.

Marcel Breuer Digital Archive

The Marcel Breuer Digital Archive represents a collaborative effort headed by Syracuse University Libraries to digitize over 30,000 drawings, photographs, letters and other materials related to the early career of Marcel Breuer, one of the most influential architects and furniture designers of the 20th century.

Scope and Content

These records of the Astronomy Department consist of miscellaneous departmental project files and materials relating to research grant proposals submitted to various sponsoring agencies. The records span the dates 1949-1971, with the bulk from 1963-1969, the height of the United States Space Program.

The Northwestern University Project materials are arranged alphabetically by folder title and chronologically within each folder. The "projects" include those relating to observatories, procurements, conferences and events, all of special interest to or sponsored by the department and not part of routine departmental business.

The remaining records are Grant Proposals, arranged alphabetically by sponsoring agency and include: the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Science Foundation, the United States Air Force, the United States Army and the United States Navy. The proposals are in the form of descriptive papers of varying lengths, accompanied by a cover letter from a member of Northwestern's Astronomy Department. The paper details the nature of a given project and its possible value to the sponsor. Those proposals that were accepted and received funding have progress reports, correspondence and financial records, such as itemized budgets, filed with the project's descriptions.

The records of the Foundation for the Study of Cycles were removed from the collection. Photographs were removed and have been filed under the Astronomy Department in the University Archives Photographic Collection (see Separation Record).

Our Mission

The Special Libraries Division supports the overall mission of Northwestern University Library to provide information resources and services of the highest quality to sustain and enhance the University's teaching, research, professional, and performance programs.

The specific contributions of Special Libraries to the fulfillment of the mission of the Library as a whole include the creation and management of special, archival, and other curated collections in specific subject areas, uniting rich primary, original, rare, and unique materials in traditional and digital formats--among them text, manuscript, photograph, film, sound, and image--with strong and diverse collections of supporting published materials.

The Special Libraries Division is committed to meeting the needs of the Northwestern community by promoting its resources through all available means and through advocacy of the use of primary and special materials in research and teaching. Essential to the accomplishment of this mission is a robust digitization program which develops customized strategies and platforms to make our collections accessible digitally, worldwide and in perpetuity. Beyond Northwestern, the libraries and the archives of the Special Libraries Division also serve regional, national, and international constituencies in ways appropriate to each.

Collection Overview

Description

A collection of documents, publications, 35 mm and glass slides, and films chronicling Dr. Robert Rand's career as clinical neurosurgeon, researcher into innovative techniques of cancer treatments and microsurgery, and entrepreneur of medical equipment. Textual coverage of his extensive publications and lectures is sparse, except for the volumes of "Autobiography..." and "Academic History..." written by Rand. The visual material is extensive, however, consisting of circa 4500 35mm slides and 13 films. Some papers, mementos, and glass lantern slides belonging to Carl Wheeler Rand, M.D., father of Robert Rand and also an eminent neurosurgeon, are part of the collection.

Background

Robert Wheeler Rand was born in Los Angeles in 1923, son of Carl Wheeler Rand, M.D., a neurosurgeon, and Katherine Humphrey Rand, a former nurse. While a student at Harvard University he was drafted into the U.S. Navy V-12 Program, and under that program finished his pre-med studies at UCLA. Under orders he attended the University of Southern California School of Medicine as a Navel Cadet, and received his M.D. degree in 1947. In 1954, during the Korean War, Dr. Rand was recalled to naval service for two years.

Extent

5 cartons (7.5 linear ft.)2 boxes (1.0 linear ft.)2 flat boxes (3.0 linear ft.)2 card file boxes (0.8 linear ft.)1 small lantern slide box (0.25 linear ft.)

Restrictions

Property rights in the physical objects belong to the UCLA Biomedical Library. Literary rights, including copyright, are retained by the creators and their heirs. It is the responsibility of the researcher to determine who holds the copyright and pursue the copyright owner or his or her heir for permission to publish if the Biomedical Library does not hold the copyright.

Abstract

The youngest son of Charles Willson Peale, Titian Ramsay Peale was an accomplished artist, naturalist, and explorer. This collection of ink, pencil, and watercolor sketches, with some engravings and lithographs, forms the bulk of Peale's artistic output. The drawings can be grouped into several periods of artistic output: pre-1818 (primarily watercolors of butterflies); from the Stephen Harriman Long Expedition to the American west in 1819-1820, on which Peale traveled as zoologist (there are views of animals, Indians, landscapes, etc.); for his 1821-1838 interlude period, spent primarily on the east coast (insects, animals, moose hunting in Maine, his trip to South America in 1830-1831, coin and medal designs); his period as a naturalist on the worldwide U.S. Exploring Expedition under the command of Charles Wilkes, 1838-1842; from the 1849-1873 period when he sketched around Washington, D. C. and in New Jersey; and there are more than 160 undated sketches of: animal skulls and bones, birds, plants, fish, insects, landscapes, and zoology.

Background note

The youngest son of Charles Willson Peale was born in Philosophical Hall in November 1799 and given the name Titian Ramsay Peale, after a brother who had died in the yellow fever epidemic of 1798. Educated primarily at home, the young Titian Peale took advantage of his family connections to meet some of America's most prominent naturalists and to attend Caspar Wistar's lectures in anatomy at the University of Pennsylvania. A precocious boy, he was apprenticed out at 13 to learn machine manufacturing, but soon returned to take part in the family business, the Philadelphia Museum, learning how to preserve natural historical specimens and take part in management of the museum.

Having inherited his father's artistic, as well as scientific inclinations, Titian Peale began to contribute as an scientific illustrator while still in his teens. His first professional work of note, the six colored plates for the prospectus to Thomas Say's American Entomology (Philadelphia : Mitchell & Ames, 1817), won him a measure of acclaim and election to the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia. More importantly, it opened the door to further work in natural history. In December of that year, he joined Say, George Ord, and William Maclure on an expedition to the coastal regions of Georgia and Florida, and in 1819, his father helped arrange a spot for him as assistant naturalist on Stephen Harriman Long's expedition to the Rocky Mountains, a particularly productive venture. With Say, George Jessup, and Edwin James, among others, the Long party traveled up the Missouri River in the steamboat Western Engineer, before heading up west along the Platte to the front range of the Rockies. They are credited with being the first scientific surveyors of the region.

Upon returning to Philadelphia in 1821, Peale resumed work at the Philadelphia Museum, completing his field drawings and preparing the specimens collected on the expedition. His artistic output rapidly expanded. Peale executed several drawings of new American birds for Charles Lucien Bonaparte's supplement to Alexander Wilson's American Ornithology (Philadelphia, 1825-1833), and was hired by Say to prepare 54 colored plates for a three-volume American Entomology (Philadelphia: Philadelphia Museum, 1824-1828). He exhibited four watercolors at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in 1822, three from his Long Expedition work, and the fourth of butterflies.

Scientific exploration continued to be a focus for Peale throughout the 1820s and 1830s. In 1825, he returned to south Florida, and from the fall of 1830 through the spring of 1832, he toured the Magdalena River, Colombia, sketching and collecting huge numbers of butterflies and other specimens. His endeavors on these expeditions and his artistic work, more than his relatively few publications, won him election to the American Philosophical Society in 1833 at the young age of 34. The crowning achievement of his career as a naturalist, however, could well have come with his work as assistant naturalist aboard Charles Wilkes' United States Exploring Expedition (1838-1842). A circumnavigation of the globe that included stops at places as far flung as Fiji and the Philippines, the northwest Pacific Coast and California, the Wilkes Expedition was one of the most ambitious American expeditions of the mid-century.

Unfortunately for Peale, the Wilkes Expedition was to be a disappointment. A shipwreck in the mouth of the Columbia River cost him his most important specimens, and upon his return to Philadelphia, friction erupted between Peale and Wilkes over credit for the scientific discoveries and publication plans. Peale's Mammalia and Ornithology (Philadelphia: C. Sherman, 1848) appeared in a limited edition in 1848, but was later suppressed by Wilkes, with John Cassin's Mammalogy and Ornithology (Philadelphia: Lippincott, 1858) taking its place.

After these experiences and a period of difficulty supporting his family as an artist or naturalist, Peale took a position as an assistant examiner in the U.S. Patent Office in 1849. Though never free of the usual political intrigues associated with a governmental post, he remained in the Patent Office until his retirement in 1873.

During this last portion of his career, Peale continued painting, but took strong interest in photography, both in his work at the Patent Office and outside, and he became a founding member of the Amateur Photographic Exchange Club, the first club of its sort in the United States. His desire to produce a massively illustrated work on the butterflies of North America became his scientific focus, however it was never completed and never made it to press. Peale died in Philadelphia in 1885.

Scope and content

The Titian Ramsay Peale Sketches consist of about 550 pencil drawings, pen and ink sketches, watercolor paintings, and lithographs representing the bulk of Peale's artistic work throughout his career.

Beginning with a series of entomological sketches made for Thomas Say's prospectus when he was 17, the collection includes a particularly strong suite of sketches made on the Long Expedition (1819-1821), less thorough documentation of his expedition to South America (1830-1832) and as a member of the U.S. Exploring Expedition (1838-1842), and a few samples of his work for other naturalists, including Charles Lucien Bonaparte and Thomas Say, and for U.S. mint (1835-1836). There is relatively little to show for Peale's work after the end of the Wilkes Expedition, apart from a few sketches of bison from the 1870s and a series eight small oil paintings of Seven Mile Beach, New Jersey, 1873, and two oils of forest scenes.

Native American Images note : Seventeen original pencil & watercolor sketches by Titian Peale of Oto (Siouan) and Penobscot Indians as drawn during his natural history expeditions of 1819-1821, 1829. The images, incomplete to highly detailed, reflect bison hunts, a village along the Platt River, a bark canoe, and portraits. All have companion negatives and are referenced in the APS Freeman guide to the American Indian. Other sources include: Jessie J. Poesch's Titian Ramsey Peale, 1799-1885... (1961); The Cabinet of Natural History and American Rural Sports (1830-1834). Other images: ten photocopies of journal sketches from the Library of Congress Peale collection of Oto Indians, engravings of Benjamin West's painting Penn's treaty, and an engraving drawn by M.E.D. Brown from a Peale sketch included in the above mentioned The Cabinet of Natural History. Note: check both the Titian Ramsey Peale and Peale-Sellers collections.

With a few exceptions, the entirety of this collection has been digitized. Links to the digital versions of the sketches are included in the inventory. You may also view a gallery of all images here.

1. Sketches number 16-32 were originally housed in a sketchbook with a cover that read: "T.R. Peale's Entomological Sketch Book 1817. Dr. T. R. Peale, 1106 Girard Street Philadelphia."
2. Numbers 71-82 are sketches, with some tracings, of bison, probably executed for Peale's 1870s oil panoramas of the west (see Poesch, p.109 figs. 47, 48). They have been placed, arbitrarily, with the drawings of bison Peale executed while on the Long Expedition.
3. Numbers 178a-m are engravings from Thomas Say's American Entomology, 1824-1828. Plates 2,3,5,6,8,9,11-13,15-17, were all drawn by Peale. Plates 1,4,7,10 and 14 (not present) were not drawn by Peale and thus are "missing" from this series. Engravers include Francis Kearny, George Lang, James B. Longacre, Cornelius Tiebout.
4. Numbers 208-219 correspond to Peale's moose hunting trip to Maine in 1830. C.f. Cabinet of Natural History and American Rural Sports, 1830, pp. 19-23 ( Call no.: 505 CII vol. 1)
5. Numbers 233a-h, are lithographs of butterflies, moths, caterpillars, etc. (some colored) that may have been prepared for Peale's 1833 work Lepidoptera Americana (see bibliography in Poesch's biography). 233d-g, by Childs & Inman Press.
6. Numbers 300-312 are illustrations by an unidentified artist. Nos. 300, 303, and 304-306 are of prisoners, and may be sketches from the penal settlement on the island of Zamboanga, Philippines, which the Wilkes' Expedition visited on Friday, 28th of January, 1841. See, Poesch, p.201.

Arrangement

The sketches are arranged in chronological order, with undated work placed at the end.

Naval History Note

Includes a number of sketches made by Peale during the United States Exploring Expedition, which may be of interest to naval historians.

Early American History Note

This portion of the Peale Family Collection contains 221 Titian Ramsey Peale sketches. There is a detailed table of contents that describes each image. Most of the images depict elements of the natural world. There are many sketches of animals and landscapes. Some are in pencil, while others are in watercolor.

About the Library

Welcome to The Elmer E. Rasmuson Library of The University of Alaska Fairbanks (UAF). Containing more than 1.75 million items, we are the largest library in the state of Alaska. The library is comprised of the main library as well as the BioSciences Library, which is located in the Arctic Health Research building.

