George Herms papers 1890-2009

Getty Research Institute

231.7 linear feet (380 boxes, 65 flatfile folders)

Southern California artist, writer, and musician George Herms was one of the founders of the West Coast assemblage movement. Influenced by the art of his close friend Wallace Berman, his work brings together discards, beach trash, urban detritus and other "found objects" to create a highly original and personal mix of collage, sculpture, and assemblage. The bulk of the papers comprise full documentation of Herms' life and work from 1960-2000.

Merian C. Cooper papers 1921-1977

Brigham Young University - L. Tom Perry Special Collections

9 items 7 cartons (7 linear ft.) 20 oversize boxes (25.5 linear ft.) 2 half boxes (0.5 linear ft.) 75 film reels (56 linear ft.) 43 boxes (21 linear ft.)

The Merian C. Cooper papers cover virtually every aspect of Cooper's life and his varied careers. The papers provide valuable information on documentary and feature motion picture production in the United States from the mid-1920s through the early 1950s, as well as information on world exploration, the United States Air Force (particularly during World War II), and early television. Several Cooper projects that never came to fruition are also documented, especially his unproduced film biography of Lieutenant General Claire C. Chennault of Flying Tiger fame. These projects, commended in the 1950s, represent Cooper's efforts to stay active in the entertainment business. The papers, for the most part, are housed in standard archival document cases. The designations mean oversized boxes for maps, broadsides, large photographs, and certain publications.

Snap Shooting Around the Golden Gate International Exposition, 1939

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

5 albums (560 photographic prints) 191 digital objects

Scope and Content This collection consists of five albums of black and white photographs taken by P. T. Glass of the Golden Gate International Exposition. The exposition was held from February 18 to October 29, 1939 on Treasure Island to celebrate the recent openings of the Golden Gate and Oakland Bay bridges. More than 10 million people visited the exposition. A reorganized exposition was held on the site May 25 through September 29, 1940. The photographs in albums 1-4, often humorously titled, were taken between February 18 and October 29, 1939 as Mr. Glass, sometimes accompanied by his wife, parents, and friends, returned repeatedly to the exposition. The views are mostly exterior shots of the various structures, landscaping, and exhibits of the exposition. Exhibits pictured include the Court of the Seven Seas, Sun Tower, Court of the Moon, Sunken Gardens, Court of Reflections, Star Lady, Arch of Triumph, and Court of Flowers. Many architectural features are shown, as well as ... Read More

Number of containers: 53 boxes, 14 volumes, 2 oversize boxes, and 13 oversize folders Linear feet: Approx. 23

The Michael McClure Papers: Additions, 1874-2002, (bulk 1949-2002), present a comprehensive view of his work as a writer, spanning the length of McClure's career. The bulk consists of notebooks and writings, including poems, prose, and plays in manuscript, draft and final form. There is very little correspondence. There are also professional papers, which include posters, flyers, and broadsides, many advertising readings by McClure and others, and productions of his plays, including The Beard. There is a small amount of artwork by McClure, his family, and friends; and materials by and about artists Bruce Conner, Wallace Berman, and George Herms from William Jahrmarkt and the Batman Gallery, among others. The small amount of personal papers include records and family correspondence. These papers complement The Bancroft Library's other extensive holdings documenting the postwar San Francisco poetry renaissance and its influence on American literature.

ARCHIVEGRID

About ArchiveGrid

ArchiveGrid is a collection of over three million archival material descriptions, including MARC records from WorldCat and finding aids harvested from the web. It's supported by OCLC Research as the basis for our experimentation and testing in text mining, data analysis, and discovery system applications and interfaces. Archival collections held by thousands of libraries, museums, historical societies, and archives are represented in ArchiveGrid.

ArchiveGrid provides access to detailed archival collection descriptions, making information available about historical documents, personal papers, family histories, and other archival materials. It also provides contact information for the institutions where the collections are kept.

ArchiveGrid data is primarily focused on archival material descriptions for institutions in the United States but now also includes information about collections in Australia. This reflects the contribution patterns for descriptions of materials under archival control in WorldCat, which make up the majority of descriptions in ArchiveGrid. We may extend ArchiveGrid beyond its current scope if it is necessary to support OCLC Research experimental objectives.

ArchiveGrid illustrates OCLC's interest in advancing issues important to the archival community. Our work within ArchiveGrid gives OCLC Research a foundation for collaboration and interactions with others in the archival community. We expect to share the results of MARC and EAD tag analysis, provide discovery system analytics for contributors, document investigations of text mining and data visualization, participate in community working groups pursuing improvements to description and discovery, and more. To support those interests and objectives, we'll continue to build this extensive and current aggregation of archival material descriptions, within the constraints of OCLC Research's committed and on-going support for this project.

OCLC previously offered ArchiveGrid as a subscription-based discovery service. The subscription service was discontinued in 2012. While the freely-available OCLC Research ArchiveGrid interface is not a full production service, it shares some of the same attributes. Researchers can expect to use it for discovery of archival materials, and archives can work with OCLC Research to have their materials represented in the aggregation in a reliable and persistent way.

If you have questions about your collection descriptions in ArchiveGrid, please get in touch with us. Interested in contributing? Please let us know that as well.

Frequently Asked Questions

How do we get our finding aids in ArchiveGrid?

Your role in getting your finding aids into ArchiveGrid is simply to give us permission harvest and use them. There are no costs involved, beyond the time and effort on your part to provide us with a way to harvest your finding aid documents. We harvest your finding aids from a webpage you provide to us, and index them in ArchiveGrid. About once every six weeks, we update the ArchiveGrid index by removing all finding aid content, re-harvesting, and re-indexing. Any changes you make on to your finding aids, such as adding, editing, or removing finding aids, will be reflected in ArchiveGrid in its next index update.

Can I contribute finding aids even if I don't belong to OCLC?
Yes you can; OCLC membership is not required to contribute your finding aids to ArchiveGrid. There is no cost to contribute your finding aids, and we can accept them in EAD, HTML, or PDF formats.

Where do you get your collection descriptions?
We index finding aids harvested directly from contributors, and we also include MARC bibliographic records from WorldCat which we identified as Archival material. These WorldCat records describing archival materials constitute about 90% of the collection descriptions in ArchiveGrid.

