Series XIII: Senate: Foreign Relations, 1953-1977

62.5 linear feet

The Foreign Relations series contains a variety of material relating to Mansfield's tenure in the Senate. The contents range broadly from constituent letters to Senate Committee reports. As Mansfield gains seniority in the Senate, the volume and importance of the material increases. The most significant concentration of material concerns the Vietnam War, although questions of foreign aid also elicit copious letters and policy papers. The constituent mail in the series provides particular insight into the attitudes of Montanans on foreign policy issues during this era. There are files relating to specific countries during each of Mansfield's terms in the Senate and broader reports on general United States foreign policy.

More specifically, the individual country files contain letters from Mansfield, constituents, Senate colleagues, and interest groups. Typically the file contents cover the whole time span of a given Senatorial term, though particular crises and policies may account for folders or entire boxes in the series. For example the Nixon Incident in Venezuela in 1958 caused a furor, and the files contain many letters and newspaper clippings both supporting and deriding Nixon. Most are from Montanans, but voters and interest groups from across the country and Latin America expressed their sentiments to Mansfield. Many country files contain policy reports assessing specific political climates, reports to congressional committees with policy recommendations, and reports from State Department officials including ambassadors and the Secretary of State. There are also letters from foreign nationals, expatriates, and Americans doing business overseas providing advice to Mansfield on foreign policy matters. The country files often contain booster materials published by the country, including magazines, photographs, newspapers, and pamphlets.

Besides country files, the series consists of U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee proceedings, reports from the United Nations, and particular pieces of foreign policy legislation. Of particular note in this series is the information relating to Vietnam and Cambodia. There are copious numbers of letters supporting and opposing of the war, student protest, the Kent State situation, and Nixon's actions in Cambodia. These letters provide a fascinating survey of public opinion during the war years and range widely from vehement support of Nixon and the war to outraged opposition. The series also contains material relating to foreign aid legislation, a topic that elicited reactions nearly as strong as those expressed regarding Vietnam. The Committee proceedings boxes have legislative summaries, memorandums and letters between Congressional colleagues, and Presidential reports. The boxes near the end of the series are less specifically labeled and often the folder names are simply Miscellaneous with a date. These folders cover the whole range of subjects contained in more specific earlier folders including country reports, correspondence, legislation, and Senate hearings. The series is rounded out by requests for copies of Mansfield's speeches, transcripts from Mansfield's television and radio appearances, photographs, press releases, and telegrams.

The series is divided into four chronological Subseries: First Term, Second Term, Third Term, and Fourth Term.

Series XIV: House/Senate: Campaigns, 1946-1976

48 linear feet

This series covers a broad range of topics relating to Mansfield's personal campaigns for both U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate. The series also contains significant material relating to other Congressional campaigns in Montana and to presidential campaigns throughout this time. As Mansfield grows more prominent in national politics, the files grow more extensive and cover a broader spectrum of races from across the country.

There are oversize copies from the Office of Montana General Election Results for both primaries and the general elections. These returns cover the even-year elections from 1946 to 1972, with the exception of 1968. There are numerous letters from constituents to Mansfield concerning his campaigns. They include many notes of congratulations, offers of assistance, letters of support and opposition, advice, requests for inaugural tickets, and requests for help and support on various issues. The series also contains Mansfield's letter and telegrams in reply to this correspondence. Mansfield's press releases and copies of his speeches are scattered throughout the series. There is also significant correspondence from congressional colleagues and from prominent fellow Democrats. In the 1960s and 1970s there were many letters from presidential hopefuls seeking Mansfield's endorsement. Democratic leaders routinely requested Mansfield's help in stumping for candidates, so there are a number of personal letters from Adlai Stevenson, Hubert Humphrey, George McGovern, Jimmy Carter, and Sargent Shriver. A copy of the McGovern-Shriver Handbook for the 1972 election is in Box 90, and there are folders containing information relative to the Stevenson, Kefauver, Fjare, Eisenhower, and Nixon presidential campaigns.

A number of folders also contain information on Montana campaigns, including letters, booklets, newsletters, and bumper stickers for Arnold Olsen, Lee Metcalf, and James Murray. There are also candid Democratic assessments of the Montana political climate. The series is rounded out with other campaign-related materials. These include background information on candidates, correspondence relating to the Watergate and "dog named Nixon" controversies, and Mansfield's nominating speech for Sargent Shriver. There are numerous document requests and newspaper clippings from constituents, generally that reflect prevailing attitudes but also support Mansfield and oppose Nixon. Finally, there are invitations to Eisenhower's inaugural ball, other candidates' press releases, and guidelines to selecting delegates to the 1976 national conventions for both Democrats and Republicans.

The series contains boxes specifying time periods like "U.S. Senate Fourth Term 1971-1976" and boxes with vague designations like "House and Senate: Campaign," and is in no coherent order. There is no box 1.

Series XV: Senate: Correspondence, 1953-1976

168.5 linear feet

This series contains all of the outgoing correspondence from Mansfield's office during his tenure in the Senate. The folders contain copies of the letters and telegrams sent by the office.

The letters cover all aspects of Mansfield's job in the Senate. They include reply letters to constituents on a variety of topics, numerous condolence letters to constituents, and thanks to various Montanans for campaign assistance. The constituent topics include correspondence relating to pending legislation, military personnel issues like court martials, concerns about Social Security and inflation, job applications, labor disputes, the war in Vietnam, hippies, farm conditions, and Academy appointments. Besides the constituent mail, there is significant correspondence with Congressional colleagues, various federal agencies, the White House, and foreign dignitaries. These letters also cover a broad range of topics including pending legislation, informal and formal Committee meetings, the House Committee on Un-American Affairs, agricultural subsidies, and civil rights. The vast majority of the letters are a single page, though matters of particular importance sometimes cover two or three pages.

In general, Mansfield's replies are not particularly substantive, and many are variations on standard form letters that appear repeatedly throughout Mansfield's files. Nevertheless, the subjects and volume of mail provide insights into the political concerns of the era. Specific issues, like passage of the Wilderness Act in 1964, can be traced through letters sent daily from Mansfield's office. Particularly volatile political issues like opposition to the Vietnam War are reflected in voluminous correspondence on the subject. Mansfield's rising political importance is seen in the increasing volume of mail his office replies to and the prominence of the correspondents. The letters also provide an excellent overview of the overwhelming array of concerns a Senator copes with and the affection that Mansfield elicited from Montanans.

The typical box holds four or five weeks of letters broken into folders containing a week of correspondence each. The folders are arranged chronologically, with all of the communications for a single day grouped together. The series is arranged in four chronological subseries: First Term, Second Term, Third Term, and Fourth Term, and proceeds from November 1953 to the end of Mansfield's fourth term in 1976. The series is arranged strictly chronologically; after box 190 the folders shift from containing a week of correspondence to holding a single day. Many of the copies in this series appear elsewhere in the collection in a subject area. Some of the boxes have pink inserts highlighting particular topics and issues. These inserts do not seem to follow any pattern and often mark a single letter.

Series XVI: House/Senate: Academy Appointments, 1943-1977

31.5 linear feet

The material contained in this series relates to Congressional appointments to the various service academies, particularly West Point and Annapolis. Most of the series relates to Mansfield's files on specific candidates for appointments from his home state. Besides candidate files, there are a number of boxes containing general information about the particular academies such as civil service examination requirements and guidelines for nominations. Most of this series holds a predictable repetition of documents.

The series is divided between boxes with general information and boxes of candidate files. The bulk of the series is comprised of a chronological listing of academy candidates from Montana, filed alphabetically by year. For example, Box 30 has all the folders for candidates in 1966 beginning with the letter I. Accompanying candidate files are letters of recommendation, test scores, nomination forms, and Mansfield's replies to candidate inquiries. Many files contain other, unofficial letters supporting various candidates and offer a glimpse of a whole generation of each Montana community's leading sons. The more general files relate to specific academies including the Coast Guard Academy, the Air Force Academy, the Merchant Marine Academy, the Military Academy, and the Naval Academy. There are catalogs beginning in the early 1940's regarding admissions standards. Mimeographs for medical examinations forms, results of candidates' medical exams, information about the Civil Service exam, newspaper clippings about candidates, studies of the success rates of different candidates, and progress reports of appointees occupy the rest of the general files in the series. As mentioned above, this series is more descriptive than substantive, containing a shallow sample of information about each candidate and Academy.

The organization of the series is coherent. The opening boxes of general information are followed by a chronological sequence of candidate files leading to the year of Mansfield's retirement from the Senate in 1976.

This series is restricted.