The Rasmuson Library has one of the world's finest collections of Alaska and Polar Regions (APR) materials including books, periodicals, photography, manuscripts, films, oral histories, rare books, and maps. The collections are centered on Alaska but include many items about the Circumpolar North and Antarctica. Subject bibliographers, archivists, anthropologists and historians on the APR staff are available for reference and research assistance.

The Library Catalog can be used to locate books, videos, government documents, and other materials owned by the UAF Rasmuson & BioSciences Libraries, the Keith Mather Geophysical Institute Library, and other libraries throughout the state.

Librarians and library staff assist students in using library resources and can give guidance on how to best locate research and information resources both in the library and beyond, regardless of format. As always, seeking out help and assistance from reference staff early in the research process can save many hours of frustrating work.

As part of UAF's core curriculum, undergraduate students must demonstrate their library proficiency either by completing LS101 (Library Information and Research) or by passing a competency exam. In LS101, students learn about library research, using the Internet, and about finding information in a variety of subject areas.

General Access

The entrance to The Bancroft Library is on the east side of the Main Library, facing the Sather Tower, more commonly known as the Campanile.

- Before entering the Reading Room, you must stow prohibited items in the lockers provided on the ground floor, located on the right-hand side of the east entrance. Pass the security guard station and proceed up one level by stairs or elevator to the Reading Room and Seminar Rooms (3rd floor).
- The Registration Desk is located on the left-hand side of the entrance to the Reference Center. You must stop here and register to use the library. Bancroft Library readers must be at least 18, or have graduated from high school. Current UCB photo identification is adequate for registration. Others must present two forms of identification (at least one containing a photograph).
- In the process of registering, you agree to abide by Bancroft regulations, as outlined in the "Reading Room Conditions of Use" leaflet available at the Registration Desk.
- Registration usually remains valid for two years.

Disabled Access

Visitors may enter The Bancroft Library via the ground-level front door on the east side of the Doe Annex.

- On-campus parking requires a UCB parking permit in addition to a state issued disabled parking placard. Please consult the UCB Parking and Transportation website for further information.

Biographical Sketch

Michael Ivanovitch Rostovtzeff was born in Kiev, Russia, on November 10, 1870. He taught ancient history at the University of Wisconsin, 1920-1925, and Yale University, 1925-1939, where he also served as director of archaeological research and curator of ancient art, 1939-1944. Rostovtzeff died in New Haven, Connecticut, on October 20, 1952. He studied at the University of Kiev and the University of Saint Petersburg, 1888-1892, and the University of Vienna and German Archaeological Institute in Rome, 1895-1898. Rostovtzeff received his M.A. and Ph.D in Classical Philology from Saint Petersburg in 1899 and 1903. As an international scholar, Rostovtzeff travelled extensively and published works in several languages, including Greek, French and English. His works on the Dura Europos excavations are extensive. Rostovtzeff also served as president of the American Historical Association in 1935. He married Sophie Michailovna in Saint Petersburg, Russia, on May 8, 1901.

Description of the Papers

The Mikhail I. Rostovtzeff Papers document the professional career of Mikhail I. Rostovtzeff, an archaeologist, professor of ancient history, and director of archaeological studies at Yale University, The Rostovtzeff Papers consist of thirteen and one-quarter linear feet of material arranged in thirty-four boxes. Rostovtzeff's manuscripts, notes, lectures, photographs, and miscellanea have span dates of 1914-1952, with much of the material undated. Correspondence with academic colleagues, family members, and others is notably absent from the Rostovtzeff Papers.

The Rostovtzeff Papers are arranged in four series: I. Manuscripts and Notes 1922-1944. II. Photographs ca. 1914-1938. III. Lectures, 1920-1944. IV. Writings and Miscellanea, 1914-1952.

Series I, MANUSCRIPTS AND NOTES, consists of handwritten and typescript drafts and research information for many of Rostovtzeff's books. These materials were written in a variety of languages, including English, French, and Greek. The series is arranged in the following sections: Hellenistic period - manuscripts, Hellenistic period - notes, Hellenistic period - Social and Economic History, and General.

Hellenistic period - manuscripts contains a group of article or chapter-length essays on several aspects of the Hellenistic period in Greek culture, which dates from the empires of Alexander the Great, the Antigonids, the Seleucids, and the Ptolemies until the eastern conquests of Rome. The writings are heavily annotated and include essays on "The Hellenistic World and Its Economic Development" (folders 3-4) and "The Mentality of the Hellenistic World and the Afterlife " (folder 6). The numerous drafts and revision of these manuscripts suggest that multiple uses of the material—in books, articles, lectures, and other pursuits—were possible.

Hellenistic period - notes is a four box section (boxes 2-5) of research information Rostovtzeff accumulated in the course of his professional career. Notes on the many nations and nation-states active during the period are present, including Egypt (folders 19-21), Italy (folder 25), Macedonia (folder 26), the Ptolemaic empire (folders 35-41), and the Seleucid empire (folders 43-45). The bulk of these notes are in foreign languages and appear to be information Rostovtzeff culled from printed sources during his literary research.

Hellenistic period - Social and Economic History contains Rostovtzeff's drafts and notes for one of his major literary works, Social and Economic History of the Hellenistic World, published in 1941. Folders sixty-four through seventy-one contain information relating to illustrations (plates) used in the volume. Rostovtzeff's collection of photographs for this work is arranged in Series II.

General contains an alphabetical arrangement of topical files on such subjects as: China, Decorative wall painting, Dura Europos, Egypt, Parthia, Roman Empire, Samartian period, Scythia, Seleucid Babylonia, and Social and Economic History of the Roman Empire.

Series II, PHOTOGRAPHS, is, arranged in two components: Section A and Section B. This maintains the original order of the material. Each section contains photographs of ancient antiquities, art, buildings, coins, drawings, excavations, jewels, objects, and miscellanea. The bulk of these are professional photographs of artifacts as they would appear in a museum setting. Rostovtzeff's notes on particular photographs are arranged with these materials. Cross-reference citations for those topics of common occurrence in Section A and Section B are provided.

Photographs in this series are arranged under headings similar to those used in Series I. Thus, files for the Hellenistic period (Section A, folders 18-37) contain photographs of items from that era and correspond to Rostovtzeff's manuscripts and notes on the topic arranged in Series I. The largest groups of photographs in this series are: Italy, Rome (folders 44-49), Roman Empire (folders 63-68), Social and Economic History of the Hellenistic World (folders 73-75), and Russia (folders 128-136). Files for Social and Economic History of the Roman Empire. contain prints of photographs published and considered for publication in that volume (See also: Series I, folders 160-167).

Series III, LECTURES, contains a collection of Rostovtzeff's academic and public lectures [ca. 1920-1944]. Lectures from the University of Wisconsin (folders 165-168) date from 1920-1924. Course outlines and syllabi are included with this material. The focus of these lectures is on ancient history, especially the Roman empire and South Russia.

Lectures arranged under the heading "Yale University and other institutions" (folders 169-195) date from 1925-1944, n.d., and include a wide range of historical and archaeological topics. Among the popular topics for lectures are: the Orient, Greece, Iran and Iranian art, decorative arts, and Dura Europos. A series of notes for eight lectures delivered at the Norwegian Academy of Science in Oslo (1928) are also arranged in this series (folder 175). A small group of "Public Lectures" apparently delivered outside the academic community is arranged in box thirty-one.

Series IV, WRITINGS AND MISCELLLANEA contains a group of writings by Rostovtzeff and others. These materials do not appear to relate directly to his published volumes. Miscellaneous articles, bibliographic notes, and book reviews are arranged in this series (folders 200-207). Addition files in this series include writings on Dura Europos (folders 211-213), Iran (folders 219-220), the Near East (folders 234-235), and Palmyra (folder 236).

The Rostovtzeff Papers were donated to Yale University by Mikhail I. Rostovtzeff in 1942 and 1947. Other collections known to contain material by or about Mikhail I. Rostovtzeff include: Ellsworth Huntington Papers (Mss. Gr. No. 1), Wallace Notestein Papers (Mss. Gr. No. 544), and Clarence W. Mendell (Mss. Gr. No. 799).

The Yale Art Gallery houses the records of Dura Europos, an archaeological expedition which Rostovtzeff directed from 1928-1938.

Collection Overview

Description

This album contains 29 black and white photographs likely taken in the first decade of the 20th century by the photographers Schattman, Swenson and other unidentified photographers. One photograph is dated 1900. The views are of Santa Catalina Island located 27 miles offshore southwest of Wilmington, near Los Angeles, California. The island is one of four Catalina Islands and is part of Los Angeles County. The island is 21 miles long and varies in width up to 8 miles with mountains as high as 2,100 feet. The town of Avalon was developed for tourists by William Wrigley Jr. and his son, two of several private owners of Santa Catalina.

Interviews

3 interviews. Audiotapes, transcripts, and collateral materials.

Physical Location

Interviews are housed in Weatherly Hall North, Room 122. Copies are also housed at the Indiana University Archives in Herman B Wells Library E460. For other locations housing the interviews from this project, please contact the Center for the Study of History and Memory office.

Language

Materials are in English

Abstract

This collection primarily covers Roush's time spent as United States Representative (D) from the 5th District of Indiana between 1959 and 1969, though his education and history prior to national politics are mentioned. Major topics of discussion include his campaigns, work on the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore and the flood control reservoirs in northern Indiana, as well as his position on the Committee on Science and Astronautics.

Scope and Content Note

This collection contains three interviews from 1969, lasting 70, 85, and 225 minutes respectively. All interviews consist of audiotapes and typed transcripts.

Administrative Information

Acquisition Information

Oral history interviews conducted by the Indiana University Center for the Study of History and Memory from 1968 to the present, with particular focus on the history of twentieth-century America and the Midwest.

Usage Restrictions

The archive of the Center for the Study of History and Memory at Indiana University is open to the use of researchers. Copies of transcript pages are available only when such copies are permitted by the deed of gift signed by the interviewee. Scholars must honor any restrictions the interviewee placed on the use of the interview. Since some of our earlier (pre-computer) transcripts do not exist in final form, any editing marks in a transcript (deletions, additions, corrections) are to be quoted as marked. Tapes may not be copied for patrons unless the deed of gift permits it, and a transcript is unavailable for that interview. The same rules of use that apply to a transcript apply to the taped interview. Interviews may not be reproduced in full for any public use, but excerpted quotes may be used as long as researchers fully cite the data in their research, including accession number, interview date, interviewee's and interviewer's name, and page(s).

Welcome to Archives Online at Indiana University

This site is a portal for accessing descriptions of Special Collections and Archives - ones chiefly containing materials other than books - from libraries, archives, and other units at Indiana University Bloomington and from other institutions around the state of Indiana.

As descriptions of items in such collections, such as correspondence, diaries, photographs, and audiovisual materials, do not generally appear in IUCAT (IU's online catalog), Archives Online at IU offers access to these detailed collection guides to assist you in determining the content of a collection and whether it will fulfill your research needs. Archives Online at IU includes a variety of different types of collection descriptions (also called finding aids) with various levels of detail. In addition, collection guides may include links to digital images of items in the collections. Some collections are digitized entirely; others only partially, and some not at all.

Archives Online at IU guides also provide specific contact information for the institution or unit that maintains the resources. This will allow you to connect with archivists, librarians and curators in order to learn more about a collection and how to gain physical access to the materials.

Technical Information

Collection descriptions in Archives Online at IU are encoded according to the Encoded Archival Description (EAD) format. For more information about EAD activities at Indiana University's Digital Library Program (DLP) and documentation about the process used to encode collection descriptions at IU, visit the EAD page of the DLP website.

Online collection descriptions are also available from The IUPUI University Library's Ruth Lilly Special Collections & Archives.

GRAND RAPIDS PUBLIC LIBRARY

Finding Aid for the

Grand Rapids Public Library Michigan Room
Copy Photographs Collection

Collection #185

October 2009 version

Abstract

The Grand Rapids Public Library Michigan Room Copy Photos Collection contains a variety of images copied from various unidentified sources. In some cases the image is unique to the GRPL archival collections, and only found in this collection. In numerous other cases, the image represents a photographic reference copy of an image believed to be published in a book. In other cases, the image in this collection duplicates an image found in one or more of the other GRPL archival collections. This redundancy is desirable for preservation purposes, in case something happens to the other object. But, the presence of the image in another collection often indicates a different context or use for the image, such as in an exhibit on a specific topic, or as part of a family, business or organizational archive. This duplication may mean that researchers will want to look at all representations of the image throughout the collections, before choosing one version which may have the best reproduction quality for their particular use. For assistance in locating other possible versions of the image, see GRHSC Staff. The positive image in this collection is usually just a small contact print, and sometimes hard to visually decipher. In most cases, a copy negative is available, for the creation of a traditional photographic print. Staff continue to research the images in this collection to determine the originating source. Source information is gradually being added to the finding aid, when known.