How do you select WorldCat records for inclusion in ArchiveGrid?
There isn't a simple way to identify a MARC record that describes the types of materials held in archives, manuscript collections, and special collections. In order for a WorldCat record to be extracted into ArchiveGrid, it needs to meet the following criteria:

Has only one library holding symbol attached (though we relax this rule for NUCMC records)
Has a value of b, d, f, g, i, j, k, p, r, or t in MARC Leader byte 6, or the value "a" (language material) in Leader byte 6 and the value "c" (collection) in Leader byte 7, or the value "a" (archival) in Leader byte 8
Has no value of any kind in MARC 260 subfield "a" or "b" (to filter out published works)
Does not have "Bibliography" in the beginning string of a MARC subject heading subfield "a" or "v"
Does not have a MARC 502 field (Theses or dissertation note)
Does not have a MARC 015 field (National bibliography number)
If the record has the material type "book" or "serial", has no value in the MARC 008 or 006 "Nature of Contents" bytes (to eliminate theses, reference works, and other non-archival materials)

This filter isn't always successful. Especially for minimally-cataloged materials, we sometimes see descriptions of unpublished manuscripts of various kinds filter through. But we continue to evaluate and improve the filter as best we can.

Why does the same collection sometimes have two different entries in the ArchiveGrid index?
Duplicate entries result from harvesting finding aids and extracting WorldCat MARC records for the same collection. While we continue to work on a way to effectively cluster or de-duplicate these two forms of the collection description from the same contributor, we have hesitated in favoring one over the other as each includes access points not found in the other. We are trying to maximize access and discovery, so in this situation we've decided to favor recall over precision.

What about copyright?
OCLC does not claim copyright ownership of individual collection descriptions contributed to ArchiveGrid. More information on rights and responsibilities and a legal statement are available on the web page where you can request to include your collections.

How many institutions contribute?
Collection descriptions from around 1,000 institutions - libraries, museums, historical societies, etc. - are included in ArchiveGrid.

Why is ArchiveGrid a free service?
We transitioned from a subscription-based service to a freely available system in 2012, in order to make the index available to everyone - faculty, scholars, family history researchers, students, and others. ArchiveGrid remains an OCLC Research project, allowing us to improve archives and special collections research through studies of researchers, description, and discovery.

What do you know about your users?
When ArchiveGrid started in the late 1990s as a way to test if EAD finding aids from different sources could work well together in one search system, we mostly had faculty and college students and genealogists in mind as our researchers. We later gathered data about these user groups from studies, and we continued to make system design improvements based on their needs. In a study conducted in 2012, we surveyed archives and special collections users and learned that primary source research is still an important focus for faculty, students and genealogists, but it also plays a role for people motivated to search for archival materials by something in their personal and professional lives. This important segment of archives and special collections include filmmakers, writers, designers, hobbyists, and much more.

What are your site visit statistics like?
We use Google Analytics to track site visits and show selected current statistics here. We recognize that discovery frequently begins with search engines, so we put special effort into promoting ArchiveGrid's collection descriptions in Google, Yahoo, Bing, and other popular services.

The ArchiveGrid Team

Bruce

Bruce Washburn is the lead developer and software engineer for ArchiveGrid. More accurately, he is ArchiveGrid's only developer. He's grateful for all the other software engineers in OCLC Research that make it possible to work so easily with WorldCat MARC records, and of course to all the ingenious and helpful staff at ArchiveGrid contributing institutions that help us harvest their finding aids. Bruce works in the San Mateo, California office of OCLC Research.

Ellen

Ellen Eckert is primarily responsible for keeping the ArchiveGrid wheels turning. She's the front-line for questions, comments, and problem reports that we receive via email, and is your expert help when you have questions about how to contribute your finding aids to ArchiveGrid. In addition, Ellen is the editor of the ArchiveGrid blog ... you should follow that, it's always entertaining. Ellen works from her home office in Portland, Oregon.

Merrilee

Merrilee Proffitt is a senior Program Officer at OCLC Research and the guiding light of the ArchiveGrid project. Whether it's setting priorities for the discovery system, thinking about how best to connect ArchiveGrid with other systems, or developing projects to study users or to analyze archival materials metadata, Merrilee points the way. Merrilee works in the San Mateo, California office of OCLC Research.

Interpreting These Statistics
The growth of MARC records in the last year represents identification and inclusion of additional contributors of data to WorldCat, and the on-going growth of WorldCat in general. While there has also been a concerted effort to increase the number of finding aid contributors, that form of archival description is a relatively small percentage of the entire aggregation. And some MARC records may be removed from the current set, as we improve our selection algorithms to identify archival collection descriptions.

Interpreting These Statistics
ArchiveGrid contributing institutions are currently hard to count. In some cases, what might be considered as one institution may be represented in ArchiveGrid by several different contributors, one for each archive or special collections department affiliated with the larger institution. But in other instances, one contributing institution provides descriptions for a great many more individual archives (for example, the NUCMC records contributed by the Library of Congress). Until we can more accurately identify and count these contributors, the current count of contributors will be much lower than the actual number of institutions represented.

ARCHIVEGRID

How to Search

You can apply Boolean search logic to your keywords and terms, using AND, OR, NOT, and parentheses. You can also use specific indexes for your search terms.

To broaden your search:

Put an upper-case OR between your keywords. For example, dust OR bowl retrieves records containing either dust or bowl.

To narrow your search:

- Put quotes around your keywords to find records with an exact phrase. For example, "dust bowl" retrieves records with the words dust and bowl together, but would not match a description where those two words were not adjacent and in that order.
- Put an upper-case NOT between your keywords. For example, dust NOT bowl retrieves records containing dust, but not bowl.
- Put a ~ and a number between 1 and 4 at the end of your exact phrase. For example, "dust bowl"~4 retrieves records where dust and bowl appear within four words of each other.
- Put parentheses around your search terms. For example, (dust OR bowl) NOT oklahoma retrieves records containing either dust or bowl, but not Oklahoma.

Can I combine indexes?

Though you don't need to do anything special in your search if you are using the default "keyword" index, you can use more specific indexes for your search terms. For example, the search ("mark twain" OR "samuel clemens") NOT location:virginia will match descriptions that include the phrase Mark Twain or Samuel Clemens, and where the archival institution is not in Virginia.

Collections from land down under now aboard ArchiveGrid

Posted on May 13, 2014 by Ellen

A century-old story of the British Antarctic expedition and the Australian photographer who documented it needs to be told before going into detail about our most recent ArchiveGrid index update.

100 years ago, against the backdrop of the early stages of World War One, the national heroes in Great Britain and Norway were men who had been on expeditions in Antarctica, the world's final frontier at the time. Like the 1960s United States/Russia race to the moon, Britain wanted to beat Norway to the South Pole. Roald Amundsen took that honor for Norway in 1911, easily beating Britain's Robert Falcon Scott with superiority in skiing and dog sledding.