Series XVII: House/Senate: Projects, 1943-1977

180 linear feet

This series contains information relating to federal projects in Montana during Mansfield's entire tenure in Washington. Almost every aspect of life under the Big Sky is referenced in these files and the series gives an indication of the breadth of federal involvement in the state. The folders include a dizzying array of documents that represent every step in a government project from letters supporting creating new policy to documents about Congressional appropriations to maps and blueprints to newspaper clippings announcing the new facilities and programs. This series focuses more on the administration of projects than on the legislation involved, though there is overlap with the Federal Agencies, the Montana Files, and the Legislation series.

The specifics of this series are especially difficult to quantify since the series covers so many subjects for such a long time span. The materials represent Mansfield's time in both House and Senate, though the majority of the folders seem to center on his Senatorial career. It appears that the series proceeds alphabetically by subject or supervising agency but this is only a rough frame of reference. The organization is confusing and adheres to no particular chronology. For example the folder titled "City Project Billings: Relocation of the Northern Pacific Tracks" has papers dating from 1959 to 1975, while an adjacent Billings folder has documents from 1971 to 1973. There are multiple boxes that contain only city project information, appropriations material, and reports on Montana industries, schools, and Air Force bases. The industry folders hold reports from the Forest Service, the Commerce Department, and government investigations of trucking practices. There are also letters supporting various industries, especially timber, from voters, workers, and lobbying groups. Timber sale revenues, newspaper clippings, reports to Senate committees, and papers from industry conferences round out this portion of the series. The files on public works projects range from political concerns to the practical problems of administering specific programs. The Master Plan for Helena includes letters from constituents, maps of the city, historic preservation information, Housing and Urban Development applications, reports concerning drug and alcohol abuse, photographs of proposed improvement areas, and information about the municipal golf course. Similar information appears for many of Montana's cities and towns. Other boxes have material concerning the Economic Development Administration, the Montana Department of Public Instruction, bussing issues in schools, teacher contracts, and cutbacks in school sports to meet Title IX requirements. There are newspaper stories, reports from the Army Corps of Engineers, and Mansfield's own notes about water rights in the Missouri River Basin. Development schemes to promote tourism and federal help with airports, health care, and employment problems are documented here. The series is completed with a staggering array of more government reports, letters from Montana voters and local boosters promoting plans, and Mansfield's replies to correspondence.

Finding specific information in this series can be time-consuming, but given the extent of the series any federal project in Montana that concerned Mansfield is probably referenced. The Appropriations Boxes are particularly interesting because they demonstrate the level of federal spending in the state for any given year. There are also some very complimentary letters to Mansfield for his efforts on his constituents' behalf. As mentioned above, some related material appears in other series, especially Federal Agencies.

Series XVIII: Senate: Intergovernmental Correspondence, 1953-1977

27 linear feet

The material collected here primarily relates to the internal affairs of the Senate. The volume of correspondence grows markedly after Mansfield's selection as Majority Leader. Most of the documents concern fairly mundane matters like assigned parking spaces and requisitioning typewriters for the office. The series begins with several boxes of miscellaneous personal files arranged chronologically. These are followed by other Senate affairs boxes and boxes relating to Majority Leadership. Beginning at Box 40, the remainder of the series is composed of folders for specific senators, listed alphabetically. There are newspaper clippings, government reports, copies of the Congressional Record, voting record tallies, and telegrams, but the majority of the folders contain letters.

Mansfield's arrival in the Senate is marked by routine administrative documents including letters from the Sergeant at Arms and a copy of Senate Rules. There are copies of Mansfield's letters regarding committee appointments and his radio broadcasts. Later there are letters regarding Senate employees, reservations in the Senate dining room, security clearance notices, Mansfield's staff, scheduling of hearings and meetings, and unofficial advocacy of pending legislation. Odds and ends included here are directories of the Congressional Secretaries Club, maps of the Senate Office Building, reports on restoration of the Capitol, press releases from President Johnson, and plans for plaques in John F. Kennedy's old Senate office.

The files on Majority Leadership also proceed chronologically but contain a more repetitive collection of documents. The folders are divided by Congressional session and focus on record-keeping. The folders contain copies of voting records from the session and attendance lists for each Senator. There are letters to all Senators at the end of most sessions, letters informing Senators of imminent key votes, thank-you letters to the Assistant Senate Whip, Democratic Policy Committee reports, letters regarding legislative oversight, and information regarding Mansfield's responsibilities as Senate Whip. The files for individual Senators vary greatly; those for important Democratic Senators are the most substantial. For example, there is extensive material for Hubert Humphrey and very little Harrison Williams, Jr. Some folders contain policy information like military strategy reports and specific legislation. Others hold requests for autographed pictures for colleague's staffs and press releases. The letters between Senators are very interesting and provide a glimpse of the personal relations among Congressional members. There are a number of very complimentary letters to Mansfield from his Senate colleagues and from constituents regarding their general happiness with his performance in Washington.

The overall organization of the series is fairly clear. Most of the material here does not overlap with other series, though references to particular legislation may appear across several series. The primary value of these documents is to provide a good background for understanding the behind-the-scenes machinations of Senate business.

Series XIX: House/Senate: Personal, 1943-1977

304 linear feet

This voluminous series is focused on correspondence and scheduling; the material contained here is considerably less intimate than the title implies. It covers the entire time that Mansfield spent in Washington and becomes broader as his Senate career progresses. There are huge portions of the series that contain nothing but Christmas cards received or copies of condolence letters sent by Mansfield's office to constituents. It is easy to divide the series into coherent blocks and then follow chronology within those blocks, though locating information in individual boxes can be difficult.

The first one hundred and thirty boxes hold copies of condolence letters sent to constituents. These are cataloged chronologically beginning in 1943. Sometimes the folders are divided alphabetically within a given year. Generally, a folder contains all the letters either a single month or half a year. The letters usually follow the same basic outline, though there are some very personal letters. Of note is Mansfield's letter to Mrs. Roosevelt upon the death of the President in 1945. All of the letters manage to be individual and the volume of letters sent increases dramatically as with Mansfield's importance and a growing staff. Most of the letters are addressed to Montanans who have lost a relative. Condolence letters to the families of servicemen in World War II, Korea, and Vietnam are mixed into the folders during the appropriate time periods. Reply letters from the bereaved and newspaper obituary clippings fill out the folders here and most of the "Miscellaneous" folders contain replies and thank-yous for condolences. Following the condolence letters are almost one hundred boxes of Christmas cards. These include both thank you letters from recipients of Mansfield's cards and the hundreds of incoming cards the Senator and Maureen Mansfield received every year. Most cards are from Montana voters, though congressional colleagues, trade associations, corporations, interest groups, and citizens all over the country are also represented. Thank-you letters for gifts received by the Mansfields are also included here and dozens of Christmas photos sent by constituents appear throughout the series.

The Christmas correspondence is organized chronologically, though some boxes contain no dividing folders. Despite the clear chronological divisions, locating material inside the boxes is quite difficult because of this lack of order. The remainder of the series deals with scheduling and invitations. The invitations are organized chronologically and include designations regarding whether they were accepted or declined. Invitations from Montana are filed separately. The sheer volume of invitations indicates the demands on a Senator's time and the range of people interested in having him appear. The functions range from black tie affairs for ambassadors in Washington to birthday parties in Montana. After Box 302, the invitations are accompanied by daily schedules for both Senator and Maureen Mansfield through the end of the his career in the Senate. There are also schedules for their driver, requests for appointments from constituents and non-constituents alike, and invitations to keep in mind.

While the series is not particularly substantive in some ways, it provides insight into the quantity of mail a Senator receives and the array of social duties that are expected of an elected official. The larger organizational scheme for the series is clear and can be derived from the index. Unfortunately, inside the boxes are thick packets of cards and letters that require considerable time to investigate. Little of the information here appears in other series, though this series also provides valuable background for documents elsewhere.

Series XX: Senate: Secretary to Majority, 1961-1977

14 linear feet

The parameters of this series are unclear but appear to consist of reports on a variety of government projects during the time that Mansfield was Senate Majority Leader. Almost all of the contents are focused on projects inside Montana, though there are national programs represented also. Boxes typically contain information on a single large project and individual folders divide the information chronologically. The series holds letters, official reports, clippings, excerpts from the Congressional Record, copies of legislation, and testimony from Mansfield and Metcalf supporting specific projects.

Boxes contain documents relating to magnetohydrodynamics, Glasgow Air Force Base, and the National Center for Appropriate Technology, among others. Supporting materials include numerous letters from interest groups and constituents to Mansfield. Other letters include those from Senate colleagues, federal agencies like the Office of Coal Research, and Montana State University-Bozeman. Accompanying specific projects are status reports from the governing agencies including an update on Emergency Energy Conservation Programs by the Community Services Administration. There are fourteen copies of the Technical Data Sheet for the Glasgow Air Force Base's proposed National Human Resource Center that were prepared by Mansfield and Metcalf's offices. These share a box with twenty-seven copies of a 1975 report on using Glasgow Air Force Base as a transportation hub for supplying the Alaskan pipeline construction. In addition there is testimony from Senate Appropriation Committee hearings, legislative amendments, and fact sheets on proposed research. Some of the boxes are divided into several bound notebooks on a specific topic. For example the box on magnetohydrodynamics is split into two books, each of which is carefully labeled with numbers corresponding to a detailed index included in the front of the book.