The “Michigan Room” is a former name of the Grand Rapids History & Special Collections, at the Grand Rapids Public Library, Michigan, which holds this collection. Images focus on Grand Rapids and West Michigan views. Details of military actions in which Grand Rapids people took part, such as the Civil War, Mexican War and World War II, are included. Of note are the images of Grand Rapids people, scenes from Ada and Cascade, and a series of 1920s-era billboards. Beyond this, the collection is eclectic in its subject matter.

Collection #: 185

Accession #: Various & unknown 00.000. 1986.502.

Reproduction Note

Copyright law needs to be observed in the use of reproductions of these images, just as with any other image in any other collection.

Some of the photos included here may have a stamp indicating Grand Rapids Press as the rights owner. Requests for copies of those photos should be placed directly with the Grand Rapids Press.

History

Copy photography is the practice of reproducing, in some form, another later generation of an image. Each generation distant from the original is usually of poorer quality.

Copy photograph prints are those which are produced in a positive view on photographic paper, either through a traditional film chemical development process, or through a digital reproduction process. Copy photos are different from photocopies in the nature of the paper and the technology to produce the copies, with the photographs generally still being of better quality. However, there are bad copy photos on good or bad paper, produced by traditional or digital means, as well as good quality laser or digital photocopies on plain paper.

Copy negatives are those new generation negatives produced from an existing photograph. They have the advantage of usually being made on film stock which has not yet had time to deteriorate. However, they will usually capture in the new negative all of the flaws of the existing photograph from which the new negative is made.

Overall, the main factor to consider about a copy photo or copy negative is that it is a later generation reproduction of variable quality of an earlier image. The quality of the copied image depends upon the physical condition of the original from which the copy is made. Beyond this are the skills of the original photographer, of the copy photographer, and quality of the reproduction both in terms of the way it is made as well as the paper, ink and equipment used.

This copy photo Coll. 185 contains copy photos generally of poorer quality. In most cases, the photo prints in this collection are “contact prints”. This means that the photograph has been produced directly from the image without any adjustment or “set up”. The main clue to this type of print is often the size matching the negative itself, and/or the dark edges around the image.

The second clue to a poorer quality image is that many of the images appear to have been taken from photographing the image which is printed in a publication, or in a frame, or with other ancillary evidence in the visual image to show that a copy is being made from an existing object. Archival file records may sometime also document the progress of later reproductions back to the original image when first taken. Photographic copies of plates from books, from newspaper or magazine page, or of another graphic, usually do not have the quality of an actual photograph, though it depends upon the quality and time period of the printed publication. Skill operators of Adobe Photoshop can sometimes improve an image digitally before creating a new version. But, any copy of an image is limited by the quality of the original, and not digitally improved versions of images are found in Coll. 185.

It is believed that photographs were first created in Grand Rapids in the 1850's. See the James Keeney Photograph Album, Coll. No. 250, which may be the earliest known local images in the GRPL Archives. Engraving and lithography processes were used to reproduce images in publication. For those locally produced publications, the library may have an occasional original photograph, which corresponds to the published image.

With the 20th century, photography and publishing were both more widely available, and this is reflected in the increase in the number of overall images, as well as the various formats in which one particular image may be found. Copyright laws provides for the protection of the owner rights for the use of the image, making some distinction between published & unpublished images in the implementation of the laws. However, many images produced before 1923 are now considered to be in the public domain, and generally available for use for others. It appears that this was copyright factor was a guiding determination as to what might be included in this collection. However, there are images which may still be protected by copyright in this collection, although no information on the source of the original image has been given, in order to assist in seeking permissions.

Scope and Content

This collection contains a variety of images with no overall purpose other than the additional documentation of Grand Rapids and West Michigan views, or the re-creation of an existing image in a different form. Included are military images from Civil War, Mexican War and World War II eras. Of note are the images of Grand Rapids people, scenes from Ada and Cascade, and a series of 1920s-era billboards.

There is no documentation of the source of the image, and often none of the contents from the source it was taken. This means that while it is generally presumed that most of these images are probably in the public domain, there is little information other than the visual clues to detect this. Also, there is no cross reference back to the source from which the image was captured, to find out more information about the image or the original creator of the image, or the context of its use in a publication. Where source information has been discovered or is know from research or knowledge of the GRPL archival collections, a reference may now have been added with the description of the image. However, this may not reference the specific object from which the copy image was created.

There have also been many problems discovered and corrected in the descriptive processing of the images in this collection. Items originally listed in the finding aid have not been found or found in other collections. Items listed a being in the collection in the copy negative database have not actually been found in the collection, and may or may not have been located in another collection. Some items may be copies of photographs in another GRPL archival collection, with the location of an earlier better version still to be discovered. Much time has been spent to create an accurate finding aid for what actually exists now within the collection, though the whereabouts of the item previously described, but not found, is still not known.

Historical Note

The Utah State University Graduate Student Fieldwork Collection consists of USU graduate student fieldwork projects from 1984 to the present. The collection continues to grow.

Content Description

The Utah State University Student Fieldwork Collection: GRAD consists of approximately 200 projects collected by USU graduate students in fulfillment of graded credit requirements for the Folklore Fieldwork course. Most items include title page, essay, cassette-taped oral interview, tape transcription, collector and informant release form(s), and some contain photographs and/or slides. The projects examine a wide variety of topics ranging from specific genres (like jokes, legends, and belief) to area interests (such as local and regional history, occupational folklore and history, and family folklore). Items are numbered by the year the student submitted the project to their instructor and the individual number of the item. For example, FOLK COLL 8a: GRAD 97-02, means that the item was submitted in 1997 and it is item 2 in that year. The items are stored in archival boxes. The materials do NOT circulate. Click for information on folklore collecting assignments for folklore classes, including examples.

Use of the Collection

☐ Details

0.68 cubic feet (3 containers)

These records are open for research.

The records document the history and activities of this group. They include general information about the group, such as newsclippings and pamphlets. The largest part of the collection documents the Harvard-Boston Aero Meets of 1910 and 1911: these records include programs, souvenirs, and photographs. Such records document not only the early history of the Harvard Aeronautical Society, but also document the early years of international aviation; many of the programs and souvenirs include biographies and photographs of early aviators and aeroplanes.

See also General information by and about the Harvard Flying Club, HUD 3400, for information about a later aeronautical society at Harvard.

ABOUT

- General
- Amenities

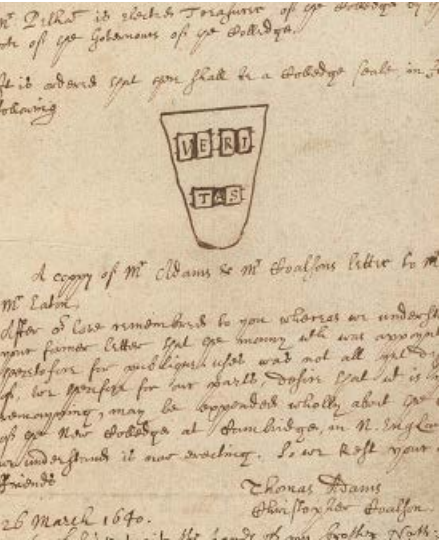

The Harvard University Archives is the oldest and one of the largest institutional academic archives in the nation.

The Harvard University Archives collects, organizes, preserves and provides access to a comprehensive record of more than 375 years of life at Harvard. From 17th and 18th century diaries and scientific observations to 21st century web sites, the Harvard University Archives' collections comprise over 51,000 feet of University records and related historical materials.

This activity is tied integrally to records management services for Harvard University staff, administrators and faculty. Records management staff provide guidance and resources for all stages in the records and information lifecycle, from creating records through destruction of non-permanent records or transfer of permanent records to the Harvard University Archives.

COLLECTIONS

Overview

The Harvard University Archives collects records (paper, visual and electronic), papers and manuscripts, publications, and other historical materials documenting the intellectual, cultural, administrative and social life of Harvard University from the 17th century to the present. The Archives serves as the principal repository for the institutional records of the University and faculty archives, including papers and manuscripts. The Archives seeks to document the faculty, students and academic programs at the University, as well as Harvard's central administration, its libraries, museums, research centers and affiliated organizations.

☐ Details

2 boxes (1.0 linear ft.)

Title constructed by cataloger.

Transferred from the UCLA Herbarium and Botanical Gardens, ca. 1979.

Collection is open for research; advance notification is required: COLLECTION IS STORED OFF-SITE.

The collection contains 123 numbered and 1 unnumbered black and white drawings (on illustration board 23 x 17 to 25 x 20 cm.) by Mary V. Hood of wildflowers in Yosemite National Park, California. Illustrations were published at least twice: (1) Beatty, M.E. et al. "101 wildflowers of Yosemite," in: Yosemite nature notes. Yosemite: Yosemite Natural History Association Press, v. 17, no. 6, pp. 75-112, June, 1938 (101 illustrations); and (2) Hood, Mary and A. William Hood. Yosemite wildflowers and their stories: histories, illustrations, locations. Yosemite: Flying Spur Press, 1969 (125 illustrations). List of drawings prepared by Tina Kasbeer, UCLA Herbarium, in 1979.

Property rights in the physical objects belong to the UCLA Biomedical Library. Literary rights, including copyright, are retained by the creators and their heirs. It is the responsibility of the researcher to determine who holds the copyright and pursue the copyright owner or his or her heir for permission to publish if the Biomedical Library does not hold the copyright.

Captions on verso of each drawing are in English.

☐ Details

1 v. (29 leaves) : ill. ; 36 cm.

Bound in decorated cloth boards; three seals on top board with flying bird encircled by the words "In friendship's name;" very brittle paper.

Scans and slides of this item are available, and the scans must be viewed before researchers will be granted access to the original album.

An anonymous album of collage interiors featuring period engravings of furnishings. Recreates a variety of rooms: parlors, bedrooms, dining rooms, kitchens, etc. Album creator combined published engravings of furniture and objects with patterned wallpaper, tissue paper, cellophane, and printed pictures. Laid in near the front are unused clippings, figures to use as paper dolls, and extra cut pictures and cellophane. Last few pages contain pencil drawings of building exteriors.

Library Collection

The Collection of Printed Books and Periodicals

The Collection of Printed Books and Periodicals contains more than 100,000 volumes in open stacks adjacent to the main reading room and about 20,000 rare American and European imprints in closed stacks. The collection focuses on the documentation of American household goods and their use, decorative arts and design, and the material culture of everyday life in America from the 17th through the early 20th centuries.

The holdings of rare books are particularly strong in architecture and design books; travel narratives; American painting and graphics; children's books; descriptions of craft techniques; women's magazines and the literature of domestic economy and etiquette; periodicals that promote or describe lifestyles; and city directories and guidebooks. A sizable portion of the rare book collection offers insights into the European antecedents that informed American taste and design. American and British manufacturers' and retailers' trade catalogs provide an invaluable record of product designs, technological developments, and marketing strategies.

In addition to monographs, rare books, serials, and trade catalogs, the Collection of Printed Books and Periodicals offers currently published periodicals as well as auction and exhibition catalogues.

The Joseph Downs Collection of Manuscripts and Printed Ephemera

Named for Winterthur's first curator, the Downs Collection contains about 3,000 record groups. Downs consists almost exclusively of primary research materials, including personal and business accounts in the form of diaries, family papers, tax records, and letter books of craftspeople and merchants. In addition, the Downs Collection contains drawings (architectural, artistic, and amateur); wills and household inventories; children's toys and games; scrapbooks and journals; and fabric swatch books. An extensive microform collection, including copies of material owned by other public repositories and private individuals, supplements the manuscript holdings.

An important complement to the Downs Collection is the Edward Deming Andrews Memorial Shaker Collection, named to honor America's pioneer Shaker scholar. The collection features manuscripts, books, and visual materials related to the Shakers as well as the research archives compiled by Dr. Andrews and his wife, Faith.

The Visual Resources Collection

Visual Resources is made up of tens of thousands of photographs in the Decorative Arts Photographic Collection (DAPC) and the Photographic Index of American Art and Design (PIAAD).

DAPC is a unique research resource of photographs of decorative arts objects made and used in America prior to 1920 and now located in public and private collections throughout the United States and England. DAPC documents the work of individual craftsmen, workshops, and manufactories. Images of furniture and silver are particular strengths. Indexes in the collection provide basic biographical and bibliographical information on craft workers compiled from newspaper advertisements, city directories, and major secondary sources.

PIAAD is the fine arts counterpart to DAPC. It contains photographs of American paintings, sculpture, graphic arts, drawings, Fraktur, gravestones, and architecture.