As a sort of consolation prize, 40-year-old Sir Ernest Shackleton, who contracted scurvy while on Scott's first polar mission 12 years before, was determined to re-capture England's glory by being the first to cross Antarctica.

Shackleton made sure that members of his expedition had the best of everything. Outfitted in Burberry aboard the new Norwegian barquentine "Endurance," the men, along with 69 sled dogs, left a south Atlantic whaling station on Dec. 5, 1914, bound for the Weddell Sea. Their plan after crossing the continent was to catch a relief ship, the Aurora, in the Ross Sea.

Strong tents, big and hearty dogs, a disease-preventing nutrition plan, and a ship built of Norwegian fir to withstand ice were supposed to help the Shackleton Expedition succeed. Instead, ice packs trapped the Endurance, crushed her, and marooned the crew. They didn't touch land for 497 days and they turned to eating their dogs, penguins, and seals for survival. Their survival was a testament to Shackleton's leadership.

Some funds the Irish-born Shackleton raised for the cross-Antarctic expedition came from news and film rights sales. That's where Australian photographer Frank Hurley comes into the picture. He provided the images that would cement what went from an ambitious undertaking to one of the most compelling stories of human survival. Not only did they help pay off debt Shackleton owed after the expedition, they are still held in high regard for their beauty and storytelling power.

Photo-journalists today can learn from Hurley's innovation and courage to push the limits for the best shots, get close to his subjects, and leave no angle unconsidered. Hurley's preservation technique of soldering negatives in metal casing is how his work incurred little damage during the expedition.

Gone is discovery done the Shackleton way, marked by hunger, strain, animal deaths, and rugged perseverance. But now you can discover photographs from the Shackleton Expedition in ArchiveGrid. New Australian contributors and collections of Hurley's work were brought aboard during our most recent index update. The National Library of Australia's collection of digitized glass plate negatives of photos taken during the expedition are just part of the collections that are newly included in ArchiveGrid.

We recently expanded the filter that selects WorldCat records for inclusion in ArchiveGrid to include more collections of images and both visual and audio recordings. After that expansion we needed to also broaden our horizons for institutions that we register for inclusion in ArchiveGrid. WorldCat contributors in Australia and New Zealand that weren't previously registered as ArchiveGrid institutions have now been added, including:

- Art Gallery of New South Wales
- Australian National University
- Central Queensland University
- National Gallery of Australia
- National Library of Australia
- National Library of New Zealand
- State Library of New South Wales
- State Library of Queensland
- State Library of South Australia
- State Library of Victoria
- State Library of Western Australia
- University of Melbourne
- University of Sydney

We were excited to see how rich these collections from Down Under are, especially the materials related to the history of South Pole exploration. We are also excited that these collections are more "discoverable" for researchers. Isn't excitement what drives people farther than they imagined? Who else on Dec. 5, 1914 felt more excitement than Sir Shackleton? Maybe, by seeing the uncharted future through Hurley's lens, we can feel a bit of that excitement, too.

With the addition of these significant collection descriptions to ArchiveGrid, the Shackleton Expedition records are just the tip of the iceberg, in terms of collections you can explore. We invite you to share your discoveries with us!

Images of McCullough's bridges in ArchiveGrid

Posted on April 30, 2014 by Ellen

Highway 101 north of Gold Beach, Ore., crosses the Rogue River on a concrete arch bridge with art deco obelisks – a design that seems out of place with the industry and resort towns 101 passes through, but not out of place with the history of Oregon's coastal bridges. The bridge, which is on the National Register of Historical Places, is one of more than 20 Oregon bridges designed in the 1920s and 1930s by Conde McCullough, an Oregon Department of Transportation engineer and civil engineering professor at Oregon State University. McCullough's distinct bridges still stand along U.S. Route 101. In ArchiveGrid, collections of images of these bridges under construction and the towns they're in can be found.

Chicago's Wrigley Field centennial is a nostalgic grand slam

Posted on April 23, 2014 by Ellen

Nowhere else in professional sports do joy and pain intersect more than for the the Chicago Cubs, the longtime residents of Wrigley Field, the venerated Major League ballpark on Chicago's north side.

Wrigley Field opened as Weeghman Park on April 23, 1914, 100 years ago today.

In the heat of summer, nothing is better than the view east from

Image source: http://fanfoodie.blogspot.com

"the friendly confines" of Wrigley, passing layered brick buildings and
L-trains and ending where the dark sky and a serene Lake Michigan, dotted with white sails, meet.

But the Cubs haven't won the World Series since 1908, including the 100 years at Wrigley. And still fans of "the Lovable Losers" crowd sidewalks, L-trains and parking lots to see their team play.[1] Perhaps the most famous fan in Cubs history is Steve Bartman, whose interference with a catch in 2003 cost the Cubs a playoff series.

The rustic charm of the Major's second oldest park (after Boston's Fenway) fosters loyalty. Ivy adorns the brick wall surrounding the outfield, and rooftops on buildings across Waveland Avenue host raucous viewing parties. Wrigley boasts a manually operated scoreboard, real organ music, minimal advertising and all the odors of old-timey baseball. Even the location is quaint, squeezed into an irregular grouping of homes and businesses affectionately known as "Wrigleytown" in the residential Lakeview neighborhood.

How many times in the last century have people consumed all these sights, smells and sounds? A lot if they had Cubs seasons tickets – a 1929 hallmark of Cubs executive and female sports industry pioneer Margaret Donahue, who will be honored during Wrigley Field's decade-themed centennial celebrations this season. Its namesake, Wrigley, is indeed the chewing gum guy – William Wrigley Jr.[2] owned the team in 1926 when it was renamed after him.

The greatness of the game itself is etched in the park's history. Pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, third baseman Ron Santo and shortstop Ernie Banks led great Cubs teams of the 1960s. Pitcher Bruce Sutter in the late 1970s helped define the role of the modern closer and second baseman Ryne Sandberg shone in the 1980s. All are in the Baseball Hall of Fame, but none ever earned a championship ring as a Cub.

In 1998, Cub Sammy Sosa hit 66 home runs as part of a famous duel with St. Louis Cardinal Mark McGwire to break Roger Maris' old single-season record of 61. McGwire eventually ended up winning that battle by hitting 71 bombs of his own. Both were later disgraced by allegations of steroid use to enhance their performances.

For Earth Day, find historical photographs in ArchiveGrid of car-free commuting

Posted on April 22, 2014 by Ellen

Transportation, and how much energy is consumed to get people around, is an environmental topic workers can address for Earth Day today by trying cleaner commutes. Personal automobile alternatives like walking, bicycling, and shared transport can cut carbon emissions, count toward the day's exercise, and connect with early ways of getting around. However, according to 2012 United States Census Bureau survey data, zero-emission commutes still rank low in how the American workforce gets to and from work: Less than one percent rode a bicycle and nearly three percent walked.