Despite clear organization and helpful indexing in individual boxes, there is little indication why this material appears here and not in already existing series on similar topics. All of the information here could fit into either Federal Agencies or Montana Projects. If a program does not appear in the two larger series it is worth checking here as well, and material here may provide more depth to subjects found elsewhere.

Series XXI: House/Senate: Speeches and Reports, 1942-1977

36.5 linear feet

This series is primarily documentary and is evenly divided between collections of clippings and copies of speeches. The series covers Mansfield's entire tenure in Washington. The organization of the series is clear and coherent. The first thirty-three boxes contain clippings, and the speeches listed chronologically beginning in 1952 start at Box 35. The clippings are from newspapers, magazines, and the Congressional Record. They appear to have been compiled by Mansfield's staff and include a broad range of subjects. The boxes initially begin with folders divided by subject, with all the clippings on a given topic grouped together. These include topics like foreign affairs, Berlin, Asia, and H. H. Adberson. Though subject divisions help locate information, a "Montana Affairs" folder might hold information on local news, federal projects in the state, and editorials from newspapers around Montana. The boxes shift to chronological divisions and contain unsorted clippings for any given month in a single folder. For example the "July 1973" file holds stories about cloud seeding, library funding, real estate sales, and a Butte fire. It is unclear why some categories of clippings like Asia appear here and not in the Foreign Relations series, but it is worth checking both places for information. The clippings do show both what news interested Mansfield's office over more than thirty years and a progression of news highlights from Montana over that same span.

The collected speeches begin in 1952 and proceed chronologically to 1976. They include drafts and copies of speeches Mansfield made. Testimony for House and Senate hearings, transcripts of radio and television broadcasts, and press releases from Mansfield's office also appear in these boxes. Many of the speeches and addresses were printed in the Congressional Record and copies are in the files. There are also copies of speeches, testimony, and press releases from other members of Montana's Congressional delegation. The speeches portion of the series serves as a nice complement to the rest of the collection by providing Mansfield's actual words on a plethora of topics documented in other series.

There are also many of Mansfield's speeches and materials related to them located in Series XIX: Personal.

In 2012 this series was reviewed in advance of digitization. Duplicates were removed; folder titles cleaned up when needed; and untranscribed folder titles were added resulting in some renumbering of folders in boxes 36-51.

Series XXII: Senate: Leadership, 1961-1977

72 linear feet

This series includes an amalgamation of information relating to Mansfield's time as Senate Majority Leader. The documents range from voting and attendance records for Senators during a Congressional session to memorabilia from Maureen Mansfield's trips abroad with the Kennedys and Johnsons. The bulk of the series focuses on boxes relating to legislation, foreign affairs, and other policy business in the Senate. There are also files on weekly Majority Conference meetings and files for individual people including constituents, ambassadors, General MacArthur, and Jacqueline Kennedy. The series holds letters, reports, press releases, clippings, survey results, minutes for informal Democratic leadership meetings, and memorandums from the Central Intelligence Agency.

The structure of the series is inconsistent, though parts of the series are clearly organized. The first boxes in the series contain basic housekeeping documents from the Senate. These include voting worksheets on various bills, absentee lists, attendance records for each senator, and copies of the Congressional Record. The boxes are not arranged chronologically but individual folders are labeled by Congressional session. Following these boxes are about fifty that contain material on a wide variety of topics. There is no clear organizing principle and most of this information overlaps with other series. For example the folder "Legislation-Gun Control (Firearms)" holds letters from interest groups, copies of Mansfield's letters and statements on the issue, a working draft of the bill, and newspaper clippings. Generally these folders are titled by legislative subject or foreign affairs area. Individual nations have their own folders, though there are regional folders as well. For example, there are extensive files on the Middle East concerning the 1967 Egypt-Israeli war. Some of the legislation files do have a specifically leadership slant and contain documents analyzing legislative strategies for passing pending bills. Progress reports on President Johnson's legislative agenda, synopses of Senate activity for a given Congressional session, and letters from the Democratic Policy Committee also reveal leadership issues. The foreign affairs folder tends to be general but also contains information like choices for Great Britain's bicentennial gift that concern Mansfield's leadership position in the Senate. The synopsis reports from the weekly Majority Conference meetings are especially interesting because they chronicle candid policy discussions among Congressional Democratic leaders. These reports are collected chronologically by Congressional session and also include meetings on particularly important topics like the nation's economic situation in 1970. The end of the series has a number of folders labeled "personal" and containing correspondence and reports relating to the person on the title. Typically the letters pertain to business connected with Mansfield's majority leadership and many are on purely partisan matters. The folder on Charles Ferris provides an interesting glimpse into the importance of party workers in determining the practices of elected officials. Some of the folders contain nothing more than thank-you letters for helping a constituent gain contacts abroad while others hold information about Senate scandals like the resignation of Secretary of the Majority Baker.

The series is divided into seven subseries: Attendance Records; Domestic Affairs; Foreign Affairs; Leadership Functions; Speeches, Trips, and Reports; Policy Committee; and Majority Leaders Office. The attendance records and voting tallies are easy to follow. The following foreign affairs and legislation files show no particular structure and adjacent folders might contain a bill from 1966 and another from 1974. The Majority Conference meetings follow chronologically but the personal files have no apparent order. Finding specific information here is difficult and folder names are probably the best guide to the hidden treasures about the real workings of American government.

Series XXIV: House/Senate: Clippings and Scrapbooks, 1903-1982

316 volumes and 0.25 linear feet

This series contains albums and folders of newspaper and magazine clippings about Mansfield or collected by his staff. The clippings are from Montana-based, national, and international publications. There are numerous profiles of Mansfield and of his close political associates, news articles on crucial issues and events, and analyzes of legislation and political events. Dates are occasionally added to the articles. Most of the albums are simple chronologies, but some focus on particular events, including John F. Kennedy's assassination, campaigns and elections, Kennedy's 1963 trip to Montana, the 1964 Montana floods, trips to Mexico and that Far East, and the Mansfield Lecture Series at The University of Montana. There are index volumes for 1963 and 1964. The albums also contain campaign materials, a few photographs, programs, and certificates. There are also presentation albums given Mansfield on important occasions, including Olivet College commencement and several informational binders put together by the Park Service and the Forest Service to inform Mansfield of issues of interest. Most are from Mansfield's congressional period, but there is a bit of overlap with his term as Ambassador.

Materials are divided into two subseries: Clippings and Scrapbooks. They are arranged chronologically within each category.

Series XXV: Senate: Card File, 1953-1977

307 linear feet

This series consists of a boxed card file that was apparently used in Mansfield's senatorial office. The cards index correspondence received from Montana constituents by Mansfield and refer to correspondent name and town in Montana, dates and subjects. Some cards also include box numbers, but it is unclear to which boxes these refer.

Cards are arranged alphabetically by correspondent.

Series XXVII: House/Senate/Ambassador: Moving Images, 1956-1987

132 pieces

This series consists of 55 reels of 16 mm film and 77 videotapes in 3/4', VHS, Beta, and 2' formats. Most were recorded by the major television networks, the Senate and House recording studio, or other professionals. Venues include interviews, single and joint presentations, campaign materials, video conferences, and ceremonies and events. There are also tapes that focus exclusively on other individuals, including Ronald Reagan. Several tapes and films were made during events at The University of Montana, including the establishment of the Mike Mansfield Endowment Lecture Series and subsequent lecturers and other events at the Mansfield Center. There are numerous recordings of Mansfield's appearances on television programs, including Face the Nation, Washington Conversation, Eyewitness to History, 60 Minutes, and Good Morning America. There are also numerous materials relating to John F. Kennedy, including the eulogy delivered by Mansfield. Other materials focus on Mansfield's time as ambassador, and include President Reagan's 1983 visit to Japan and interviews of Mansfield on Japanese television. Materials are mostly in English, but there is some Japanese.

Materials are arranged in five Subseries by format: 16mm film, 3/4 Inch Video, VHS Video, Beta Video, and Two-inch Video. Within these Subseries, materials are arranged chronologically.

Series XXIX: House/Senate/Ambassador: Awards and Memorabilia, 1937-1986 and undated

40 oversize boxes

This series contains a wide variety of awards and memorabilia that Mansfield owned or was given as gifts and recognition. It is distinct from the Art Objects series because most objects are of a more documentary than artistic nature. Objects of note include badges from Democratic National Conventions, a piece of marble from the U.S. Capitol taken during remodeling, and many souveniers of the ambassadorial period.