The Winterthur Archives

The Archives records the creation and development of Winterthur as a private estate and a public museum. The archives includes papers relating to Winterthur compiled by Henry Francis du Pont and his immediate family, as well as the records of Winterthur Farms and administrative documents of the museum.

The Archives documents a period of collecting and patronage, evolving attitudes toward museum display rooms in the 20th century, and aspects of early 20th-century taste in landscape design. Materials include autochrome views of the Winterthur garden and landscape, architectural drawings reflecting the development of Winterthur and its ultimate transition from home to public museum, and H. F. du Pont's correspondence with antiques dealers from the 1920s to 1969, the year he died.

The Records of An Unbroken Friendship but the Mortal Severance, 1907-24.

Collection Overview

Description

The Records of an Unbroken Friendship but the Mortal Severance album contains approximately 410 photographs apparently created as a memorial to Taizo Kato, a Japanese-American who died in 1924 at the age of 36. The album title implies that it was compiled by one or more of Kato's friends. The collection also contains circa 30 loose photographs and other items and one photographic panorama.

Extent

Circa 410 photographs of various sizes, compiled in album measuring 24 x 38 cm.; circa 30 loose items (photographic prints, drivers licenses, U.S. registration cards) of various sizes; 1 panorama photograph, 26 x 123 cm. 80 digital objects

Abstract:
Papers of a Broadway set designer. The majority of the shows for which Johnson designed the stage sets and lighting during the 1920's, 1930's, and 1940's are represented only by programs and clippings but for later projects such as Night Life (1962) and several summer stock productions of Showboat during the 1950's there are technical notes, blueprints, light plots, photographs, and finished and preliminary sketches. There are similar materials for designs done for Radio City Music Hall during the 1950's, the New York World's fairs of 1939 and 1964, nightclubs and other productions of Billy Rose, and numerous automobile trade shows. For productions unsuccessfully promoted by Johnson during the 1950's such as plays based on Fernand Crommelynck's Le Cocu Magnifique, the history of the Lambs Club, and the stories of Helen Green there are scripts, lyrics, production notes, and research materials. Additional notes and correspondence with governmental leaders such as Frank

Farley and James H.J. Tate relates to the American Flotilla, a floating extravaganza about American history, that Johnson attempted to promote during the 1960's. Personal papers contain family correspondence; detailed medical information; papers about travel, inventions (especially a toy theatre), and the career of his wife Dianne Valvo, a hairdresser and wig expert. Additional documentation pertains to his research and collecting in the areas of theatrical history.

Description

Admiral Small, a native of Elizabeth City, North Carolina, is a member of the U.S. Naval Academy Class of 1938. During his first interview, Admiral Small recounts his background in North Carolina and his experiences at the Naval Academy. He comments on service in the USS PORTLAND stationed in Long Beach, California, before volunteering for submarine school in 1940. He describes duty in the World War I vintage submarine R-3 in the Panama Canal Zone and his reassignment to the new USS FLYING FISH in September 1941. For World War II Admiral Small reports on spotting a German submarine off South America, an attack upon the FLYING FISH by an American plane, and the problem of attacking Japanese ships with defective torpedoes. He also describes his eight submarine patrols in the Pacific, including encounters near the Truk Islands, Taiwan, the Palau Islands, and off China. He describes being depth-charged, chasing a convoy for seventy-two hours, a battery explosion in one of their torpedo tubes, and using ten torpedoes to sink a tanker. After commenting on assignment to new construction aboard the USS ICEFISH, he tells of being part of a wolfpack of three subs off the Philippine Islands, suffering depth charge attacks, taking command of the USS BATFISH, and being bombed by friendly fire.

During his second session, Admiral Small examines his post-World War II career, including teaching ordnance and

Collection Overview

Description

The Paul Outerbridge papers document the American photographer's artistic and professional life from his earliest art studies in 1915 through his varied career as an innovator in advertising photography, a pioneer in color photography, and a freelance writer. The archive includes correspondence, notebooks and diaries, typescripts, drawings and sketches, business records, scrapbooks, a portfolio, autobiographical and biographical statements, and intermittent clippings and ephemera.

Background

American photographer Paul Outerbridge (1896-1958) was born in New York City. He studied anatomy and aesthetics at the Art Students' League of New York from 1915 to 1917 while working as a theatrical designer and illustrator, among other jobs. In 1917 he joined the Canadian Royal Flying Corps. Discharged after a minor crash, Outerbridge enlisted in the United States Army and gained his first photographic experience documenting materials and operations for the army at a lumber camp in Oregon. In 1921 he enrolled at the Clarence H. White School of Photography, New York, where he studied with White and Max Weber. Although he did not complete the program at the White School, Outerbridge demonstrated such proficiency that he was soon invited to teach there. His first published photograph appeared in Vogue in 1922, the same year he became acquainted with Alfred Stieglitz and studied sculpture with Alexander Archipenko.

Publication information: 2008.

1 videodisc (NTSC) (70 min.) : sd., col. ; 4 3/4 in.

Speaker: David Helfand.

Recorded as part of the Works & process performance series at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York, on Mar. 2, 2008.

David Helfand, chair of Columbia University's Astronomy Department, delivers a slide lecture on cosmology. This recording shows only the slides and videos, not the speaker. Slides include photographs taken by the Hubble space telescope and computer simulations of galaxies colliding. Helfand begins by speaking about how astronomers gather information; the nature of light (wavelength and velocity), the extremely limited portion of light that human eyes are capable of seeing, and how light traveling from great distances reveals the past. Helfand then discusses the structure of the solar system, the distances between objects in space, the life cycles of stars and galaxies, and the nature of space and time. The lecture is followed by a question-and-answer period, in which Helfand responds to questions about wormholes in space, the big bang theory, black holes and dark matter, the extent of the universe and possibility of multiple universes.

Biographical Note

Otto Oscar Binder (1911-1974) began writing science fiction with his brother Earl under the pen name Eando Binder and was first published in 1932 He kept the name Eando after Earl retired from writing in 1936. By 1935 they had produced 450,000 words, and by 1938, according to S-F authority Sam

Moskowitz, "Eando Binder had become one of the three most popular writers in the field." His popularity reached its height with his introduction of Adam Link, a very different robot conceptualization. Binder had a talent for plotting, and was credited with being one of the more imaginative writers of the period. He largely left the S-F field in the 1940s to write continuities for the Captain Marvel comic book series, which he did for 17 years. He made a brief and largely unsuccessful attempt to return to science fiction writing in the early 1950s. His last science fiction appearance was Mankind: Child of the Stars, with Max Hugh Flindt. Binder also wrote more than 300 nonfiction articles, and wrote extensively on unidentified flying objects.

Otto Binder also wrote under the names John Coleridge, Dean D. O'Brien, Gordon A. Giles, Ione (or Ian) Frances Turek, and may have written under the house name Will Garth. He was editor of two space magazines, Space World, and Jets and Rockets.

Scope and Content Note

The archive consists of typescripts of 8 novels and 18 short stories, including: Memoirs of a Nobody, Get Off My World, Secret of the Saucers, The Mind from Outer Space, Adam Link-Robot, The Secret of the Red Spot, The Mighty Ones, and The Double Man---most of these with author's corrections and accompanying carbons. Among short story typescripts are "No More BEMs [Bug-Eyed Monsters]", "Prison Moon", "Forfeit", "The Perfect Escape", "Giants of Anarchy", The Chained Galaxy, "Minus Man", The Timeless Trap, "The Second Life", "When Superminds Clash", Where Eternity Ends, "Jovian Journey" and "The Immortal Twelve." Most are corrected, with carbons and, in some cases, tearsheets from the magazines in which the stories initially appeared, corrected and with continuation sheets for expansion into full-length books. In addition, there are close to 300 business and personal letters, photographs and postcards, and other files including broadcasting projects, non-fiction articles, letters and critiques from literary agents and publishers, material on Space World, and several folders of unfinished manuscripts. Unusual "picture cards" featuring text and photographs on postcards are included.

Excluding duplicate carbons, letters, etc., there are ca. 2,300 pp of typescript, ca. 575,000 words. Mostly 11 x 8-1/2 inches. Many of Binder's letters are on letters received or on the backs of manuscript or script fragments.

Binder bequeathed this material to Sam Moskowitz, from whose estate it was obtained.

SUMMARY: (Excluding duplicate carbons, correspondence, etc.) 8 Novels, 18 Short stories, Ca. 2,300 pages of typescript, Ca. 575,000 words.

Editorial correspondence, undated. Letter, Walt Disney's Man in Space: Satellites. Sticker identifies this as "Walt Disney Space Documentary. Adaptation of movie version into comics format by Otto O. Binder." Letter, Samuel Mines to Otto Binder, on meeting Binder, rejection note for "Old Stars Never Die" and a suggestion for placement, Letter, Otto Binder to Sam (Moskowitz), submitting "Prison Moon," noting his comics career with Standard, that has "always kept me in bread-and-butter." Cites "Weird Fantasy" and "Weird Science" comics as examples of how he has continued "thinking of scif plots." Letter, Otto Binder to Sam (Moskowitz), suggesting Moskowitz consider a new magazine aimed at the juvenile (9-14) market, and detailing his reasons for thinking this is a good idea. He cites total national comics sales of "60 million a month," and notes that "kids are a terrific and never-ending market for the things they like." 2 leaves, Letter, Sam Moskowitz to Otto Binder, rejecting "Prison Moon" with detailed reasons. Moskowitz details the kind of stories he wants for the magazine. Recommends Charles Darwin's (grandson of Charles Darwin) "After a Million Years" as "full of plot ideas," Letter, Sam Moskowitz to Otto Binder, conditionally accepting "The Time Capsule" for publication, with an attached office memo dated 10-24-1952 detailing five rewrite requirements, Letter, Sam Moskowitz to Otto Binder, on "The Time Capsule" rewrite, accepting the story. Notes some legalities, defines the sale as "magazine rights only." Comments on and rejects "Space is so Empty." Comments on The Magazine of Fantasy and Science Fiction, notes the kind of stories his new magazine seeks. 2 leaves, Letter, Otto Binder to Anthony Boucher, requesting a copy of the French edition of "A Warning to the Furious." Letter, J. Francis McComas to Otto Binder, rejecting "Man in the Moons," and "Where is Thy Sting?" Binder's note in pencil "New ending?" and "Type up" "Star Search." An attached reply, dated August 11, 1953, from Binder to McComas suggests two different endings for "Man in the Moons." 30 July 1953. Letter, J. Francis McComas to Otto Binder, preferring the second suggested ending for "Man in the Moons," asking for a rewrite with some additional changes, with a reply from Binder dated August 24, 1953, on "Man in the Moons" and commenting on "Captain Marvel." 17 August 1953. Letter, Sam Moskowitz to Otto Binder, requesting a photograph, and rejecting a Binder submission (unidentified), with a PPS noting a Paul Cooper illustration for a Binder story scheduled for publication. 2 leaves, 17 November 1952. Letter, Sam Moskowitz to Otto Binder, rejecting "Old Stars Never Die," on the basis of questionable science. Notes strengths of the story, and that a "complete and drastic rewrite" might save it, but does not request a rewrite. 2 leaves, 28 November 1952. Letter, Sam Moskowitz to Otto Binder, accepting "Calling All Galaxies" with needed changes marked on the manuscript. Suggests some writing tips, and notes pay schedule for the story, 21 January 1953. Letter, Sam Moskowitz to Otto Binder, with notes about "Science Fiction, Jan. 1933" and "Science Fiction, Vol. 1, No.

5" containing a biographical sketch of Jerome Seigel, Undated. Note, re Siegel-"SCHunter?" with "Forest" Ackerman's address, undated. Letter, George Provol to Otto Binder, requesting titles and publishing sources of any teenage comics prior to 1940, and requesting samples of Binder' previously published material, with Binder's reply of March 21, 1953, referring them to Mr. Lloyd Jacquet of New York, "said to have a complete or almost complete collection of comics from early days on," March 12, 1953. Letter, Otto Binder to Lester del Rey, cover letter for the submission of "High Stakes" and noting his return to science fiction writing after a ten-year absence, 3 February 1953. Series 2. General and family correspondence, 1929-Nov.1952.

Approximately 300 items, ca. 1932-53, a few later. Personal correspondence (including copies of very interesting letters from Otto's brother, Earl), family communications, a series of ca. 60 post cards, of more than normal interest, dating from the 1930s, and other memorabilia, including some tiny photographs pasted on cards and letters. Professional correspondence, evidently selected by Binder for preservation as being of particular significance: letters from editors, fellow writers, fans, and others.