Since I work from home and don't commute, my Earth Day act is to find historical photographs in ArchiveGrid of car-free commuting. Here are five:

Hemet, Calif., 1899 (from a collection at Los Angeles Public Library)

Eastern Montana, 1904

Arcata, Calif., 1990

Oregon, 19th century

Seattle, Wash., 1906-1947

ArchiveGrid jogs historical memory of women in the Boston Marathon

Posted on April 18, 2014 by Ellen

This Easter weekend, athletes are getting ready to run the Boston Marathon on Monday the 21st. It was also on a Monday in April 1897, when the first Boston Marathon was run – 10 years after the Boston Athletic Association was established.

As the Boston Marathon has grown in prestige, so has its historical significance in women's sports – running in particular. Roberta Gibb in 1966 was the first woman to run the race, although she participated unofficially that year and again in 1967 and 1968. Women weren't allowed to officially sign up until 1972. However in 1967, Kathrine Switzer registered herself under a vague name and despite efforts to physically remove her from the course, she officially completed the marathon. The next year she earner her master's degree from Syracuse Univeristy, where her papers are held. Gibb in 1981 wrote about her experience for Ms. Magazine and that piece is in a collection at Radcliffe College of letters to the magazine.

Image source: http://highergearchicago.com

In the early 1980s, Joan Benoit Samuelson became the first person to win the Boston and Olympic marathons. Also an author, her books include Running Tide, and Running for Women. New England University in Maine, her home state, houses a collection of her newspaper clippings and articles. Crowning her achievements in 1996, Samuelson was on a Wheaties cereal box commemorating the Boston Marathon's 100th running. Radcliffe College has a box in a collection of female sports ephemera.

Other collections at Radcliffe College around the history of women in America include one for Hazel Hitson Weidman, a medical anthropologist who served in World War II. The finding aid includes details about her correspondence with family members, including her daughter-in-law running marathons barefoot – in 2013, she was about a mile-and-a-half out from the Boston Marathon finish line when terrorist bombs exploded.

What do repeat race runners do with their collections of race shirts? Diane Sherrer made a quilt out of hers, and it's in a collection at Cornell University of other materials spanning 40 years of her competitive running and journalism career. Her years at the Boston Marathon are recorded in that collection. Can't remember what the race's 1999 shirt looked like? There's one in the collection.

Weed woes inspire a 'dandy' ArchiveGrid search

Posted on April 9, 2014 by Ellen

Libraries holding too many materials and gardens exploding with dandelions both need weeding. While working evenings this week on weeding the latter, I wondered what a search in ArchiveGrid for the springtime invader would retrieve, and if grouping my favorite results here would help me learn to love the weed, commiserate with past efforts to abate it, or offer a new way to look at garden weeding.

Hopefully this list will achieve all three goals:

- A picture circa 100 years ago shows a band playing while students dig dandelions at Nebraska Wesleyan University in the Lincoln. Weeding is better with some company, or a playlist.

- That dandelions are edible doesn't keep them out of my yard debris bin, but cooking them is recorded in a Northwest folklore archive collection at University of Oregon as both a custom and a superstition. And although I could search online for some dandelion recipes, I would like to see the ones in a collection of pamphlets published last century by Cornell University's New York State College of Agriculture for the state fair commission.

- Can dandelions be used to make rubber? A retired Michigan State Archives reference archivist wanted to know and a subject that his collection at Central Michigan University covers is dandelions as an emergency source of post-World War II rubber, according to the finding aid.

- Collections of dandelions in artistic expression aren't hard to find in ArchiveGrid because they are vivid and symbolic in their nature. William E. Stafford referred to them in two of his poems, which are held in a collection at Lewis & Clark College. This photograph by a scientist who worked in weed control shows what happened when he fertilized part of an invaded lawn (which looks like parts of my lawn). Also in the collection is a photograph of a what is probably a beautiful-looking, dandelion-covered field.

Missing flight collections found in ArchiveGrid

Posted on March 31, 2014 by Ellen

Missing Malaysia Airlines Flight 370 may permanently join history's record of other vanished flights. What archival collections surrounding these unsolved air mysteries exist and can be found in ArchiveGrid? Here is a quick list:

Amelia Earhart – There are files at Radcliffe College of the FBI's investigation into her 1937 disappearance over Pacific Ocean, as she tried to be the first woman to fly around the world.

Bermuda Triangle – A former Arizona State University librarian's papers include research sources for his books about Flight 19 – a fleet of bombers that disappeared over the Bermuda Triangle in 1945 – and other vanishings in that area. They include the Star Tiger in 1948 (Lincoln Memorial University has an item relating to one of the crew members) and the Star Ariel a year later.

Flight 19 in formation. Image source: Wikimedia Commons

Alaska – At University of Alaska in Fairbanks are the papers of Democratic Congressman Nick Begich, who disappeared in 1972 with Louisiana Representative Hale Boggs during a flight over Alaska.

The 21st packs March birthday madness

Posted on March 21, 2014 by Ellen

It's fun to learn who shares your birthday. Here is a list of historical figures who share my birthday today and have related collections in ArchiveGrid:

Image of Johann Sebastian Bach courtesy of Wikimedia. Stanford University houses an engraving of Bach.

- Legendary German Baroque composer Johann Sebastian Bach died in July of 1750 at age 65. I can't be more proud to share a birthday with who was behind the majestic Toccata and Fugue in D Minor.
- Another musical legend born today was Florenz Ziegfeld, who wrote the musical Show Boat and was behind the Ziegfeld Follies and Broadway revues. He died in July of 1932 at age 65. University of Texas has a Ziegfeld collection, and materials relating to a his life when he was married to stage performer Billie Burke is at New York Public Library.
- Forty-six microfilm reels at University of Texas contain the papers of Benito Juarez, Mexican national hero and president, who lived from 1806 until July of 1872 when he died at age 66.
- A fellow native Oregonian, Phyllis McGinley was a Pulitzer Prize-winning poet, writer and author of juvenile books. Syracuse University has an extensive collection of her papers. In 1906, exactly one year after McGinley was born, John D. Rockefeller III was born in New York City, where McGinley would later live. They both died in 1978, both at age 72. She died in February and he died in July. The Rockefeller Archive Center has the family's archive.

- Arthur Honegger was a 20th century Swiss composer whose works include a piece named for his country's patron saint Nicholas of Flue, who lived five centuries earlier and died on his March 21 birthday in 1487 at age 70. University of British Columbia's archives has a recording of the piece.