Series XXX: Ambassador: General Correspondence, 1977-1988

21 linear feet

This series consists of Mansfield's correspondence during his ambassadorship, and includes mostly letters to and from U.S. congressmen; embassy associates; constituents about concerns; businesses; and people in Montana. The letters are generally personal, not form, letters, and a carbon copy of Mansfield's reply is usually included. Most materials are in English, but there are a few things in Japanese.

Materials are arranged chronologically, then alphabetically within years. Letters are alphabetical by correspondent name in most folders; the full name of the correspondent was typed on the long edge of the letter by Mansfield's staff for easy location of individual pieces.

Series XXXI: Ambassador: Congressional Correspondence, 1977-1983

2.5 linear feet

This series includes letters to and from U.S. congressmen on issues that they wished to call to Mansfield's attention. The letters are generally personal, not form, letters, and a carbon copy of Mansfield's reply is usually included.

Materials are arranged chronologically, then alphabetically by correspondent within years.

Series XXXII: Ambassador: Speeches, 1976-1988

2.5 linear feet

This series consists of typescript texts of speeches that Mansfield gave at meetings, seminars, and ceremonies as ambassador. The speeches are, in most cases, typed on press release stationary, but are simply the text of the speech. Some are annotated. Most have the date, place, and occasion for the speech's delivery, but not all. A few are accompanied by programs and clippings about the event. Arranged chronologically.

Series XXXIV: Ambassador: Scrapbooks and Albums, 1977-1985

12.5 linear feet

This series consists of scrapbooks and albums compiled by Mansfield's staff. They contain mostly newspaper clippings, letters, program, and invitations. Most are professional, but a few are personal materials relating to wedding anniversaries, birthdays, and other important events. Most of the materials are in English, but a few are in Japanese or French. Mansfield's staff often annotated the materials as they assembled albums, adding last names when only the first name was signed to a letter, for example.

Materials are arranged chronologically.

Series XXXV: Ambassador: Art Objects, 17th century-1988

600 pieces

This series consists of art objects that Mansfield collected or received as gifts during his terms as representative, senator, or ambassador, mostly the latter. Most of the art objects are from the Far East, including Japan, China, Burma, and Thailand. However, there are also numerous objects from Mexico, the Middle East, and the United States, particularly gifts from Montana constituents.

The objects are divided into fourteen Subseries: Boxes and Incense Burners; Dolls and Masks; Cartoons, Caricatures, and Drawings; Knives and Swords; Medals and Jewelry; Musical Instruments; Other Objects; Paintings; Paper Arts; Prints and Posters; Sculpture; Tableware; Textiles; and vases.

Objects are arranged in their subseries according to accession number.

Series XXXVI: House/Senate/Ambassador: Photographs, 1942-1988

approx. 7500 images

The photographs in this collection were gathered by Mansfield's office from a variety of sources. A few snapshots were produced by Mansfield himself, but the bulk of the images were taken by news and commercial photographers at official events and ceremonies. Maureen Mansfield appears in many of the images with the Senator or by herself. Not all of the photographers are identified; researchers wishing to republish the images should be aware of the difficulty of clearing copyright. There are no photographs of the Mansfields taken before his election to the House in 1942, nor are there images that postdate his ambassadorship. Many of the images are official portraits; there are autographed portraits from several presidents and high officials in the United States government. There is especially complete coverage of Mansfield's Asia trips beginning in 1944.

Most of the images were originally housed in albums assembled by Mansfield's staff and by persons who gave him the albums as gifts. The titles of the albums have been retained, but the photographs have been removed and listed individually. Identifications and dates were transcribed from the albums as available; many of the photographs, particularly those from the ambassadorial period, are not well identified.

A few albums have been left intact because of the mix of materials inside or the intrinsic value of the album. These are mostly from the ambassadorial period, and are listed at the end of the series.

A portion of this series includes small framed photographs with individual numbers. Many of these are autographed as well. These are listed at the beginning of the series.

98-1161: Montana Public Works Projects 1960. Water Supply and Treatment Complex-- The building itself is 145' X 70' and is a one-story structure with two-thirds of its working area located below ground level. Adjoining sludge beds, two in number, cover a five acre area. The tire complex will be used to take water from the Missouri River and treat it to remove foreign matter; then filtering, chlorinating it, etc., to make it potable. The project is now 38% complete, September 19, 1960

Biographical Note +/-

Howard McCord was born on November 3, 1932, in El Paso, Texas. After a hitch in the U.S. Navy during the Korean War, he returned to El Paso and attended Texas Western College receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree in Business. The following year he received a Master of Arts degree in English from the University of Utah. In 1960, he began teaching at Washington State University offering courses in Poetry and Eastern Civilizations. He also began the graduate program in Creative Writing. In 1965 he was awarded a Fulbright scholarship which allowed him to travel extensively in India and Nepal and study for a year at the University of Mysore. In 1971, he was appointed Professor of English and Director of the MFA program at Bowling Green State University. The North Carolina Poetry Circuit selected him as visiting poet for the fall of 1971, and he gave readings at campuses throughout the state. Besides his studies in India, he also traveled through Iceland and published a book of poetry about his trip. His published works include poems in over 15 collections of poetry, as well as inclusion in numerous journals and monographs. From 1960 to 1977 his Tribal Press published many works of poetry in various formats.

William D. Taylor, Papers, 1938-71

Inventory

Prepared by Leslie Warren, Mar. 17, 1977
Prepared for World Wide Web by Barbara Bass, May 30, 1997
4 rsb's, 3 document boxes, 5.75 cubic ft., 11th floor

Biography

William D. Taylor was born in Hartford, Kansas on Dec. 5, 1903. He received his Master and Bachelor of Arts degrees from the University of Washington where his family had moved when Taylor was at an early age.

Taylor began his journalism career as a reporter for the Spokane (Washington) Daily Chronicle. He taught at Arizona State University and Northwestern University before coming to Kent State University. Taylor was the first Chairman of the School of Journalism from 1936-1963. The new architecture and journalism building was named for Taylor after Pres. White learned that he was to retire during the year (1967) that the new building would be opened.

He was given a commendation for pioneering leadership in education for press photography by the National Press Photographers Association in 1949. In 1950 he was awarded the Governor's Award for advancement and in 1952 he won the Crusade for Freedom Citation. In 1961 a journalism alumni award was established and named the William Taylor Award and has been presented to an alumus each year since.

Taylor served on boards for the Canton Art Institute and the Canton Symphony Orchestra and many other community organizations including the Kent Rotary where he held the position of president at one time.

Taylor retired in 1967 and kept in contact with his students and they with him. He served on the Inauguration Committee for President Robert I. White and Presidential Search Committee in 1971. He served as a trustee from 1969 until his death on Nov. 3, 1975 at the age of 71.

Collection on Deutsche Guggenheim Berlin

Collection on Deutsche Guggenheim Berlin

COLLECTION OVERVIEW

Repository: Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum Archives.

Creator: Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum Archives

Title: Collection on Deutsche Guggenheim Berlin

Call Number: A0054

Dates: 1948, 1985, 1997-2013 (bulk 1997-2012)

Volume: 12 cubic ft. (11 boxes)

Historical Abstract: Deutsche Guggenheim Berlin opened on November 7, 1997 as a partnership between the Solomon R. Guggenheim Foundation and Deutsche Bank. Designed by American architect Richard Gluckman, the space was established to organize and present exhibitions of modern and contemporary art. The exhibition space hosted three to four important exhibitions each year, many of which showcased a work specially commissioned by an artist. The exhibition program and the day-to-day management of the museum was the joint responsibility of the two partners. The museum closed in early 2013.

Scope and Content Abstract: The Collection on Deutsche Guggenheim Berlin contains materials collected by the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum Archives to document exhibitions and events at Deutsche Guggenheim Berlin. The bulk of the collection consists of non-unique materials, such as press kits, press clippings, slides and digital photographs, brochures, and the Deutsche Guggenheim Magazine. Documentation within the collection begins with the opening of the exhibition space in 1997.

Location: OS, IA, TSB

Language: Collection is primarily in English and German.

History of the H.J. Heinz Company (Pittsburgh, Pa.) (1869-1995)

The H.J. Heinz Company was founded in 1869 by Henry John Heinz (1844-1919). Along with his partner, L.C. Noble, H.J. Heinz began to cultivate horseradish on a less than one-acre plot in Sharpsburg, Pennsylvania. Heinz and Noble, producing their product under the brand of Anchor Pickle and Vinegar Works, expanded their business to include over one hundred acres of land, a work force numbering over one hundred, and new products such as pickles, vinegar, and celery sauce. In 1872, E.J. Noble entered the partnership to become Heinz, Noble & Company, and the plant moved to Second Avenue in Pittsburgh. In 1875, when Heinz contracted to buy the products produced by a pickling and bottling company in Woodstock, Illinois, branch distributing houses were opened at St. Louis and Chicago. The Panic of 1873, however, eventually caused Heinz, Noble & Company to go bankrupt by 1875. H.J. Heinz began a new business two months later with help from his brother John and his cousin Frederick. The company became known as F.& J. Heinz from 1876 until 1888. The year 1876 was also significant because they introduced tomato ketchup to the Heinz product lines. Additional products such as apple butter, pepper sauce, and mince meat were also introduced in these early years.