Collection Overview

Description

The Stereographic Views of San Francisco Bay Area Locations collection consists of 42 stereographs taken by Eadweard Muybridge from circa 1865 to circa 1879. The collection is distributed into five Series consisting, for the most part, of garden and woodland scenes from the "Homes of California" series, many captioned "Mosswood, Alameda County" and some captioned "Fernside, Alameda County." Also represented are the following series: "Views of the Pacific Coast," "San Francisco," "California," and "Bay of San Francisco." Many show views of residences and estates featuring interiors and exteriors. Industrial views include the Pacific Rolling Mills (San Francisco) and one view of women at work in the California Standard Sack Company (San Francisco). Some views were published by Bradley & Rulofson, San Francisco, and those from the "Views of the Pacific Coast" series bear Muybridge's pseudonym, "Helios Flying Studio." A number were for a time in the possession of the Monsignor Joseph Gleason Library as part of the Muybridge Lone Mountain Collection.

Background

Edward James Muggeridge was born on April 9, 1830 in Kingston-on-Thames, England. He was the second of four sons born to John Muggeridge and Susanna Smith Muggeridge. John Muggeridge was a grain, coal and timber merchant and Susannah Smith Muggeridge came from a prosperous family engaged in the business of carrying by barge. At the age of 22 Edward decided to go to America and he changed his name to Eadweard Muygridge. He took the spelling of his first name from the "Coronation Stone," which had been discovered in Kingston in 1850. Seven Saxon kings had been crowned upon this stone and two kings named Eadweard appeared on its plinth. As for the spelling of his last name, the "muy" may have been added to reflect some Spanish ancestry.

Historical Note

David Hendrickson (1896- 1973) was born in St. Paul, Minnesota, the sixth of 10 children. He attended St. Paul public schools and attended high school while taking night classes at the St. Paul Institute of Art. He enlisted in and served with the 25th regiment of Engineers from 1917- 1919. Afterwards, he earned a diploma at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Toulouse, France. He was married to Margaret Ellen Renshaw in 1923. He lived in San Francisco and later New York where he began his 50-year freelance career with the reputation as an artist specializing in rural, historical, and character subjects. Hendrickson's' work was known for its creativity and accuracy due to his, "painstaking research to all details concerned with any subject he depicted. His use of whimsy, metaphor and allegory in subtle ways added sparkle to all of his work."

Content Description

The David Hendrickson Papers has been meticulously organized by the widow of Hendrickson, documenting his half-a-century career as a freelance artist, illustrator, and advertiser. The collection contains original magazine, book and advertising illustrations, and copies of published materials in which his work was published, artwork, and personal memorabilia.

Description

Holling Clancy Holling (1900-1973) was an instructor, freelance designer, advertising artist, and book illustrator. He and his wife Lucille Webster Holling collaborated on many books, including The Book of Indians (1935) and The Book of Cowboys (1936). He later wrote and illustrated fiction, combining nature and history themes, including Paddle-to-the-Sea (1941). The collection consists of materials relating to books written and illustrated by Holling and Lucille.

Background

Holling Clancy Holling was born Holling Allison Clancy, the oldest of three children, on a farm at Holling Corners, Jackson County, Michigan, on August 2, 1900. His father Bennett Allison Clancy worked as superintendent of Au Sable Public Schools, and his mother taught piano. Bennett's career in education ended when Holling was about eight years old, and the family moved to live with his maternal grandparents at the farm where he was born and spent his summer vacations. 1923 New Mexico Made Easy with words of modern syllables 1923 Sun & Smoke: Verse and woodcuts of New Mexico 1926 Little Big Bye-and-Bye 1927 Rum-Tum-Tummy: The Elephant Who Ate 1927 Roll Away Twins 1928 Choo-Me-Shoo 1928 Claws of the Thunderbird: A Tale of Three Lost Indians 1928 Rocky Billy, The Story of the Bounding Career of a Rocky Mountain Goat 1930 Twins Who Flew Around the World 1930 The Blot: Little City Cat, by Phyllis Crawford 1931 Little Folks in Other Lands, by Watty Piper (a.k.a. Collection Overview

Description

The Photographs of W.C. Ralston and His Mansion in Belmont, Calif. collection contains eleven photographic albumen prints taken by Eadweard Muybridge in 1874. The prints, some of which are stereograph halves, are gathered on four mounts --two prints being individually mounted, the remaining nine divided among two larger mounts. The collection features exterior views of the estate's various buildings and grounds; interior views of the dining room, ballroom, balcony and foyer; and a photographic reproduction of a portrait print of William C. Ralston by an unidentified artist.

Background

William Chapman Ralston was born near Plymouth, Ohio in 1826. Shortly thereafter, his family moved to Wellsville, Ohio, on the banks of the Ohio River, where the young Ralston would become enchanted with the promise of adventure to be had on the river boats on their way to and from the Mississippi River and New Orleans. As a teenager, Ralston pursued his ambition, and went to work as a deck hand on the Mississippi River. Gifted with both a talent for numbers and natural charm and wit, he quickly became head clerk of the river boat Constitution. During this time Ralston met Cornelius Garrison and Ralph K. Fretz, then partners as river boat merchants, whom he greatly impressed with his prodigious skills and initiative. In 1849, upon hearing of the discovery of gold in California, Ralston immediately left for San Francisco. En route, he was delayed in Panama, and was there hired by Garrison and Fretz. They, along with Charles Morgan of New York, had exploited the Gold Rush traffic across the Isthmus of Panama and established the profitable shipping firm of Garrison, Morgan and Fretz. Ralston rose to become a junior partner in the firm, and was often called on to handle its most delicate negotiations.Edward James Muggeridge was born on April 9, 1830 in Kingston-on-Thames, England. He was the second of four sons born to John Muggeridge and Susanna Smith Muggeridge. John Muggeridge was a grain, coal, and timber merchant and

Biographical / Historical Note

Milton P. Fields was born in Halifax County, N.C., in 1926 and served in the U.S. Navy during World War II as a photographer. After the war, he attended East Carolina University in Greenville, N.C., and graduated in 1949 with an AB in English. He later attended Emory University and Wake Forest University earning a doctor of laws in 1953. That same year Fields was admitted to the bar in North Carolina. He served as a prosecuting attorney in Rocky Mount, N.C., in 1958 and the following year he and partner(s) established Fields and Cooper Law Offices. Fields' practice area is general civil litigation.

Description

The main component of this collection is that of the photographs and negatives (circa 1943-1948) taken by Milton P. Fields. Most of the positive images have corresponding negatives; however, there are some negatives without matching positive images.

The aircraft carrier USS SARATOGA, where most of Fields' work in this collection was concentrated, is the focus of many photographs, which were taken from shore, aboard ship, and from aircraft. Of significant interest are the pictures that were taken on the SARATOGA during a kamikaze attack at Iwo Jima on February 21, 1945, in the Battle of Iwo Jima. Photographs of this event focus on action taking place on the flight deck. There are photographs picturing the damage on other parts of the ship as well. Newspaper articles that report the kamikaze attack at Iwo Jima in February, 1945, and the SARATOGA's arrival in San Francisco at the end of the war later that year are also included. Some of the operations of SARATOGA in the Pacific Ocean were photographed from aircraft flying overhead showing beach invasions and bombing raids on Eniwetok Atoll, Tanambogo and Gavutu islands, Florida Island, and others. An assortment of photographs show operations on the flight deck with SARATOGA's aircraft, other flight deck operations, and shipboard life.

Photographs of other ships include the USS HAMMONDSPORT (sea plane tender, July 1942), HMS VICTORIOUS (launching aircraft), Destroyer Escort DE-407 USS SHELTON, Destroyer DE 447 USS ALBERT T. HARRIS, USS GREENWOOD, a light carrier; USS NORTH CAROLINA (August 1943), Cruiser USS SAN DIEGO (June 1943), a tanker, and a Japanese warship.

Photographs of high ranking U.S. Naval personnel include former Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, Admiral Raymond Spruance, Admiral Sherman, and Admiral William F. Halsey. Senator Margaret Chase Smith and Senator Al Gore, Sr., are pictured as well.

Other topics represented in the images include a U.S. Navy photo school, Camp Andrews, harbor scenes, USO entertainment, U.S. warplanes taking off and landing on Saratoga (includes "barrier crash" of TBF-1), score of damage by airplanes on Japanese targets, warplanes on ship deck, unidentified people (civilians in U.S.), scenes of Clinton, N.C. (1947), scenes around Navy yard and docked ship, crew with cameras, various shots of warplanes sinking into water when practicing landing on ship, the Navy General Office and two ship crews with corresponding ships unnamed (with names of crew members on back), a USS SARATOGA crew ski party held at Mt. Ranier (1945), the wedding of a prominent African American Greenville physician (1948), and three oversized photographs (ca. 1948) featuring views of East Carolina Teachers College in Greenville, N.C.

Printed materials include a map of one of SARATOGA's voyages in the Pacific Ocean, a cartoon drawing, a copy of a sketch of a battle at sea by Gilbert Bundy, an unsigned artist's rendition of SARATOGA under attack, a Japanese word and phrase list, and a weekly accounting of the cost for the general mess on SARATOGA. Also included is a poem about the SARATOGA, a poem titled "My Alma Mater," general court martials for photographer's mate first class David Kieffer and seaman first class Harold W. Albright (1945), a congratulatory memorandum from A. B. Betsger, Commander, U.S. Navy, to Chief Photographer "ZIMMERMAN" for the fine photography work of his men aboard the SARATOGA (1945), and a copy of an affidavit of Stefan A. Yarady, an airman captured by the Japanese and held as a prisoner of war (1943-1946). Also in the printed materials are two editions of the East Carolina Teachers College year book, the Tecoa (1946,1948); a blank registration form for Yorktown CV10 Reunion (1984); twelve issues of the Saratoga Log, a newsletter edited and published by John Fry, of San Diego, CA, for veterans of the USS SARATOGA (1992-1995); photocopies of Sara: The Story of the U.S.S. Saratoga [CV-3] with names and addresses of crewmembers in photographs indicated in margins of text by the donor (ca. 1924-1946); and two pages from a book entitled "I Was a Kamikaze" by Ryuji Nagatsuka, photocopy, with notes by Fields on back (undated).

Description

A small collection of autograph letters, typescripts, reprints, photographs, and ephemera focusing on the teaching of speech to the deaf by Alexander Graham Bell, his wife Mabel Hubbard Bell, and his father Alexander Melville Bell. Included are reminiscences written by the Bells' two daughters about their illustrious parents and grandparents, letters from Mabel Bell to her younger daughter, a facsimile of a reader prepared by Alexander Graham Bell for one of his young deaf pupils, and a postcard written in "Visible Speech" from Alexander Melville Bell to one of his granddaughters.

Background

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL (1847-1922) is world-renowned as a scientist and innovator, inventor of the first practical telephone. Less attention is usually paid to his deep interest in the problem of speech acquisition for the deaf, an interest that guided his early research on hearing and speech. Bell was born in Scotland into a family -- grandfather, father, brother -- who were all involved with elocution and speech, and both his mother and wife were deaf. The Bells moved to Ontario, Canada, mostly for health reasons. In 1871 the young Bell went to Boston in his father's stead to teach at the Boston School for Deaf Mutes and subsequently at the Clarke School for the Deaf, in Northampton, Massachusetts. By the next year Alexander Graham Bell opened a School of Vocal Physiology and Mechanics of Speech in Boston; he also established a highly successful private practice teaching language to the deaf. In 1873 he became Professor of Vocal Physiology and Elocution at Boston University. Throughout this period he had continued his experiments on hearing, hearing devices, and the transmission of sound and articulate speech but, finding the time for research to be insufficient, Bell gave up the private practice in 1873 and kept only two private pupils, George Sanders and Mabel Hubbard.

Collection Overview

Description

The Artifact Collection contains a wide range of objects related to the history of Ames, dated from approximately 1939 to 2009. This is an artificial collection comprised of items donated by many different organizational units and individuals associated with NACA, NASA, and Ames.

Background

NASA Ames Research Center (Ames, NASA Ames, and ARC), originally called Ames Aeronautical Laboratory (AAL), is the second oldest of NASA's ten field installations after Langley Research Center. Ames formed in 1939 by NASA's precursor organization, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics (NACA, pronounced en ay see ay), which was created by an act of Congress on March 3, 1915 "to supervise and direct the scientific study of the problems of flight with a view to their practical solution, and to determine the problems which should be experimentally attacked, and to discuss their solution and their application to practical questions" (Public Law 271, 1915).

Extent

☐ Details

1180 linear ft. (970 boxes)

Processed by Linda A. Whitaker, 2009 with significant contributions from Susan Irwin, Rebekah Tabah, John Irwin and additional assistance from Elizabeth Scott, Erica Johnson, Jennifer Young, Jodelle French, Chris Magee, Cait Foehl, Earl Eisenhower, and Jared Jackson.

This collection is unrestricted except for certain family correspondence which is closed until 2023. Although considered sensitive, case files have been retained and are available to researchers. Contact the archivists or librarians for conditions and permissions of use.