- A collection at New York Public Library of Lola Maverick Lloyd, an international activist for women's rights, includes materials having to do with Alice Henry, who was born today and died on Valentine's Day in 1943 at age 85. She was an Australian journalist and promoted women's suffrage and social reform.

- In 1960, an oral history was made at of Maurice Farman, a French aircraft designer and manufacturer who lived from 1877 to February of 1964. He was 86. Columbia University houses the transcript.

Faneuil Hall led new world forums

Posted on March 14, 2014 by Ellen

Today in 1743, America's first recorded town hall meeting was held in Faneuil Hall in downtown Boston, according to the New York Times. At the University of Virginia are materials about its architect, John Smibert. He was a Colonial artist who had moved from Europe to New England, opened an art supplies shop in Boston , ran a gallery, and still painted portraits.

Faneuil Hall's original mixed-use design with a public gathering space above ground-floor retail was inspired by English country markets, but I wonder how much Smibert's design was influenced by his earlier life in London when he lived in an apartment in Covent Garden.

Image of Faneuil Hall and modern skyscrapers courtesy of Wikimedia.

Nearly four decades of pieces of Smibert's life are contained in his journal, and ArchiveGrid has other records as well for related images and collections. Knowing what Faneuil Hall looked like when it was finished in 1742, and what was said during those first meetings, may be a scholarly mystery.

However, what Faneuil Hall paved for the future of the American public meeting space can be traced in other gems in ArchiveGrid for researchers to discover, such as announcing the death of a president and lottery results.

With MARC filter-flexing, ArchiveGrid index exceeds 3 million records

Posted on March 11, 2014 by Ellen

While March came in like a lion weather-wise in many places, the saying meant good news index-wise for ArchiveGrid. This week we updated the index and once again, the number of collections and items represented in ArchiveGrid spiked. In January's update, the index grew by around 600,000 records and reached 2.4 million. Now we're over 3 million.

Here's why:

A snow-drizzled "Fortitude" guards one side of the New York Public Library entrance, while "Patience" (not pictured) guards the other. Image source: Flickr Creative Commons

MARC records from WorldCat represent at least 90 percent of ArchiveGrid's descriptions. Since no particular MARC record field tells us "Hey! Include me in ArchiveGrid," we use a combination of elements. In the "recall vs. precision" performance metric, we've tended to err on the side of recall. Details on how we filter WorldCat records for inclusion in ArchiveGrid are here.

Twice this year, we tuned the filter we use to extract MARC records from WorldCat to include more record types based on the MARC Leader byte 6 value. January's update brought in records with the value of "k" (two-dimensional, non-projecting graphics). This update includes records with the value of "g" (projected medium), "i" (nonmusical sound recording), or "j" (musical sound recording). We think these adjustments allow more descriptions of the types of materials ArchiveGrid searchers could expect to find, without overloading the index with records we'd prefer to filter out: irrelevant materials or published works, items held in multiple locations, etc. So we expect to continue adjusting the filter and see the total number of records change as we get more precise.

Here are some highlights of what valuable primary sources the added g, i, and i indexes in ArchiveGrid have to offer:

- Around 1,800 sound discs, tape reels, and cassettes of nearly all of Duke Ellington's commercial and non-commercial recordings and also some radio broadcasts. Collected by Joseph Jeffers Dodge, Harvard University acquired the collection in March 1998.

- A live 1963 recording in Germany of John F. Kennedy's "Ich bin ein Berliner" speech, at Ball State University.

- A May 2, 2003 VHS recording of the "Service of death and resurrection for Fred McFeely Rogers, or Mister Rogers, at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary.

Another addition with this update is documentation for ArchiveGrid indexes. We use a number of “hidden” indexes in ArchiveGrid for testing and trouble-shooting, so in a new how to search page, we explain what these indexes are and how they can be used in a search. This should be considered a work in progress, so if you have suggestions for improvements or questions about how the indexes work, please let us know.

Collections from land down under now aboard ArchiveGrid

A century-old story of the British Antarctic expedition and the Australian photographer who documented it needs to be told before going into detail about our most recent ArchiveGrid index update. 100 years ago, against the backdrop of the early stages of World War One, the national heroes in Great Britain and Norway were men who had been on expeditions in Antarctica, the world's final frontier at the time. Like the 1960s United States/Russia race to the moon, Britain wanted to beat Norway to the South Pole. Roald Amundsen took that honor for Norway in 1911, easily beating Britain's Robert Falcon Scott with superiority in skiing and dog sledding. As a sort of consolation prize, 40-year-

ABOUT ARCHIVEGRID

ArchiveGrid is a collection of over three million archival material descriptions, including MARC records from WorldCat and finding aids harvested from the web. It's supported by OCLC Research as the basis for our experimentation and testing in text mining, data analysis, and discovery system applications and interfaces. Archival collections held by thousands of libraries, museums, historical societies, and archives are represented in ArchiveGrid.

ArchiveGrid provides access to detailed archival collection descriptions, making information available about historical documents, personal papers, family histories, and other archival materials. It also provides contact information for the institutions where the collections are kept.

ArchiveGrid data is primarily focused on archival material descriptions for institutions in the United States but now also includes information about collections in Australia. This reflects the contribution patterns for descriptions of materials under archival control in WorldCat, which make up the majority of descriptions in ArchiveGrid. We may extend ArchiveGrid beyond its current scope if it is necessary to support OCLC Research experimental objectives.

ArchiveGrid illustrates OCLC's interest in advancing issues important to the archival community. Our work within ArchiveGrid gives OCLC Research a foundation for collaboration and interactions with others in the archival community. We expect to share the results of MARC and EAD tag analysis, provide discovery system analytics for contributors, document investigations of text mining and data visualization, participate in community working groups pursuing improvements to description and discovery, and more. To support those interests and objectives, we'll continue to build this extensive and current aggregation of archival material descriptions, within the constraints of OCLC Research's committed and on-going support for this project.

OCLC previously offered ArchiveGrid as a subscription-based discovery service. The subscription service was discontinued in 2012. While the freely-available OCLC Research ArchiveGrid interface is not a full production service, it shares some of the same attributes. Researchers can expect to use it for discovery of archival materials, and archives can work with OCLC Research to have their materials represented in the aggregation in a reliable and persistent way.

If you have questions about your collection descriptions in ArchiveGrid, please get in touch with us. Interested in contributing? Please let us know that as well.