In 1888, H.J. Heinz acquired controlling interest in the Company from his brother John, thus establishing the H.J. Heinz Company. The H.J. Heinz Company expanded dramatically in 1890 with the construction of the factory in Allegheny City along Main Street (later called Progress Street) on the North Side. This plant is still in operation and continues to be the central office. Plants and branch houses were also built in Muscatine, Iowa; Hicksville, New York; and Holly, Michigan, among others. In order to further promote the Heinz name, the Heinz Company participated in many World Fairs, including the 1893 Columbian Exposition in Chicago where the very first pickle pin was distributed. The H.J. Heinz Company became international when the London grocery house of Fortnum and Mason contracted to sell Heinz products. A branch house was established in London, England in 1895 and the first plant opened in England in 1905. The familiar Heinz "57 Varieties" trademark was adopted in 1896 when H.J. Heinz was inspired by an advertisement for "21 Styles" of shoes. Another important milestone occurred in 1898 with the construction of the Heinz Ocean Pier in Atlantic City, New Jersey, where Heinz products and objects of art were exhibited. Advertising continued to play an important role in 1899 with the erection of the largest electrical sign in the world promoting Heinz 57 varieties at the corner of Twenty-third and Broadway in New York City. Furthermore, beginning in 1899, thousands of visitors were escorted through the Pittsburgh plant annually as a way of introducing people to Heinz products.

The H.J. Heinz Company was officially incorporated in 1905 (Pennsylvania approved the incorporation in 1900 and the County Law Department in 1905) with $4 million in stock owned by H.J. Heinz, his cousin Frederick Heinz, his son Howard, W.H. Robinson, R.G. Evans, and his brother-in-law Sebastian Mueller. The Company continued to expand by introducing new products and building more plants at home and abroad. By 1902 there were seven branch factories in the United States and 21 salting stations (salting stations were responsible for pickling cucumbers). An olive factory was built in Seville, Spain, in 1904. Also in 1904, H.J. Heinz had the original two-story brick building (known as "The Little House Where We Began") moved by barge from its original site in Sharpsburg to the plant on the North Side. Heinz stressed the purity of his food products and went to great lengths to maintain clean conditions in his factories for employees. Heinz lobbied for the passage of the Pure Food and Drug Act signed by Theodore Roosevelt in 1906. Heinz practiced a paternalistic approach to management and employer-employee relations. Heinz had an auditorium, roof garden, dining rooms, and a library constructed for the benefit of his employees. Employees received gifts during the holidays and went on company outings to such places as Rock Springs, Pennsylvania.

H.J. Heinz died of pneumonia in 1919 at the age of 75, but the H.J. Heinz Company continued to expand and flourish under his son Howard Heinz (1877-1941). H.J. Heinz chose his second oldest son Howard over his eldest son Clarence to succeed him because of Clarence's ill health and lack of interest in managing the Company. By 1919, the H.J. Heinz Company had over 6,500 employees, 25 branch factories, 85 salting stations, 53 tomato receiving stations, and 111 pickle receiving stations. Business overseas continued to prosper in England and elsewhere in Europe. Additions and renovations continued to be made to the Pittsburgh plant on the North Side. Like his father, Howard maintained a paternalistic relationship with his employees. Many of the improvements made to the Pittsburgh plant were for the welfare of the workers. In 1930, a new auditorium and service building was dedicated to the Heinz employees by Herbert Hoover in a broadcast from the White House. The H.J. Heinz Company survived the Great Depression and continued to build more factories, hire more employees, and undertake ambitious advertising campaigns. Despite labor problems elsewhere, the first strike at Heinz did not occur until 1938 when employees struck for higher wages. The H.J. Heinz Company now had 25 factories in four countries and over 11,000 employees. The successful Heinz line of condensed soup and strained foods was introduced in the 1930s. Howard Heinz died in 1941 and was succeeded by his son H.J. "Jack" Heinz II (1909-1987).

H.J. Heinz II began working for the Company at age 16. He worked with the Company in a number of capacities until he was named president after his father's death. H.J. Heinz II was very concerned with nutrition and public health. The Company became an underwriter for the Nutrition Foundation to help Americans maintain health standards during World War II. In 1944, a Nutritional Research Laboratory was established at Heinz. During the war, Heinz produced canned foods, such as soup and ham and eggs, for the soldiers. In 1942, in an unusual departure from food production, the Heinz factory in Pittsburgh began manufacturing plastic parts for gliders and airplanes to aid in the war effort. Heinz also distributed a number of products manufactured by other companies, such as Sun-Maid Raisins, Lake Shore Honey, and Van Houten's Golden Seal Cocoa. Among the new foods introduced in these years were juices, and dry spaghetti, noodles, and macaroni. The Company became a public corporation in 1946 when it entered the New York Stock Exchange. In 1948, H.J. Heinz II announced that a 15 million dollar building program was scheduled for the Pittsburgh plant. The building program included a new warehouse, vinegar building, and research center. The "Little House Where We Began" was disassembled brick-by-brick and moved from the Heinz plant in Pittsburgh to Greenfield Village in Dearborn, Michigan in 1954. It was reassembled there and exhibited, along with Heinz memorabilia, amidst the other historic buildings.

By the second half of the 20th century, the H.J. Heinz Company had become the global corporation we know today. In 1961, the Company set a record with over 300 million dollars in worldwide sales. The Company purchased the capital stock of Star-Kist Foods, Inc. in 1963; Ore-Ida Foods, Inc. in 1965; and Weight Watchers International, Inc. in 1978. With the death of H.J. Heinz II in 1987, the Company elected Anthony J.F. O'Reilly as the first non-family member became president of the Company. In 1992, a processing plant for soup and baby food was added to the Pittsburgh plant in a project called "HeinzSite, our vision for the future." The Company acquired the All American Gourmet Company and Quaker Oats North American Pet Foods Division in 1995. By 1995, the H.J. Heinz Company's global sales were over 8 billion dollars with almost half coming from its overseas operations and seventy percent from non-Heinz brand products.

Collection Scope and Content Note

The collection contains advertisements, correspondence, label books, pamphlets, scrapbooks, programs, postcards, and other sundry items. The collection primarily documents the products manufactured by the Company between 1920-1939 and 1950-1960. The early history of the H.J. Heinz Company between 1869 and 1900 is not well represented in this collection. The Heinz & Noble period of the Company (1869-1875) is not present at all. There are catalogs and invoices from the FJ Heinz Company and the early H.J. Heinz Company of the 1880's, but not much else. There are very few records related to employees.

The strengths of the collection include the label books and the advertisements. The label books illustrate the complete line of Heinz products between 1888 and 1962. The earliest label books are extremely fragile and for this reason are restricted in their use. The advertisements detail the marketing strategies of the Company between 1901 and 1989, notably the campaign for purer foods at the turn of the century. Additional advertisements can be found in the oversized portion of the collection. (See Separation Note below.) The correspondence in the collection includes letters to H.J. Heinz from his sons Howard and Clifford between 1896 and 1902. There is very little correspondence related to the history of the Company. Noteworthy in the correspondence from H.J. Heinz, however, is a letter written to his cousin Fred Heinz regarding the purchase of the original "House Where We Began" in 1904. In addition, there are numerous letters to Howard Heinz from his sons, H.J. Heinz II and Rust Heinz, while they were attending school in the 1920's. Several letters are addressed to the Heinz Archivist, Ed Lehew, in regard to H.J. Heinz Company memorabilia. The two linear feet of pamphlets and leaflets are generally promotional materials and giveaways. The pamphlets often contain recipes, short histories of the Company, and product information. Significant leaflets include the Heinz Exhibits at the 1939 New York World's Fair, the 1933 Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, and the 1939 Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco. The section labeled "business material" contains the only substantial records of the Company. Present are sales data between 1907 and 1952 and a weekly pickle report detailing the number of bushels and acreage of the crop produced at various locations from 1910 to 1944. There are numerous postcards which illustrate factory work in the H.J. Heinz Company, the Heinz Ocean Pier in Atlantic City, New Jersey, and other attractions. The programs document the H.J. Heinz Company Annual Conventions between 1902 and 1957, as well as various banquets and other special events. There are 12 original recipe books containing experimental recipes for various products between 1902 and 1923. The scrapbooks in the collection contain clippings on the deaths of H.J. Heinz and Howard Heinz, three volumes of clippings from the American Wind Symphony Orchestra, and advertisements between 1920 and 1980.