Background : This collection remained largely unprocessed through the years. Serial deposits varying in volume and format from 1959-1998 were made from Goldwater's Washington office, Phoenix office and home. The collection also had been moved several times and the boxes re-numbered. There had been numerous attempts to organize and re-folder the materials resulting in various arrangement schemes. Although inventory sheets were created, locating specific correspondence, photographs and legislative documents was reportedly difficult. Public access varied widely. Additional findings as follows.

There were no catalog records of this collection ; Less than 10% of all the material was found in original folders. It was assumed that labels on "new" folders reflected the originals ; There were several runs of correspondence within each congressional session labeled as "miscellaneous." These were found to contain significant personal correspondence, colleague correspondence, Alpha files, legislative documents and issue mail. See Series I. Personal for details ; Folders identified as the 91st Congress through the 99th Congress were largely found to have the incorrect ranges ; There was no consistency within the "miscellaneous" designations. Documents were filed intermittently by sender, by organization, by city and town, or by all of these regardless of origination or topic. See Series IV. Constituent service for details ; There were many orphan documents separated from legislative material. See Series III. Legislative for details ; There were significant gaps in the 1964 Presidential campaign series. See Series II. 1964 presidential campaign for details ; Very little print material remained from the 83rd-89th Congress due to the micro-filming practices of the time. Microfilm (1952-1983) ranged from poor to good condition. Earlier reels were deteriorating. See Series VI. Media-Microfilm for details ; Most of the loose newspaper clippings had deteriorated significantly and had outlived their usability. Albums of newspaper clippings and original cartoon art were also at risk. See Series VI. Media-Albums for details ; Photographs were found to be an inter-mix of three distinct collections: copies of fine art images taken by Barry Goldwater and copyrighted by the Goldwater family; Goldwater's personal collection of historic photographs of the Old West; and photographs documenting his personal and political life. See Series VI. Media-Photographs for details ; Family history material included over 40 linear feet of personal papers from Barry's uncle, Morris Goldwater ; Nearly 50 unprocessed "collections" of related Goldwater material from other donors were discovered. Most of these included personal correspondence with Goldwater or 1964 campaign memorabilia ; A number of artifacts, artwork, and oversized memorabilia were found in poor condition. See Series VII. Artifacts, memorabilia, over-sized material for appraisal, restoration, and de-accession details.

Archival Interventions : Based on these findings, the need for transparency, and feedback from researchers, the following actions were taken.

Submitted the rationale and language for a special allocation from the Arizona State Legislature for long term preservation and access to the Goldwater papers ; Based on the various deeds of gift, declared the entire collection open to researchers regardless of its processed state ; Moved processing to the reading room to facilitate reference, data entry, and teaching ; Adopted the national best practices standards for arrangement and description in Managing congressional collections published by the Society of American Archivists. All the materials in this collection fit neatly within the recommended series. See Arrangement below ; Created a new Constituent service sub-series of Projects and programs where non-legislative gray literature such as constituent generated grant proposals, local reports, state declarations and formal requests, white papers, local-regional initiatives, and technical brochures would fit ; Built on previous attempts at sorting Issue mail by topic which significantly decreased the "miscellaneous" designation found throughout the collection. These issues reflect national and local interests ; Decided on a "one size fits" all for general constituent correspondence - arranged alphabetically by sender and chronologically within ; Separated the fine arts photographs http://www.ahfweb.org/download/BMGFA\_FPC\_2.pdf and historic photographs http://www.ahfweb.org/download/BMGH\_FPC\_1.pdf into two distinct collections ; Created a stand-alone collection for the Morris Goldwater materials http://www.ahfweb.org/download/MGoldwater\_MSS\_8.pdf ; Integrated Goldwater correspondence, memorabilia and media from multiple donors into the appropriate series and sub-series ; Preserved and cataloged Goldwater's Dime store novel collection http://www.ahfweb.org/download/DimeNovels\_MSS\_156.pdf ; Developed container lists with visual clues (sub-series in bold) to guide the researcher through various parts of the collection ; Digitized all microfilm, selected speeches from audio cassettes, and selected film reels to CD or DVD formats ; Digitized rare and rarely seen photographs for the Arizona Memory Project: "Senator Barry M. Goldwater : an Arizona Legend" <http://azmemory.lib.az.us/cdm4/index.php?CISOROOT=/ahfgold>.

This collection was traditionally processed: duplicates weeded, large metal clips removed, binders removed, acid-free folders used, and news clippings inter-leaved. Documents are arranged chronologically within folders. Those with no dates appear at the end. See scope and content notes within each series for additional information.

The personal and political papers of Senator Barry M. Goldwater (1909-1998), MS FM MSS 1, Arizona Historical Foundation.

Dedicated to the Arizona State Legislature whose generous allocation made the preservation of and world wide access to the Goldwater papers possible.

The Arizona Historical Foundation owns the copyright to this collection.

Aviator. Athlete. Adventurer. Author. Military Officer. Businessman. Ham Operator. Photographer. Politician.

Barry M. Goldwater was born in Phoenix, Arizona January 1, 1909. He attended grade school in Phoenix and at age 13, succeeded in setting up the first commercial radio transmitter in Arizona, KFDA - the 36th station licensed in the U.S. He attended high school at Staunton Military Academy in Virginia where he became an outstanding cadet and student athlete. He played football, ran track, and was captain of the record-setting swim team. After graduation, he enrolled at the University of Arizona. His academic career was cut short in 1929 by his father's death where upon he entered the family business, Goldwaters department store. Starting as a junior clerk, Goldwater progressed to become President and eventually Chairman of the Board - a position he held until 1953.

He married Margaret (Peggy) Johnson of Muncie Indiana in 1934. They had four children, Joanne, Barry Jr., Michael, and Margaret (Peggy) Jr. Peggy died in 1985. In 1992, he married Susan Wechlser.

In 1940, he joined Norman Nevills on a 42-day trip down the Green and Colorado Rivers and became the 71st person to travel the full length of the Colorado. His film, photographs, slides and lecture "Shooting the rapids" took him to venues throughout Arizona. He drew large audiences, thus setting the stage for future political campaigns. His award-winning photography was exhibited worldwide and won him membership in the prestigious Royal Photographic Society.

Barry Goldwater's military career spanned 37 years. During WWII, he volunteered for active duty in 1942 but was rejected due to his age and previous athletic injuries. He persisted and eventually was assigned to Yuma, Arizona where he was a gunnery instructor and perfected a technique that increased target accuracy. He later became one of 10 pilots to fly P-47 Thunderbolts across the North Atlantic to Europe. He retired in 1969 as a Major General in the U.S. Air Force Reserves. By the end of his career, he logged 15,000 hours of flight time, flew over 250 aircraft, and received numerous awards, medals, and commendations.

He launched his political career in 1949 on a Republican reform platform and won a seat on the Phoenix City Council. In 1952, Barry Goldwater challenged the incumbent Ernest McFarland and won a seat in the U.S. Senate. He served two terms then ran for President against Lyndon B. Johnson in 1964. Although it was a landslide defeat, Goldwater emerged as a political icon for the conservative movement and the Republican Party. He was re-elected to the Senate in 1968 and served until his retirement in 1986. During his thirty-year career, he served on the Banking and Currency, Labor and Public Welfare, Interior and Insular Affairs, Aeronautical and Space Sciences, Armed Forces, Labor and Public Welfare, Select Committee on Intelligence, Indian Affairs, and Commerce, Science and Transportation and Small Business committees. These reflect his lifelong interests in aviation, amateur radio, technology, defense, labor and union issues, national security, and Native Americans.

On May 29, 1998, Barry M. Goldwater died at his home in Phoenix from complications of a stroke.

Biographical / Historical Note

G. Vince Howell was born in Waynesville, N.C., and attended North Carolina State College from 1939-1940. In 1942, Howell entered the U.S. Air Corps and was assigned to duty aboard B-24 bombers flying raids over Germany. His plane was shot down in April 1944 and the crew captured. Sent to the famous German POW camp, Stalag 17-B, Howell remained there for a year before being liberated during April 1945.

Description

In this interview Howell relates his experiences at Stalag 17-B. Descriptions of camp life include cooking facilities, bath and toilet facilities, German food rations, and general conditions. Of particular interest are contents of Red Cross parcels, trade rings between Russian and American prisoners, activities for prisoners, and radio reception by inmates. Mentioned

Description

Admiral Rieve, a native of Maryland and a member of the USNA Class of 1941, relates his experiences as a Naval officer during World War II. He comments on duty in the USS QUINCY in the North Atlantic, including efforts to locate the German warship BISMARCK above the Arctic Circle. He reports on his training in radar and outfitting of the QUINCY with radar before relocating to the Pacific. He describes the sinking of the QUINCY at Guadalcanal, his transport to New Zealand, and his assignment to command the sailing scow KOHI from New Zealand to New Caledonia.

Admiral Rieve also comments on duty aboard the USS BENNINGTON and its role in the Japanese surrender ceremony; duty aboard the USS GENERAL ANDERSON during the Korean War and efforts to pick up troops from Inchon; and service in the USS FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT in the Mediterranean during the early 1950s. He further comments on flying to Vietnam from Subic Bay during the Vietnam War to check on concrete ships and a final tour of duty in the Pacific before retiring in 1975.

Description

Captain Elliott comments on his background in South Carolina, his desire to become a naval aviator, and his appointment to the USNA after two years at the Citadel. After graduating from the Naval Academy he was assigned to the USS CASE and he describes experiences during the attack on pearl Harbor, the dropping off of Marines at Midway, the Aleutian campaign, and the collision of the CASE with the USS O'BRIEN. He comments on putting the JOHN ROGERS in commission, duty in the Atlantic, and slight training in 1943. As an aviator he reminiscences about flying the Ryan Fireball, a combination prop and jet plane; his survival of an air crash into the Pacific during training exercises; assignment to work with the Joint Chiefs in Washington, DC; attendance at the Naval War College; duty on the staff of the Atomic Weapons School in Albuquerque, New Mexico; service in Korea at the end of the war; and assignments to the USS INTREPID, CINCPACFLT, the USS NANTAHALA and the command of the SHANGRI-LA. He also reports on duty on the personal staff group of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs during the Vietnam War, including comments on Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara.

Biography / History

Radio personality and writer Margaret Louise Pennington Weiller was born September 22, 1904, in New Albany, Indiana. Her parents were Chester A. and Eva Hudgins Pennington. Weiller's father worked at the Louisville and Jeffersonville Bridge and Railway Company until 1949 when he suffered an apparent heart attack and fell from the Big Four bridge into the Ohio River. Her mother Eva, a housewife, was struck by further tragedy when her two younger children died of scarlet fever in 1912 within six weeks of each other. According to correspondence, she later told her surviving daughter Louise not to love because love only brought sorrow.

Weiller spent her childhood in New Albany until her family later moved to Louisville. The June 16, 1920 Courier-Journal reported that Louise was the youngest candidate to graduate from Louisville Girls' High School. Weiller received a Bachelor of Science degree from theUniversity of Louisville (U of L) in 1924. During her time at the university, Louise held every office in her class and she was the first editor of U of L's yearbook, The Thoroughbred.

In 1924 Weiller went on a European tour led by Neville S. Bullitt. According to correspondence she sent her mother, she enjoyed the trip immensely. By 1925 she held an Indiana teacher's certificate and she taught French, English and chemistry in the public schools for one year.

On June 21, 1926, Louise married Charles Robert (Bob) Weiller in her mother's home. The ceremony was performed by Dr. Charles H. Prather, minister of Bardstown Road Presbyterian Church. Louise and Bob subsequently moved to St. Louis, Missouri, where their only child, Constance Pennington Weiller, was born on April 1, 1929. Connie attended schools in Evanston, Illinois, and in Kentucky, and was Phi Beta Kappa at Barnard College in New York. In 1955 Connie was diagnosed with leukemia. A trip to the religious shrine in Lourdes, France, was scheduled for early 1956 but Connie died on February 5. During her years at Barnard, Connie and her mother corresponded extensively.

Louise occupied herself after the death of her only child by returning to college and continuing work in radio. Louise had begun a radio broadcasting career in 1945 as a temporary employee with WINN. By 1950 she had become a permanent employee and her program became known as "Lady Lookout." Many times Connie substituted on the radio for her mother so Louise could stay home and catch up on household chores. By 1956 Weiller began doing "A Woman's Way" for WAVE.

Other endeavors included reviewing books, writing a column "Here's How" for The Voice, a St. Matthews weekly newspaper, a help column titled "Practical Suggestions for Busy Homemakers" for the Louisville Gas and Electric Company's newsletter and a column for a publication called The Almanac. She also volunteered her time to aphasic patients at Veterans Hospital.