A founding member of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal (CSICOP), serving on the Executive Council and the UFO subcommittee, Klass has authored seven books and numerous articles on UFOs, including the Skeptics UFO Newsletter in 1989. In the early 1970s, he became interested in space based weapons, and began collecting material related to the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) for a possible book. J. Allen Hynek (1910-1986) Papers 1925-1988

Northwestern University

Astronomer J. Allen Hynek led Northwestern's Astronomy Department into the Space Age and became the nation's foremost expert on unidentified flying objects (UFOs). He oversaw the significant expansion of Northwestern's Astronomy Department and made important contributions to his field, most notably by successfully incorporating television technology into telescopes for the first time. However, he was best known for his work on UFOs. His work inspired the film "Close Encounters of the Third Kind." The Hynek Papers provide a record of Hynek's professional life but offer scant insight into his personal affairs. The papers include biographical materials, clippings, reports relating to Hynek's work on Project Stargazer, and some materials pertaining to Hynek's UFO work and his work at Northwestern.

Roy C. Ihde, a Peshtigo, Wisconsin native, describes his career in the Air Force from 1946 to 1966 during the Cold War. Ihde touches on family military history, enlisting in the Air Force after his house burned down, basic training at the San Antonio Aviation Cadet Center (Texas), radar school at Boca Raton (Florida), primary and basic pilot training at Randolph Field (Texas), and single-engine fighter pilot training at Williams Field (Arizona). He reflects on his love of training and recalls reasons other people washed out. He talks about his assignment to the 4th Fighter Group, 336th Rocket Squadron at Andrews Field (Maryland) and duty as a P-80 jet pilot and athletic officer. Ihde comments on flying the F-84 Thunderjet. He recalls a three-year tour based in Furstenfeldbruck (Germany), speaks of defending U.S. air space, and states he often had to intercept civilian airliners. He shares his impressions of the destruction in Munich and talks about going to the opera. Sent to ... Read More

These records are described in three parts representing four separate accessions. The groups overlap and the same subjects may be covered in all three parts. There are also significant gaps, such as very little correspondence prior to 1915, and large gaps in the records of the treasurer. Most of the surviving documentation on the AAS's founding is in Parts 1 and 2. Membership applications, correspondence, and lists found throughout give details on the growth of the organization. A complete set of minutes (1897-1962) can be found in Part 1, and there is a wealth of information on meetings of the AAS throughout including programs and preliminary announcements, abstracts of papers, meeting attendance signature books, and executive committee minutes. Parts 2 and 3 contain significant records on the founding of the American Section of the International Astronomical Union in 1919 and provide insights into the international relations of the scientific community after World War I. 550.0 Item(s)

The youngest son of Charles Willson Peale, Titian Ramsay Peale was an accomplished artist, naturalist, and explorer. This collection of ink, pencil, and watercolor sketches, with some engravings and lithographs, forms the bulk of Peale's artistic output. The drawings can be grouped into several periods of artistic output: pre-1818 (primarily watercolors of butterflies); from the Stephen Harriman Long Expedition to the American west in 1819-1820, on which Peale traveled as zoologist (there are views of animals, Indians, landscapes, etc.); for his 1821-1838 interlude period, spent primarily on the east coast (insects, animals, moose hunting in Marine, his trip to South America in 1830-1831, coin and medal designs); his period as a naturalist on the worldwide U.S. Exploring Expedition under the command of Charles Wilkes, 1838-1842; from the 1849-1873 period when he sketched around Washington, D. C. and in New Jersey; and there are more than 160 undated sketches of: animal skulls and ... Read More

The Records of an Unbroken Friendship but the Mortal Severance, 1907-1924

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

Circa 410 photographs of various sizes, compiled in album measuring 24 x 38 cm.; circa 30 loose items (photographic prints, drivers licenses, U.S. registration cards) of various sizes; 1 panorama photograph, 26 x 123 cm. 80 digital objects

Scope and Content The Records of an Unbroken Friendship but the Mortal Severance album contains approximately 410 photographs apparently created as a memorial to Taizo Kato, a Japanese-American who died in 1924 at the age of 36. The album title implies that it was compiled by one or more of Kato's friends. The collection also contains circa 30 loose photographs and other items and one photographic panorama. Kato was an amateur photographer and painter, and several of the photographs refer to his involvement with these practices. Although only four of the prints bear either Kato's signature or embossed stamp, it is possible that a large percentage of the work in the album is his. There is at least one self-portrait by Kato. With Kamejiro Sawa, Kato was the proprietor of a Los Angeles photo, art and stationery goods business. This business, named The Korin, is featured in some of the photographs. Sawa is likely one of the friends appearing throughout the album, and may have been the ... Read More

Papers of a Broadway set designer. The majority of the shows for which Johnson designed the stage sets and lighting during the 1920's, 1930's, and 1940's are represented only by programs and clippings but for later projects such as Night Life (1962) and several summer stock productions of Showboat during the 1950's there are technical notes, blueprints, light plots, photographs, and finished and preliminary sketches. There are similar materials for designs done for Radio City Music Hall during the 1950's, the New York World's fairs of 1939 and 1964, nightclubs and other productions of Billy Rose, and numerous automobile trade shows. For productions unsuccessfully promoted by Johnson during the 1950's such as plays based on Fernand Crommelynck's Le Cocu Magnifique, the history of the Lambs Club, and the stories of Helen Green there are scripts, lyrics, production notes, and research materials. Additional notes and correspondence with governmental leaders such as Frank Farley and James ... Read More

Flying to the edge of space and time [videorecording] : Works & process at the Guggenheim / [performance series producer, Mary Sharp Cronson].

New York Public Library

1 videodisc (NTSC) (70 min.)

David Helfand, chair of Columbia University's Astronomy Department, delivers a slide lecture on cosmology. This recording shows only the slides and videos, not the speaker. Slides include photographs taken by the Hubble space telescope and computer simulations of galaxies colliding. Helfand begins by speaking about how astronomers gather information; the nature of light (wavelength and velocity), the extremely limited portion of light that human eyes are capable of seeing, and how light traveling from great distances reveals the past. Helfand then discusses the structure of the solar system, the distances between objects in space, the life cycles of stars and galaxies, and the nature of space and time. The lecture is followed by a question-and-answer period, in which Helfand responds to questions about wormholes in space, the big bang theory, black holes and dark matter, the extent of the universe and possibility of multiple universes.

Goldwater, Barry M. (Barry Morris), 1909-1998.