The H.J. Heinz Company Collection is housed in 33 archival boxes and is arranged alphabetically by folder title with oversized items and loose volumes arranged to the rear. The advertisements are arranged by product and then chronologically. The pamphlets are arranged by size to the rear of the collection.

Collection Overview

Description Collection consists of American song composer Jimmy Van Heusen's papers and materials, both business and personal. Items include an extensive collection of unpublished music manuscripts and song lyrics, published sheet music, correspondence, personal papers, and business documents. Many materials relate to his interactions with Johnny Burke, Sammy Cahn, Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, and others, and to his publishing companies Burke & Van Heusen, Inc. and Van Heusen Music Corporation. Also includes sound and audiovisual materials, including his personal LP collection, unpublished home recordings, and home movies. Photographic material includes both press and personal prints, some negatives, and color slides. Other items include performance scripts, altered lyrics, biographic materials, professionally assembled scrapbooks, and other published materials from his personal collection. In addition to his musical career, the collection highlights his interests in horses and flying, and his domestic life with wife Josephine Van Heusen.

Background Jimmy Van Heusen (1913 – 1990) was an American song composer for radio, films, television, and the stage best known for several enduring standards made popular by Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra. Van Heusen was born in Syracuse, NY on January 26, 1913 as Edward Chester Babcock; his parents were Arthur and Ida May Babcock, and his brother, Wilbur. He acquired his professional name "Jimmy Van Heusen" (borrowed from the Phillips-Van Heusen shirt company) at the age of 16 when he became a radio pianist, singer, and announcer. Jimmy Van Heusen became his primary identity, often more formally as "James Van Heusen," although he was still known to a few intimates as "Chester." He would also compose a small number of songs under the pseudonym "Arthur Williams."

Collection Overview

Description The Oliver Collection consists of approximately 2700 glass plate negatives and photographic prints taken mainly by amateur photographer William Letts Oliver and his son, Roland L. Oliver. Subjects include maritime and yachting scenes, views of California and San Francisco Bay area, University of California at Berkeley, mining, logging, the Bohemian Grove, and the Oliver family.

Background According to a written statement by his son Roland L. Oliver, William Letts Oliver "was born in Valparaiso, Chile, August 6, 1844. [He] was educated in Edinburgh, Scotland, graduated from Edinburgh University as a mining engineer, and then went back to Chile. [In 1861, he went] to Peru, then to San Francisco in 1868 in time for the big earthquake of that year." His experience with nitrates led him to establish the California Cap Company, an explosives business in the East Bay (of the San Francisco Bay Area). In addition, he also owned a company that manufactured the Doak stationary engine used to power pumps on horse-drawn fire engines. He resided Oakland until his death in 1918.

Extent circa 2700 glass plate negatives and photographs 2047 digital objects

Abstract
Berry Gordy founded the Motown Record Corporation in 1959. Motown flourished in the 1960s and 1970s due to Gordy's ability to bring talented individuals aboard, such as Smokey Robinson who produced his first record in 1962. The Gordy Motown Collection was established by Esther Gordy Edwards in November 1972 and includes Sound Recordings and Print Materials that document Motown Records and the other labels established by Berry Gordy from the 1950s, 60s through the late 1980s. The collection is arranged in three record groups, Sound Recordings, Print Materials and Exhibitions and Artifacts, and further arranged by artist, label, and chronology.

Administrative History

Berry Gordy, born November 29, 1929, has his first big break in the music industry in 1957 with “Reet Petite”, which was the first of four hits he wrote for Jackie Wilson over the next two years. Gordy also started recording Smokey Robinson and the Miracles and by 1958 he was producing and leasing recordings of the Miracles, Marv Johnson, and Eddie Holland to national record labels. He then produced many of the releases on the Anna label, established by Gwen Gordy, Anna Gordy, and Billy Davis, and founded the Jobete label for his own songs. Finally, with Smokey Robinson’s encouragement, he borrowed $800 from the Ber-Berry Co-Op created by his sister, Esther Gordy Edwards, and founded the Motown Record Corporation in 1959, so he could take full control of his operations instead of sharing royalties with a publisher.

Motown flourished in the 1960s and 1970s due to Gordy’s ability to bring other talented individuals aboard, such as Smokey Robinson who produced his first record in 1962. Motown was also a family business with several family members contributing to both its administration and its talent. After it became established, Esther Gordy Edwards took an active role in management and booking tours, including the Motown Revue in the early 1960s. By the mid-1960s she served as Vice President and Chief Executive Officer until Smokey Robinson succeeded her in 1972.

As Motown became more successful, Gordy wanted to pursue other entertainment ventures. West Coast offices were established as early as 1966 and in 1972 the company completely relocated to Los Angeles. Esther Gordy Edwards stayed in Michigan and was put in charge of the remaining Motown office in Detroit. Motown Industries was established in 1983 as part of corporate reorganization with Berry Gordy as Chairman. Meanwhile, Gordy Edwards founded the Motown Museum in the Hitsville U.S.A. building in 1985. In January 1988, Berry Gordy was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Then on June 28, 1988, Gordy sold his interests in Motown Records to the Music Corporation of America (MCA) and Boston Ventures for $61 million.

Scope and Contents

With the founding of the Gordy Motown collection in 1972, Eastern Michigan University Archives received new releases on a regular basis through 1988. The total collection consists of more than 2,200 recordings as well as 7 boxes of printed materials with an emphasis on recordings made from 1960-1988. The collection of recordings includes: U.S. 7-inch singles, foreign 7-inch singles, and 12-inch albums and singles. The collection of print materials includes: sheet music, songbooks, newspaper clippings, promotional materials, photographs, publications, record charts, production materials, and collection inventories.

The collection is arranged into three record groups based on format: Sound Recordings, Print Materials, and Exhibits.

Sound Recordings is further subdivided into two series: 45 rpm Singles and Albums. The 45 rpm domestic Singles were produced and distributed in the United States and are sorted by label and arranged numerically within each label by record number. The 45 rpm Singles that were produced and distributed outside the United States and are arranged alphabetically by country then alphabetically by label within each country then numerically within each label by record number. The Albums are arranged alphabetically by artist or band name then alphabetically by title within each artist.

Print Materials are arranged into five series: Sheet Music and Complete Scores, and Songbooks which are arranged alphabetically by title; Clippings, Promotional Materials, and Photographs; Publications; and Catalogs, Production Materials, and Inventories which are all arranged chronologically. The photographs sub-series primarily contains photographs of album covers. Items in the promotional materials sub-series include playing cards, membership cards, and postcards for various musical groups.

The Exhibitions and Artifacts record group documents the Henry Ford / Greenfield Village Exhibit in 1995-1997 in addition to documenting objects used for promotional purposes at industry conventions and other events. Albums within the record group are arranged alphabetically by artist, while the other materials in the record group are arranged chronologically.

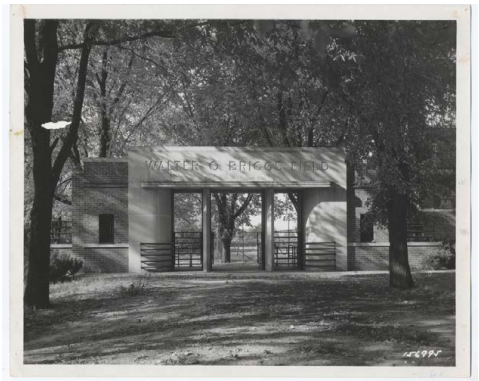
Eastern Michigan University Archives

A guide to the collections and resources available through the University Archives at EMU.

The University Archives at Eastern Michigan University



Archival records take many forms, including bulletins, catalogs, correspondence, floor plans and blue prints, photographs, programs, minutes, reports, scrapbooks, special publications, video and sound recordings. Archives provide firsthand information about the past and are valuable tools for research.

Established in 1970, the mission of the Eastern Michigan University Archives is to "manage the information resources created by the University in support of administration, teaching, research, and service." We appraise, collect, preserve, arrange and describe the records of historical value and make them accessible through online finding aids and the library catalog. In 2009, the Historic Preservation Special Collection was established as part of the University Archives. The mission of this special collection is to document the evolution of the historic preservation movement at the local, national, and international level.

The University Archives is open to administrators, faculty, staff, students, and the public for research. Archives staff will work with researchers to identify relevant source materials.

Classroom support

The University Archive is happy to work with teaching faculty and lecturers to incorporate primary source materials into the learning process. We will arrange tours, orientations, presentations and class visits to incorporate archives' materials in their courses.