During their married life, Bob Weiller roamed the United States and the world. He apparently made few if any return visits to Louisville in later years. No materials in the collection document whether the Weillers later divorced. Bob Weiller died in Honolulu, Hawaii, in 1982.

Corresponding with an extensive list of people such as friends, relatives and even a few prisoners, took up much of Louise's time. She acted in many plays both during college as well as later in life.

Weiller had many interests. They included different religions, unidentified flying objects, World War II, the flier Charles A. Lindbergh and his accomplishments, the John F. Kennedy assassination, space, gardening and animals.

Weiller also followed the Sufism movement, rooted in Mohammedan mysticism, and yoga. Her library of French, Arabic, and German dictionaries displayed her interests, which corresponded with some of her college courses. Her reading also included writings on vegetarian cooking, uses of herbs, and which included I Ching and theosophy.

Failing health prompted Weiller's move to the Sacred Heart Home in 1991. She later moved to St. Matthews Manor nursing home, where she resided until her death in 1996.

Scope and Content

These are the papers of Louise Weiller, radio personality, author, and a founder of the Louisville Ballet. The collection dates from 1897 to 1994. During her lifetime Weiller hosted two radio programs, wrote numerous newspaper and newsletter columns, and was a frequent speaker to various organizations. This collection of 17.5 linear feet documents Weiller's life, hobbies and other pursuits.

Louise Weiller, a well-known Louisville radio personality of the 1950s, donated her papers to the University of Louisville Archives and Records Center in June 1991 through friend Jo Spencer and lawyer/friend Karen Conrad.

The gift included correspondence, literary productions, photographs, financial and legal documents as well as memorabilia. Weiller also donated many of her daughter Connie's materials, such as poetry, class works and manuscripts. Connie was an unpublished poet and writer.

Diaries are abundant in the personal series. There are only three from the 1920s but many date from the 1950s and beyond. Entries are sporadic immediately following Connie's death but increase after Louise's interests in Sufism begins.

The largest series is correspondence and includes letters to and from Connie when Louise's daughter was a student at Barnard College in New York. Many letters were written after Connie's death to a diverse group of correspondents. Manuscripts and other literary productions, photographs, printed materials and memorabilia are also included in this collection. There are few financial and legal records. The bulk of the collection dates after 1956.

Large items from the various series, both Connie's and Louise's, were placed in oversized flat boxes for preservation. The only restriction on any materials in the collection is a prohibition against the publication of Connie's poetry.

Access and Use

The following guidelines will help make your visit to the Special Collections Research center efficient and productive.

How to Request Materials

1. Request material before you visit. The majority of the archival and manuscript collections in the SCRC are housed offsite and require 3-5 business days' advance notice for retrieval. A portion of our book collection is also stored offsite and must be requested in advance. Please note that some collections contain restricted material that cannot be provided to researchers according to our agreement with the donor and/or DC and federal law.

2. Select a reasonable amount of material. The SCRC will place requests for up to 20 boxes per patron per research trip. If you are planning a long term research visit and know you will need to see more than 20 boxes, please speak with the staff member handling your request to determine a timeframe for placing a second box order.

3. Contact the SCRC to place your order. We prefer that you email us at speccoll@gwu.edu, but you may also place box orders over the phone (202-994-7549) or in person at the SCRC reference desk. You will be contacted by a staff member when your boxes have arrived and are available for your use.

4. Provide detailed information. In order to fulfill your request for archival collections, we will need the collection call number (e.g. MS2044), title, and the series (if applicable) and box numbers of the material you wish to see. For books, maps, and other cataloged material, we'll need a title and call number, or a link to the library catalog record.

Collections Use Policy

Please review the Collections Use Policy prior to your visit. All researchers must agree to this list of rules before using materials. Failure to obey these rules may result in denial of use of the collections.

My report on library services for Spring 2014 takes as its theme the intersection between library users, library staff members, and information technologies, and as in the past I've raided the wonderful Historical Photographs of Teachers College collection in PocketKnowledge to provide illustrations of users in the past engaging with technologies of the past (and present), i.e., books (still considered a major advance in human technology) and microform

ABOUT

Sixty-five years of collecting and preserving have established the Museum's collection as one of the largest of its kind in the nation. Containing about 3.5 million items, the collection is a source of knowledge and provides continuity between the past and the present. It illuminates, enriches and advances our ideas, attachments, viewpoint and sense of wonder of the arts.

The collection contains treasures of the performing arts ranging from the Gold Rush Era to the present time. It holds a part of the preeminent history of the performing arts and the unique history of San Francisco. The Museum's diverse collection includes books, periodicals, playbills, clippings, photographs, posters, sheet music, plays and librettos, radio interviews, videotapes, musical theater recordings, the Legacy Oral History Program, the Theater Film Archive, theater design research materials, costumes and set design renderings, personal papers of performers, patrons and critics, as well as the archive of several local performing arts organizations. Web resources and a digitization program are hallmarks of our current activities.

Overview of the collection:

But there certainly is a lot of smoke! -- The unconscientious objector! -- Whatever became of that 'safe and sane' movement? -- Who said Washington wouldn't be bombed!

This collection is open to researchers.

Harold Morton Talburt lithographs of his political cartoons cover World War II and the New Deal. Caricatures include President Roosevelt, Benito Mussolini, Adolf Hitler, and Japanese soldiers.

Twenty-four lithographs of political cartoons regarding World War II and the New Deal by cartoonist Harold Morton Talburt.

Harold Morton Talburt lithographs, RIT Art Collection.

Pulitzer Prize winner and political cartoonist Harold Morton Talburt was born in Toledo, Ohio in 1895. Talburt's first job as a cartoonist was for the Scripps-Howard news bureau in Washington in 1921. Later he worked for the Washington Daily News. He was awarded the Pulitzer in 1933 for his editorial cartoon, "The Light of Asia," and was said to have enjoyed drawing Presidents Herbert Hoover and Franklin Roosevelt the most. Talburt died in Maryland in 1966.

While gem dealer Horace K. Arlington frets over the safety of his newly purchased diamond collection, which is being shipped from Europe, Dave Hanlon ingratiates himself with Horace's daughter Arlene and plots with his three cohorts to steal the jewels. As part of the scheme, Dave hires Jerry Lane and Pierre Potkins, whose carnival act includes an airplane amusement ride, to pick up the stolen gems in a seaplane. Although Pierre is scheduled to meet with his parole officer that afternoon, he and Jerry accept the job and, unaware that their seaplane belongs to the police department, retrieve from the ocean what they believe to be harmless photographs. When Pierre inspects the package, however, he discovers the jewels, as well as a box of cocaine. After becoming intoxicated from the powder, Jerry, whose only knowledge of flying has come from reading books, crash lands the plane in the Arlingtons' backyard. Horace, seeing the police insignia on the plane, assumes the two men are detectives and immediately reveals his concern over his diamonds. Frightened, Jerry and Pierre take advantage of Horace's confusion and introduce themselves as detectives to Arlene and Juanita, the Arlingtons' pretty Latin maid. Soon after, however, Dave telephones Arlene and learns about Jerry and Pierre's sudden arrival. Anxious to claim the gems, Dave tells Arlene that Jerry and Pierre are escaped lunatics. Although she is attracted to Jerry, who entertains her with Charlie Chaplin imitations, Arlene orders Juanita, who likes Pierre, to contact the police. Before the authorities arrive, however, Dave and his henchmen show up and pressure Jerry and Pierre to divulge the diamonds' whereabouts. Just as Jerry reveals where he hid the gems, Squeezy, Juanita's Boston terrier, who has been sneaking objects from the Arlingtons' house and burying them in the yard, steals the hidden jewels. Horace's gullible wife Martha then sees Squeezy reflected in her crystal ball, but is unable to catch him before he buries the gems in a flower bed. During the frantic search for the diamonds, a flotilla of policemen descend upon the Arlingtons' yard. Eventually the diamonds are found by Juanita, but are then snatched away by Dave. After Jerry, who has unearthed an old pistol, fires at the fleeing crooks, the police apprehend the thieves. Declared sane, Jerry embraces Arlene, while Pierre hugs Juanita.

Collection Overview

Description

Correspondence, literary manuscripts, notes, drawings and photographs.

Background

Zygmunt Haupt 1907-1975, was a native of Poland. He began his career in writing and painting after abandoning earlier studies in architecture and urban planning. Following the German invasion of Poland in 1939, Mr. Haupt escaped to Hungary, then on to France and England, where he continued to serve with Polish forces until the war ended. Mr. Haupt came to the United States after the war and became a United States citizen. He worked for 18 years for the U.S. Information Agency. During that time his writings appeared in the principal Polish ?migr? journals Wiadomosci (London) and Kultura (Paris). His book, The Paper Ring, was published for the first time in Paris in 1962 and won the Kultura literary award. In 1971 he received the annual award from the Koscielski Foundation in Geneva for his contributions to the Polish literature.

Project South coordinator revisits collection 50 years later

On April 24th, the University Archives was pleased to welcome back to the farm Jim McRae ('68), coordinator of the KZSU-sponsored Project South, which interviewed civil rights workers during the summer of 1965. Jim (seen here examining interview transcripts) sat down with us to talk about the project and even provided some personal photographs (below) and documents.

During the summer of 1965, eight students from Stanford University spent ten weeks in the southern states tape-recording information on student participation in the Civil Rights Movement. The eight interviewers -- Mary Kay Becker, Mark Dalrymple, Roger Dankert, Richard Gillam, James McRae, Penny Niland, Jon Roise, and Julie Wells -- were sponsored by KZSU, Stanford's student radio station, and their original intent was to gather material suitable for rebroadcasting in the form of radio programs. Northern college students who were working in the South for the first time were the major focus, although many other topics were also investigated. To find out why these students decided to go to the South to work for the movement, what they expected to find there, what they did find, the pressures they experienced, their reaction to these pressures, what they accomplished, and what they planned to do in the future (both near and distant), they interviewed as many students as possible. What is planned is a series of programs expressing in the volunteers' and workers' own words, their motivations and their feelings towards the many aspects of the South and of the Civil Rights Movement experienced that summer.

Sam Black fonds. – 1900-1997.

3.14 m of textual records and other material.

Biographical Sketch

Noted British Columbia artist and art educator Sam Black was born in Ardrossan, Scotland on 5 June 1913. He graduated from the Glasgow School of Arts in 1936. After receiving his Teachers Certificate and Art Teachers Diploma in 1937, he taught art in primary and secondary schools in Scotland. Black also continued his study of art in London, Paris and Brussels prior to the outbreak of World War II. When the war began in 1939, Black enlisted in the Royal Scottish Fusiliers and received a commission in the Officer Corps. Shortly thereafter he became a camouflage officer. As Staff Lieutenant Camouflage his first assignment involved the concealment of defences and training men in personal concealment. Later a Camouflage School was established with Black as its first commandant with the rank of Captain. Black's job was to teach the basics of concealment and behaviour and to understand how to use different ground patterns to their advantage. Black saw military action in France, Belgium and Germany and was decorated with three military stars, the Defence Medal, an Oak Leaf and the Belgian Medaille Civile for bravery. He completed his military service as a Major in 1946. During the war Black also worked for the War Artists Advisory Committee. Paintings he produced were sent to the Committee who purchased them if interested. These works are now in the permanent collection of the Imperial War Museum in London.

Black married Elizabeth Morton Howie on 3 May 1941. Following the war Black resumed his educational career serving as a school inspector for the British Ministry of Education from 1946 to 1949 and then as a Principal Lecturer in Arts at the Jordanhill Training College in Glasgow. In 1957, Black was a visiting professor at the University of British Columbia teaching art at the summer school session. The following year, he accepted an offer from the University and joined the faculty as a professor of fine arts and art education. He enjoyed a distinguished career at UBC, remaining there until his retirement in 1978.

Throughout his career at UBC, Black enjoyed a reputation as an outstanding teacher. Students found inspiration in his enthusiasm, creative energy, and exploration of new ideas. The high regard for Black as a teacher at the University was recognized in 1970 when he became the second faculty member to receive the Master Teacher award. Black was fond of saying that: "Teaching is art; art is teaching." In a paper entitled "Why be a Teacher?" he summed up his feelings about teaching by observing that:

" it is a source of stimulation and ever renewing pleasure. It provides enrichment through the daily contacts and associations with vital, enquiring people and by the activity of learning together and sharing discussions I learn more about the students and discover more about myself. If you are truly engaged in the exciting profession of education, it is impossible to count the work hours and human concerns are incompatible with a stop-watch mentality."

It was in his ability to communicate effectively and in easily understandable terms his passion for, dedication to, and love of art that made Black an outstanding teacher. Although it would be difficult to gauge accurately Black's influence on art education in this province, there can be little doubt that many of the best teachers of art in British Columbia came out of his classroom.