Arizona State University Libraries

1180 linear ft. (970 boxes)

Background : This collection remained largely unprocessed through the years. Serial deposits varying in volume and format from 1959-1998 were made from Goldwater's Washington office, Phoenix office and home. The collection also had been moved several times and the boxes re-numbered. There had been numerous attempts to organize and re-folder the materials resulting in various arrangement schemes. Although inventory sheets were created, locating specific correspondence, photographs and legislative documents was reportedly difficult. Public access varied widely. Additional findings as follows.

While gem dealer Horace K. Arlington frets over the safety of his newly purchased diamond collection, which is being shipped from Europe, Dave Hanlon ingratiates himself with Horace's daughter Arlene and plots with his three cohorts to steal the jewels. As part of the scheme, Dave hires Jerry Lane and Pierre Potkins, whose carnival act includes an airplane amusement ride, to pick up the stolen gems in a seaplane. Although Pierre is scheduled to meet with his parole officer that afternoon, he and Jerry accept the job and, unaware that their seaplane belongs to the police department, retrieve from the ocean what they believe to be harmless photographs. When Pierre inspects the package, however, he discovers the jewels, as well as a box of cocaine. After becoming intoxicated from the powder, Jerry, whose only knowledge of flying has come from reading books, crash lands the plane in the Arlingtons' backyard. Horace, seeing the police insignia on the plane, assumes the two men are ... Read More

Peale-Sellers Family Collection, 1686-1963 1686-1963

American Philosophical Society

19.0 Linear feet 38 Boxes; 147 Volumes

The Peale family is best known as a family of artists; however, family interests and activities were much more wide-ranging. The best known Peale is Charles Willson Peale (1741-1827, APS 1786), who produced more than one thousand paintings, including hundreds of portraits of leading Americans during the colonial and early national periods. Peale was married three times, to Rachel Brewster (1744-1790), Elizabeth de Peyster (1765-1804), and Hannah More (1755-1821). He had eighteen children, eleven of whom reached adulthood. Three of Charles Willson Peale's sons became artists: Raphaelle Peale (1774-1825), Rembrandt Peale (1778-1860), and Rubens Peale (1784-1865). A fourth son, Titian Ramsay Peale (1799-1885, APS 1833), was a naturalist (who made drawings on the exploring expeditions he accompanied) and pioneer in photography, and another son, Benjamin Franklin Peale (1795-1870), became a naturalist and paleontologist. The Keesing Collection on Popular Music and Culture 1950-1990

University of Maryland - Archives and Manuscripts

The Keesing Collection on Popular Music and Culture consists of books, serials, recordings, sheet music, clippings, memorabilia, and teaching and research materials related to twentieth-century American popular music, and to rock and roll music in particular. The materials were collected by Hugo Keesing, a popular culture scholar and former professor of American Studies at the University of Maryland, and by Dr. Keesing's brother, Wouter Keesing. The bulk of the collection covers the period from the 1950s to the 1990s. Serials in the collection include Rolling Stone, Pulse, Discoveries, Goldmine, and many other national and regional music serials. Research and teaching materials include Dr. Keesing's University of Maryland syllabi and class notes, writings, auction lists, catalogues, and price guides. In addition to the books housed with the archival collection, there are an additional 3,000 books that are can be found through the University of Maryland catalog. The collection is broad ... Donald Ryder Dickey Photographic Collection, 1908-1962

University of California, Los Angeles - Louise M. Darling Biomedical Library

72.7 linear ft. (139 boxes)

Struck by a serious heart condition during his senior year at Yale, Dickey returned to early interests in natural history and photography to occupy his mind and hands during the prolonged recovery period. By the time he had regained full strength in 1916, he had also formulated a new life goal: to establish a research center for study of the vertebrate zoology of Southern California, and to build a supporting collection of taxidermy specimens, photographs and books. This finding aid introduces the still photography part and some movie footage of that collection: over 4000 images captured by Dickey and his associates on various formats of film negatives, glass plates and slides. Each entry in the finding aid for the still photographs leads to a Dickey negative and a 5 x 8" reference card which contains a positive image, and identifying information. Three-hundred-and-fifty of the images, from 1911-1929, have been digitized and are viewable online at: ... Read More

Brigham Young University - L. Tom Perry Special Collections

9 items 7 cartons (7 linear ft.) 20 oversize boxes (25.5 linear ft.) 2 half boxes (0.5 linear ft.) 75 film reels (56 linear ft.) 43 boxes (21 linear ft.)

The Merian C. Cooper papers cover virtually every aspect of Cooper's life and his varied careers. The papers provide valuable information on documentary and feature motion picture production in the United States from the mid-1920s through the early 1950s, as well as information on world exploration, the United States Air Force (particularly during World War II), and early television. Several Cooper projects that never came to fruition are also documented, especially his unproduced film biography of Lieutenant General Claire C. Chennault of Flying Tiger fame. These projects, commended in the 1950s, represent Cooper's efforts to stay active in the entertainment business. The papers, for the most part, are housed in standard archival document cases. The designations mean oversized boxes for maps, broadsides, large photographs, and certain publications.

Snap Shooting Around the Golden Gate International Exposition, 1939

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

5 albums (560 photographic prints) 191 digital objects

Scope and Content This collection consists of five albums of black and white photographs taken by P. T. Glass of the Golden Gate International Exposition. The exposition was held from February 18 to October 29, 1939 on Treasure Island to celebrate the recent openings of the Golden Gate and Oakland Bay bridges. More than 10 million people visited the exposition. A reorganized exposition was held on the site May 25 through September 29, 1940. The photographs in albums 1-4, often humorously titled, were taken between February 18 and October 29, 1939 as Mr. Glass, sometimes accompanied by his wife, parents, and friends, returned repeatedly to the exposition. The views are mostly exterior shots of the various structures, landscaping, and exhibits of the exposition. Exhibits pictured include the Court of the Seven Seas, Sun Tower, Court of the Moon, Sunken Gardens, Court of Reflections, Star Lady, Arch of Triumph, and Court of Flowers. Many architectural features are shown, as well as ... Read More

Michael McClure papers : additions 1874-2003

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

Number of containers: 53 boxes, 14 volumes, 2 oversize boxes, and 13 oversize folders Linear feet: Approx. 23

The Michael McClure Papers: Additions, 1874-2002, (bulk 1949-2002), present a comprehensive view of his work as a writer, spanning the length of McClure's career. The bulk consists of notebooks and writings, including poems, prose, and plays in manuscript, draft and final form. There is very little correspondence. There are also professional papers, which include posters, flyers, and broadsides, many advertising readings by McClure and others, and productions of his plays, including The Beard. There is a small amount of artwork by McClure, his family, and friends; and materials by and about artists Bruce Conner, Wallace Berman, and George Herms from William Jahrmarkt and the Batman Gallery, among others. The small amount of personal papers include records and family correspondence. These papers complement The Bancroft Library's other extensive holdings documenting the postwar San Francisco poetry renaissance and its influence on American literature.