The University Archives provides the following services to faculty members:

- Access to materials for assignments
- Small group presentations about using primary source materials
- In-class presentations to large classes about researching with primary source materials and using archives
- Tours for small groups

Biographical Note +/-

Bob Weatherly was the principal historian of Asotin County, Washington. Weatherly was born Feb. 28, 1921 at Clarkston, Washington. He spent much of his life in Asotin and Garfield counties, the exception being some years (1942-1953) in the United Sta tes Navy. He was a partner in a ranch located in Asotin and Garfield Counties until his retirement in 1985. He lived at Asotin from about 1960 until his death.

Weatherly was the author of several books and many newspaper features on local history, and was long active in local historical groups. He was also a collector of antique and historic objects of all kinds. Weatherly died at Clarkston in December of 1997.

Collection Overview

Description

The Michael McClure Papers: Additions, 1874-2002, (bulk 1949-2002), present a comprehensive view of his work as a writer, spanning the length of McClure's career. The bulk consists of notebooks and writings, including poems, prose, and plays in manuscript, draft and final form. There is very little correspondence. There are also professional papers, which include posters, flyers, and broadsides, many advertising readings by McClure and others, and productions of his plays, including The Beard. There is a small amount of artwork by McClure, his family, and friends; and materials by and about artists Bruce Conner, Wallace Berman, and George Herms from William Jahrmarkt and the Batman Gallery, among others. The small amount of personal papers include records and family correspondence. These papers complement The Bancroft Library's other extensive holdings documenting the postwar San Francisco poetry renaissance and its influence on American literature.

Background

Poet, playwright, novelist, and essayist Michael McClure has spread his literary net wide, but is best known as one of the leading poets of the Beat generation. Born in Marysville, Kansas on October 20, 1932, McClure became intimately associated with the counter-culture of the West coast. His childhood was initially spent in the environs of Seattle, Washington, but McClure and family were to return to Kansas where he finished high school and attended college, first at the University of Wichita, Kansas and then the University of Arizona. He finished his studies in San Francisco, receiving his Bachelor of Arts from San Francisco State College in June of 1955. During this time he studied with poet Robert Duncan. Poetry is a muscular principle- an athletic song or whisper of flashy thought. We can be as serious as blue-black gloom or bright as a buttercup in the dawn. The spirit of poetry is loops we send out from the expanding helix of our lives. With poetry we can meet an old perception on a mountain top or in a subway, or view a new perception loping in the distance

Collection Overview

Description California Faces consists of 1,232 photographic and other pictorial portraits of 416 men and women prominent in California's history. The portraits, selected from The Bancroft Library Portrait Collection, offer a diverse selection of artists, writers, businessmen, politicians, scientists, entertainers, and others, primarily from the early nineteenth-century until the present. Individuals from the San Francisco Bay Area tend to predominate since the library's holdings are strongest in this area.

Extent 1,232 images selected from The Bancroft Library's Portrait Collection ; various sizes 1230 digital objects

Collection Overview

Description Mary A. B. Brazier was born in England in 1904 and died in Falmouth, MA in 1955. She received a Ph. D. in physiology and biochemistry from the University of London in 1930, began neuroscience research at Maudsley Hospital, London, and in 1940 came to Boston on a Rockefeller fellowship. She remained at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Harvard University, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for twenty years, then moved to the Brain Research Institute at UCLA until her retirement. She was internationally known as an outstanding neuroscientist, historian, author, and editor. This collection consists mainly of materials pertinent to her historical research: photocopies of texts, notes, photographs and negatives of some 500 individuals and 40 institutions important in the development of the neurosciences; there is some emphasis on Russian neurophysiology and on instances of early calculating machines. About a tenth of the collection consists of professional and personal materials, mainly reprints and foreign-language copies of her books, plus sparse biographical material.

Background Brain researcher, neuroscientist, electroencephalographer, historian, computer analyst, author and editor par excellance, international organizer -- "Mollie" Brazier's career can not be summed up easily or tersely. She was a vibrant figure in the community of those studying the electrical activity of the nervous system, and her passing was mourned by colleagues around the world.

Extent 12.3 linear feet (26 boxes)

Philip J. Klass Collection 1948-2000

American Philosophical Society

36.0 Linear feet

An electrical engineer and senior editor for Aviation Week and Space Technology, Philip Klass began investigating UFOs in 1966 after participating in a panel discussion on the subject for the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE). From that time forward Klass has investigated UFO sightings in an effort to find a credible prosaic explanation, and became one of the most widely recognized UFO

"debunkers." A founding member of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal (CSICOP), serving on the Executive Council and the UFO subcommittee, Klass has authored seven books and numerous articles on UFOs, including the Skeptics UFO Newsletter in 1989. In the early 1970s, he became interested in space based weapons, and began collecting material related to the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) for a possible book. The Klass Collection relate to his forty-plus years of investigating UFO sightings, and includes correspondence with many of the ... Read More

PRIVACY POLICY

About OCLC

OCLC Online Computer Library Center, Inc. ("OCLC") is a nonprofit, membership, computer library service and research organization dedicated to the public purposes of furthering access to the world's information and reducing information costs. The following policy describes how we collect and use information we receive from visitors to our site. OCLC is committed to protecting end-user privacy online. If a user submitting personal information is suspected of being younger than 13 years of age, OCLC will delete this information from its records in accordance with the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act (15 U.S. Code, 6501 et seq). Some products may contain additional privacy provisions in their terms and conditions.

How and What Information is Collected

(1) Personally identifiable information

a. Personally identifiable information may be collected in conjunction with necessary processes. This information may include, but are not limited to: (1) First and last name, (2) Address, (3) ZIP/Postal Code, (4) Email address, (5) Telephone number, (6) Affiliated library information, or (7) Credit card numbers and other billing information.

(2) IP Address

a. The OCLC web site logs IP addresses for system administration purposes. Your IP address can help us diagnose service problems and provide session statistics.

(3) Cookies

a. OCLC uses a common feature of Web sites known as a cookie to store your member ID and state information about where you are in the site, as well as to track current and past activity. OCLC does not store any of your personal information in cookies. A cookie is simply a small data file that the Web site writes to your browser. A cookie can't read any other data off your hard drive, pass on a virus, or read cookie files created by other sites. You can refuse cookies by turning them off in your browser, however, the OCLC web site's functionality may be affected.

(4) Registration

a. In order to take advantage of some features of the site, you must register and create a member account. An OCLC online registration form may require you to provide information such as your name, email address, a User Name, and a password.

(5) Usage and Circulation Records

a. Any information collected may be used to analyze usage, evaluate service effectiveness and provide training material, and to facilitate library research.

(6) Questions, Comments, and Entries to Open Forums and Reviews

a. We encourage you to provide personal information ONLY in fields specifically designed for such information such as registration and log-on.
b. Comments and entries to forums and reviews are posted in real time. Consequently, your entire submission may appear in an open forum or review. Please be aware that any personal information you include within this entry field will be available to the public. OCLC will make reasonable attempts to remove personal information included in submissions.

Why Information is Collected

The majority of the information we collect is analyzed so that we can improve your OCLC experience. This information is not shared outside of OCLC except as described in this policy. If necessary, we will use your information to contact you. Except as permitted by this policy, OCLC does not send unsolicited e-mails

The purposes for collecting information and contacting you are:

(1) Registration
(2) Fulfilling requests and orders for OCLC products, programs and services
(3) Customer service and support
(4) Providing information and answering questions related to the use and purchase of services.
(5) Providing updates on goods and services and notification of special offers
(6) Delivering newsletters
(7) Providing notification of service expiration dates.
(8) Facilitating participation in an OCLC Open Forum or Review
(9) Compiling aggregate statistical and academic analysis

(1) Sometimes OCLC may identify a new purpose outside of the stated purposes listed above and it will provide notification or, if the purpose involves the use of sensitive information, it will seek your consent to use and disclose personal information for that purpose.

(2) Your information will not be used for reasons beyond the scope of the stated purposes and OCLC will never willfully disclose personally identifiable information to a third party outside of the stated purposes unless:

a. You have violated the Terms of Use or another applicable Agreement, or
b. We are required to do so by law, or
c. We provide notification to you

Third Parties

At times, OCLC partners with third parties to complete the stated purposes, and the third parties may require use of personally identifiable information. For instance, information must be disclosed to process orders through the online store, interact with Regional Service Providers, and to market products or services to you. We have taken reasonable steps to ensure the protection of your information, and to prevent the loss, misuse, or alteration of that information.

OCLC uses a third party service for the management and delivery of its opt-in e-mail communication. Their privacy policy can be found at http://www.whatcounts.com/company/privacy.html. Information related to the delivery and effectiveness of e-mail communications, such as aggregate open and click-through rates, are provided to and used by OCLC to help deliver the best content to the subscriber.