Notwithstanding Black's obvious impact on students at UBC, his influences obviously transcended the campus boundaries as there were many different ways and many different levels in which Black reflected and represented art education values to society at large. Black's numerous public speaking engagements allowed him to share his ideas about art and education to a variety of audiences. He attended many art education conferences around the world and participated actively in the exchange of ideas with his colleagues. Black also contributed to the professional literature in his field. He participated in various art and education organizations -- he was a founding member and vice president of the International Society for Education Through Art and served as president of the Canadian Society for Education Through Art. Throughout his career Black offered numerous art workshops for various groups including art students, art teachers, members of the general public and children.

In addition to his considerable contributions to the field of art education, Black was also one of British Columbia's most outstanding artists. An accomplished artist in watercolours, acrylics, oils, and graphic prints: woodcuts and lithographs, Black's works hang in private and public collections around the world. Throughout his career, Sam Black received many honours and awards for his artwork. He was elected to the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colour (1953), the Canadian Society of Painters in Water Colour [CSPWC] (1963) and the Print and Drawing Council of Canada (1964). Black received the CSPWC's Honour Award for "Me and My Straw Hat" (1983), "Church at Castro Marin" (1985), and "Encroaching Flowers" (1992). His painting "Old Pals" was selected for the CSPWC's Diamond Jubilee Collection presented to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II for the Royal Collection of Drawings and Watercolours at Windsor Castle and a Black print was selected for reproduction as part of the Expo 86 print collection.

One of Black's most prestigious honours came in 1977 when he was elected to the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts. Those elected to membership in the Academy must be men or women who have exhibited outstanding creative merit and are acknowledged to be masters in the particular discipline or environmental arts in Canada. In 1990, the City of Vancouver commissioned Black to design street banners.

Perhaps one of the most unique tributes paid to Black came in the form of Stewart Grants concert work for a full orchestra inspired by the coastal imagery of Black's paintings and prints. The "Sam Black Sketches" consists of nine inter-connected sections based on a single piece or collection of pieces. The world premier of "Sketches" took place at the Yates Memorial Centre in Lethbridge, Alberta in May 1988 [a recording of the performance is included in the fonds]. In addition to the musical performance by the Lethbridge Symphony Orchestra, the premier also included an exhibition of sixteen of Black's artworks. This allowed members of the audience to study the visual sources or images that inspired the musical compositions. "Sketches" was later performed in other Canadian cities and was also broadcast by CBC radio.

Although accomplished in many forms of art it is perhaps his watercolour paintings for which Black is best known. While his watercolours and other artwork include many different subjects there is a "maritime" theme to much of his work. In particular his art depicts land- and seascapes along the British Columbia coast. The affinity for maritime life probably dates back to his childhood growing up in Adrossan, a coastal town in western Scotland. His family home overlooked a small harbour. Black's father James who served in the Royal Navy built boats with his son who often went to an off shore island to study birds a subject which would later become a common element in his artwork.

Black often carried a sketchbook around with him wherever he went. These sketches served as a sort of memory or reference for possible future paintings. He also took many photographs particularly during his travels but he later explained that he preferred the process of sketching his subjects because that would allow him to focus on various aspects including proportion, scale, patterns, etc. He suggested that one "takes" a photograph while one "makes" a painting or drawing -- the former process more mechanical and the latter more creative. Often Black would simply record the colours to be added right on the sketch. Black was a very strong proponent of accurate observation and recording and talked about the importance of attention to detail. He told his students that artists should look for three-quarters of an hour and draw for fifteen minutes. That the artist heeded his own advice is evident from his artwork particularly in his rendering of groups of seagulls, geese or crows where each bird is individually positioned and seems to project its own unique personality.

Following his retirement from UBC, Black and his wife Elizabeth retired to Bowen Island. For many years Black had commuted between Bowen Island and Vancouver. In 1970, he designed a residence at Snug Point on Bowen Island as a retirement home. Named "Shieling" after the stone cottages of the early Scots, the two storey home also included a studio and a gallery. There he continued to create many new paintings and other artwork. During his retirement he continued to be recognized nationally and internationally for his outstanding creativity. In 1990, UBC honoured Black's unique contributions as an artist and educator by conferring upon him the degree Doctor of Letters, honoris causa.

Sam Black died on 23 April 1998.

Scope and Content

The fonds consists of biographical material, family information, correspondence, speeches, publications, subject files, teaching and reference material, photographs, audio and video tapes and artifacts. In addition, the fonds also includes various forms of Black's artwork.

Notes

Title based on the contents of the fonds.

Includes: 8,632 photographs, 1,706 slides, 6 audio cassettes, 5 video cassettes and three-dimensional objects.

File list available.

Series Descriptions

Biographical Material. -1923-1997.

20 cm of textual records.

13 photographs.

Series consists of general information pertaining to Blacks career, educational records, documents created during and just following his military service, and records relating to various awards, honours and recognition bestowed on him.

Black/Howie family. - 1900-1993.

2 cm of textual records.

103 photographs.

Series consists of genealogical information about the Black and Howie families as well as material relating to SBs father James Black including a photograph album with images from the Boer War and various ships from World War I. In addition there documents relating to Blacks mother Elizabeth Campbell and grand daughter Yarah Hooley.

Correspondence. - 1939-1997.

4.5 cm of textual records.

Series consists of incoming correspondence from various individuals (1939-1997). The series also includes incoming correspondence with British artist Robin Tanner (1949-1988) and correspondence with Tim Fenn regarding the Tanner correspondence (1990/91)

Speeches/Lectures. - 1951-1993.

26 cm of textual records.

Series consists of copies of speeches and lectures delivered by Sam Black. This material provides valuable insights into Blacks attitudes towards art and education.

Publications. - 1963-1979.

6.5 cm of textual records.

55 photographs.

Series consists of copies of Blacks China Sketchbook, a publication with text and sketches prepared by Black based on a visit to the Peoples Republic of China. It includes related correspondence, printed material arising from the trip and the production of the publication. The series also includes copies of assorted articles by Black for educational journals and copies of newspaper articles with sketches that he compiled while on various travels to Australia, Europe and the Middle East.

Subject Files. – 1954-1995.

38 cm of textual records.

38 photographs.

Series consists of an artificially assembled grouping of files that did not easily fit into any of the other series identified in the fonds.

Teaching and Reference Material. - 1967-1986.

77 cm of textual records.

Series consists of miscellaneous notes used by Black in teaching, some student comments on his courses, and other subject-based files he might have used for teaching or general reference. The series also includes pictures of works of art mounted on cardboard probably used by Black in teaching. There is also material relating to Blacks interest in italic handwriting.

Art Work. – 1932-1996.

1.4 m of textual records.

Series consists of original sketches (483) and water colours (120), lino and woodblocks and prints, cancellation proofs for lithographs and woodcuts, as well as other art forms (including street banners and welded metal) in which Black worked. There is also a small volume of artwork by others.

Photographic Material. – 193 -1997.

8,423 photographs.

1,706 slides.

Series consists of photographic prints, negatives and slides which have been divided into very general categories including Sam Black and family, Blacks artwork and photographs taken by Black during his travels. The photographs of artwork, used in conjunction with the cancellation proofs and the lino- and woodblock prints, provide a very important record in documenting the breadth of Blacks artistic output during his career.

Audio/Video Tapes. – 1988-1994.

6 sound cassettes.

5 video cassettes.

Series consists six audio tapes including a radio interview with Black (1987), two performances of "Sam Black Sketches (1988 and 1990), and speeches given at his 50th wedding anniversary. The video tapes, particularly "Sam Black: Surface Flows", "Art Explorations A Workshop with Sam Black" and "Shared Visions" provide interesting insights into Blacks philosophy about art.

Artifacts. - [n.d.].

Series consists of Blacks war medals, colour pallet, brushes, pencils, art and carving instruments, and skulls used in teaching. It also includes a sculptured head, colour separations used in the reproduction of some of Blacks art for cards and other purposes, and a stamp album begun in Black's youth.

Negatives

Approximately 5,500 negatives

Because the provenance between the photographic prints and negatives (approximately 5,500) is very difficult to determine, with the exception of the 374 negatives listed in the "Artwork" section, there has been no effort made to attempt to match them up. Approximately 230 original photo processing envelopes have been placed in boxes 28 and 29.

Slides

This includes 1,706 slides consisting of copies of various art pieces created by SB, the Black family, slides from travels, and other miscellaneous images. As much as possible the categories assigned by Black have been retained.

BIOGRAPHICAL INFORMATION

Thomas N. Downing served Virginia's First District in the House of Representatives from the 86th through the 94th Congresses. He was the grandson of the late state Senator Thomas J. Downing of Lancaster County (see also Accession Nos. 22035 and 22037, the Downing Family Letters).

Downing was born in Newport News on 1 February 1919. He received his public education in that city, graduating from Newport News High School. He completed his undergraduate education at the Virginia Military Institute, graduating in 1940. During World War II, Downing served as a Combat Troop Commander of Mechanized Cavalry with action in France. He earned a Silver Star for his rescue of two men during a reconnaissance operation in Northern France, and commanded the first of General Patton's Third Army troops to enter Germany. After the war, he earned a law degree from the University of Virginia (1948).

Downing practiced law in Hampton and Warwick, and served as a substitute judge for the Municipal Court for the City of Warwick. In 1958, he won election to the United States House of Representatives as a Democrat. He was elected to the following eight congresses before declining to run for re-election in 1976.

At the time of his retirement, Downing's constituency included seventeen counties (Accomack, Charles City, Essex, Gloucester, James City, King George, King and Queen, King William, Lancaster, Mathews, Middlesex, New Kent, Northampton, Northumberland, Richmond, Westmoreland, and York) and four cities (Hampton, Newport News, Poquoson, and Williamsburg). The geographic and socio-economic nature of the district caused Representative Downing to place special interest and emphasis on such areas as marine life and quality, military and technological affairs, and agricultural considerations; his years of membership on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries and the Space Science and Technology (formerly Science and Astronautics) committees were important vehicles toward serving those interests. Additionally, his advocacy for re-opening the investigations into the assassinations of President John F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr. led to his being appointed the first chairman of the House Select Committee on Assassinations.

After his retirement in 1976, Downing resumed his law practice in Newport News. He was a member of organizations including the American Bar Association, the Lions Club, the American Legion, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He served on the Board of Visitors of the Virginia Military Institute, 1985-1993, and as president of the Board of Directors of the Mariner's Museum in Newport News.

Thomas N. Downing died on 23 October 2001 of complications from intestinal surgery, and is buried in Peninsula Memorial Park, Newport News.

The first box of the Downing Papers contains a small group of records from Downing's two immediate predecessors in the First District congressional seat. Schuyler Otis Bland of Gloucester County (1872-1950) served in Congress from 1918 until his death in February 1950. His seat was filled by Edward John Robeson, Jr., who was born in Haywood County, North Carolina (1890), spent his childhood in Georgia, and settled as an adult in Newport News. Robeson served in the 81st through the 85th congresses; he was then defeated for renomination by Thomas Downing. He died in 1966 and is buried in North Carolina.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

Papers, 1947-1977, of Thomas N. Downing (1919-2001) consist of correspondence, political files, speeches, and related documents; they are the public records related to his 18-year tenure as a congressman representing Virginia's First District in the United States House of Representatives. The records include manuscripts, typescripts, xerox, and other reproductions, newsprint, photographs, printed forms (blank and filled in), published items, and other media. The first box of papers contains a small group of records from Downing's two immediate predecessors in the First District seat, Schuyler Otis Bland (1872-1950) and Edward John Robeson, Jr. (1890-1966).

ARRANGEMENT

The papers are arranged by congress and, in general, by category. His office's filing system varied in some respects from congress to congress; there are also certain areas of overlap in the filing system (e.g., general legislation appears as a separate category in some congresses, and in conjunction with general files or committee files in other sessions). These instances of overlap or dual filing are reflected in the Preliminary List of Headings and Contents List which follow.

In some cases, record groups extend over several congresses. When that occurred, the groups are placed within this collection with the latest congress with which they deal; i.e. "Rivers and Harbors Materials, 91st-92nd Congresses" is filed with the records for the 92nd Congress. Such multi-congress record groups are also indicated in the Preliminary List of Headings and the Contents List.

Fourteen cubic feet of records pertaining to the Merchant Marine and Fisheries aspects of Mr. Downing's work have been transferred to the Mariner's Museum in Newport News. Copies of those records are on file here at the Library of Virginia. Lists of those records on microfilm are in folders in the collection and are noted in the Contents List.

The preliminary headings are an outline to the contents of the collection, indicating areas of overlapping information by means of brackets (e.g. Committees [and General Legislation]). A detailed listing of the contents of individual boxes follows.