We currently contract with online partners to help manage and optimize our Internet business and communications. We use the services of a marketing company to help us measure the effectiveness of our advertising and how visitors use our site. To do this, we use Web beacons and cookies provided by our marketing company on this site. The type of information we collect includes pages visited, searches conducted, items selected, and library sites visited. By supplementing our records, this information helps us learn things like what pages are most attractive to our visitors, which designs are most effective for delivering visitors to libraries, and what kinds of marketing efforts our visitors respond to most positively. Although our marketing company manages the information coming from our site on our behalf, we control how that data may and may not be used. If you do not want to help us learn how to improve our site, offers and marketing strategy, you can opt out of our ability to analyze such data by visiting http://www.omniture.com/privacy/2o7.

This web site contains links to other sites. Such links do not imply OCLC's endorsement or guarantee of the products, information or recommendations provided by any third party site. Please be aware that OCLC is not responsible for the privacy practices of such other sites. We encourage our end-users to be aware when they leave our site and to read the privacy statements of each and every web site that collects personally identifiable information. This privacy statement applies solely to information collected by this web site.

Opt-Out Features

(1) To tell us you don't want to receive communication from OCLC, such as email newsletter announcing new features or content, opt out at registration, if available, or send an email to privacy@oclc.org

(2) You can decline to provide personal information to us or opt out at anytime. However, this may limit your ability to utilize the services on the web site.

Security

We have put in place reasonable measures to protect the personal information contained in our databases. Measures are in place to prevent unauthorized access and maintain appropriate use and accuracy. Furthermore, data that is transmitted in association with our online store is encrypted and is secured by SSL.

Your password is a component of our security system. As such, it is your responsibility to protect it. Do not share your password with any third parties. If your password has been compromised for any reason, you should change it immediately.

Access to Information

OCLC provides links in their e-mail communications and web pages for managing the information that is sent. If you have questions about the information collected about yourself, would like to update or make changes to your information, or are concerned that your information is inaccurate or incomplete please contact privacy@oclc.org. We make a reasonable effort to ensure that information contained in our database is accurate and, when necessary, current.

Contact and Notice

From time to time, we may update this privacy policy. We will notify you about material changes in the way we treat personal information by placing notice on our site. We encourage you to periodically check back and review this policy so that you always will know what information we collect, how we use it and to whom we disclose it.

Terms and conditions

OCLC Online Computer Library Center, Inc. ("OCLC") ResearchWorks

Terms of Use

Welcome to OCLC Research's Web page. The terms set forth below (the "Agreement") govern your use of this Web site and/or your use of any of the components found at this Web site ("Site"). By using or visiting the Site, you expressly agree to be bound by this Agreement and to follow all terms and applicable laws and regulations governing the Site. If you do not agree with this Agreement, your sole recourse is not to use the Site.

1. Proper Use. The content and software on this Site is the property of OCLC and/or its suppliers or licensors, and such content and software is protected by U.S. and international intellectual property laws. Accordingly, you agree that you will not copy, reproduce, alter, modify, create derivative works, or publicly display any content (except for your own non-commercial use) from the Site. You also agree that you will not use any robot, spider, other automated device, or manual process to monitor or copy any content from the Site unless explicitly stated otherwise. Furthermore, the Site is provided to you for your own use, and it may not be used for any commercial purposes. For example, you may not do any of the following without written permission from OCLC: use the Site to sell a product or service; use the Site to increase traffic to your Web site for commercial reasons, such as advertising sales; take the results from the Site and reformat and display them, or mirror any portion of the Site on your Web site. Any use of the Site that infringes upon the intellectual property rights of OCLC and/or its suppliers or licensors, or that is for commercial purposes will be investigated and OCLC shall have the right to take appropriate civil and criminal legal action. In addition to these terms and conditions, any software that you download may have its own terms and conditions as well.
2. User Contribution and Privacy. OCLC encourages community comments and suggestions on our research endeavors, and reserves the right to modify, improve, or otherwise inform ongoing projects as a result of such input. Any such input should be offered without expectation of compensation, partnership, or recognition beyond the association of the comment with its author in the forum in which it is offered. OCLC shall have the right to retain and use any such Information in current or future products or services, without further compensation to you. To the extent such Information is protectable under intellectual property laws, you agree to cooperate with OCLC as needed to provide such protection as OCLC may desire and you agree to assign your rights to such Information to OCLC. The cost of any such assignment will be at OCLC's expense.
3. No Warranty. Please note that the services provided as part of this Site are experimental in nature. They have not been tested in any manner, and OCLC does not represent that they are reliable, accurate, complete, or otherwise valid. ACCORDINGLY, THE SITE IS PROVIDED "AS IS" WITH NO WARRANTY OF ANY KIND AND YOU USE THE SERVICE AT YOUR OWN RISK. OCLC EXPRESSLY DISCLAIMS ANY WARRANTY, EXPRESS OR IMPLIED, REGARDING THE SITE OR ITS CONTENT, INCLUDING ANY IMPLIED WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY, FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE OR NON-INFRINGEMENT. Some states do not allow the exclusion of warranty, so the above exclusions may not apply to you.
4. Limitation of Liability. UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES WILL OCLC BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ANY

INDIRECT, INCIDENTAL, CONSEQUENTIAL, SPECIAL OR EXEMPLARY DAMAGES ARISING OUT OF OR IN CONNECTION WITH USE OF THE SITE, WHETHER OR NOT OCLC HAS BEEN ADVISED OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGES. UNDER NO CIRCUMSTANCES SHALL OCLC BE LIABLE TO YOU FOR ANY AMOUNT. Some states do not allow the exclusion or limitation of incidental or consequential damages, so the above limitation and exclusions may not apply to you.

5. Release and Waiver. To the maximum extent permitted by applicable law, you hereby release, and waive all claims against OCLC and its employees, suppliers, licensors and agents from any and all liability for claims, damages (actual and consequential), costs and expenses (including litigation costs and attorneys' fees) of every kind and nature, arising out of or in any way connected with use of the Site. If you are a California resident, you waive your rights under California Civil Code § 1542, which states, "A general release does not extend to claims which the creditor does not know or suspect to exist in his favor at the time of executing the release, which if known by him must have materially affected his settlement with the debtor." Residents of other states and nations similarly waive their rights under applicable and/or analogous laws, statutes, or regulations.
6. Modifications of Terms. OCLC shall have the right to modify the terms of this Agreement at any time, which modification shall be effective immediately upon posting to the Site. Accordingly, we suggest that you check this page periodically. To make your review more convenient, we will post a version number or date at the bottom of this page.
7. Violations of Terms. In addition to any legal remedies that OCLC may have for your violation of the terms of this Agreement, OCLC shall also have the right in its sole discretion to suspend or terminate your access to the Site.
8. Hold Harmless and Indemnity. You agree to hold harmless and indemnify OCLC, and its employees, agents and representatives, from and against any third party claim arising from or in any way related to your use of the Site, including any liability or expense arising from all claims, losses, damages (actual and consequential), suits, judgments, litigation costs and attorneys' fees, of every kind and nature. In such a case, OCLC will provide you with written notice of such claim, suit or action
9. No Assignment. You shall not assign this Agreement or assign any rights or delegate any obligations hereunder, in whole or in part, whether voluntarily or by operation of law, without OCLC's prior written consent. Any such purported assignment or delegation by you without OCLC's prior written consent will be null and void and of no force or effect, unless otherwise expressly consented to by OCLC at its sole and absolute discretion.
10. Relationship of the Parties. Notwithstanding any provision hereof, for all purposes of this Agreement each party shall be and act as an independent contractor and not as partner, joint venturer, agent, employee or employer of the other and shall not bind nor attempt to bind the other to any contract.
11. Arbitration. Any controversy or claim arising out of or relating to this Agreement shall be settled by binding arbitration in accordance with the commercial arbitration rules of the American Arbitration Association. Any such controversy or claim shall be arbitrated on an individual basis, and shall not be consolidated in any arbitration with any claim or controversy of any other party. The decision of the arbitrator shall be final and unappealable. The arbitration shall be conducted in Columbus, Ohio, U.S.A., and judgment on the arbitration award may be entered into any court having jurisdiction thereof. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary, OCLC may at any time seek injunctions or other forms of equitable relief from any court of competent jurisdiction.
12. Miscellaneous. If any provision of this Agreement is held to be invalid or unenforceable, such provision shall be deemed superseded by a valid enforceable provision that most closely matches the intent of the original provision and the remaining provisions shall be enforced. OCLC's failure to act with respect to a breach by you or others does not waive OCLC's right to act with respect to subsequent or similar breaches. The failure of OCLC to exercise or enforce any right or provision of these terms and conditions shall not constitute a waiver of such right or provision. The section headings and subheadings contained in this Agreement are included for convenience only, and shall not limit or otherwise affect the terms of this Agreement. This agreement shall be interpreted in accordance with the laws of the State of Ohio. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement between OCLC and you with respect to the subject matter hereof.