California Faces: Selections from The Bancroft Library Portrait Collection

University of California, Berkeley - Bancroft Library

1,232 images selected from The Bancroft Library's Portrait Collection ; various sizes 1230 digital objects

Scope and Content California Faces consists of 1,232 photographic and other pictorial portraits of 416 men and women prominent in California's history. The portraits, selected from The Bancroft Library Portrait Collection, offer a diverse selection of artists, writers, businessmen, politicians, scientists, entertainers, and others, primarily from the early nineteenth-century until the present. Individuals from the San Francisco Bay Area tend to predominate since the library's holdings are strongest in this area. Many notable figures from California's pre-statehood and early statehood days are featured: Sir Francis Drake, the earliest Anglo to set foot on California soil; Patrick Breen and Eliza Donner from the ill-fated Donner Party; frontiersman Kit Carson, John Sutter, Lola Montez, and many others. Writers who were either born and raised in the state or who spent significant periods of time in California are included: traditional chroniclers of Western experience (Bret Harte and ... Read More

Donald Ryder Dickey Photographic Collection, 1908-1962

University of California, Los Angeles - Louise M. Darling Biomedical Library

72.7 linear ft. (139 boxes)

Struck by a serious heart condition during his senior year at Yale, Dickey returned to early interests in natural history and photography to occupy his mind and hands during the prolonged recovery period. By the time he had regained full strength in 1916, he had also formulated a new life goal: to establish a research center for study of the vertebrate zoology of Southern California, and to build a supporting collection of taxidermy specimens, photographs and books. This finding aid introduces the still photography part and some movie footage of that collection: over 4000 images captured by Dickey and his associates on various formats of film negatives, glass plates and slides. Each entry in the finding aid for the still photographs leads to a Dickey negative and a 5 x 8" reference card which contains a positive image, and identifying information. Three-hundred-and-fifty of the images, from 1911-1929, have been digitized and are viewable online at: ... Read More

Brigadier General Paul Albert Putnam (1903-1982) was a native of Milan, Michigan. He attended Iowa State College, at Ames, where he later enlisted in the Marine Corps. He was appointed 2nd Lieutenant on March 3, 1926, while he was stationed at the Navy yard in Norfolk, Virginia.

After he was commissioned, Putnam went to Nicaragua, where he won the Nicaragua Cross of Valor and a letter of commendation for suppression of banditry. After taking flying lessons in San Diego in 1928, Putnam returned to Nicaragua as an aviator. He assisted in the rehabilitation of that country after an earthquake in 1932.

Following his return from Nicaragua, Putnam served at Pensacola, Florida, St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, and at the officers' school in Quantico, Virginia. Putnam returned to San Diego in June, 1939, where he served until his departure for duty in the Pacific during World War II. By then a major, he commanded Marine Fighting Squadron 211, engaging in temporary aviation duty on Wake Island. Putnam arrived on Wake Island on December 4, 1941, and was captured by the Japanese when the island fell on December 23, 1941. Putnam and other prisoners arrived at Zentsuji Prison Camp in Japan on January 29, 1942. He remained in Japanese prison camps until liberated by American troops in August, 1945. He was awarded the Navy Cross for his heroism at Wake Island.

Description

The most significant materials in the collection pertain to the defense of Wake Island and Putnam's imprisonment in Japan. Of particular importance are Putnam's three diaries which mention his capture on Wake Island and describe his imprisonment by the Japanese (1942-1945). Portions of the diaries were written in shorthand; however, they have been transcribed. Also included is a POW recipe book from the prison camp in Zentsuji, Japan.

The diaries discuss life in prisoner-of-war camps: problems with food, unsanitary conditions, the difference in treatment of officers and enlisted men, and day-to-day routines. The routines included work around the camp, raising rabbits, and agricultural activities. Putnam also recorded the prisoners' move to Rokuroshi (June, 1945) and the reaction of the Japanese to the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki (Aug. 6-17, 1945).

Also in the collection are a report, rosters, and other records that reflect the activities of the Marine Fighting Squadron 211. Putnam recorded information about his squadron's defense of Wake Island and noted details of the service of each man in the squadron.

Among the chiefly routine correspondence pertaining to Putnam's military career (1926-1953) are letters reflecting the service of Putnam and his men on Wake Island and their subsequent imprisonment. Included are copies of letters Putnam wrote to his family from Japan and correspondence recommending some of his men for citations. In addition, the correspondence includes a confidential letter regarding a clandestine naval operation to Wake Island (1941), and post-war correspondence between Putnam and the men that served under his command on Wake Island and between Putnam and his superiors (1942-1947). In the post-war correspondence Putnam recognizes the spirit of the men during captivity and the justice of their receiving delinquent flight-order pay.

Additional material pertaining to the defense of Wake Island includes copies of awards, citations, and a variety of publications, including newspaper articles and the score of a song, "Wake Island."

Routine orders (1926-1952) provide details concerning Putnam's military career.

Among the miscellaneous material in the collection are a photograph of Putnam and his wife and a chronology of Putnam's service in the Marine Corps. Oversized material includes three watercolor prints done by Arthur Beaumont of Wake Island fighting scenes dramatized in the Paramount movie "Wake Island."

Our finding aids:
The finding aids on this website describe collections that are housed within the Special Collections department of Joyner Library at East Carolina University.

These documents are produced to give researchers an overview of a collection of papers, audio visual material, and more.

The finding aids are encoded in EAD, Version 2002. A large portion of our finding aids were originally outsourced to be encoded by the company Apex CoVantage. More information about that process can be read about in this article, "Outsourcing EAD: Guidelines for NCEAD Institutions considering an outsourcing solution for encoding legacy finding aids". Our University Archives department is using Archivists' Toolkit to manage their collections and to output their EAD.

Description

This collection consists of tombstone lists and cemetery descriptions from Craven County, N.C., and "Old Craven Township No. 4," now in Pamlico County.

Approximately 800 tombstones are listed, with burials from 1755 to the 1970s. Forty-two family and church cemeteries are on the inventory. Green includes a two-page list of thirty-six of these, with the number of known burials and the oldest known burial listed for each. Although the sites are listed under township cover-sheets, precise directions are given to each cemetery. The largest ones are in New Bern or its immediate area. Hand-drawn maps are included for several sites, and the background and present condition of family sites are described. Also included are a map for Township No. 9 and four pages of copied inscriptions from historic sites in the New Bern area. Revolutionary, Confederate, and unmarked graves are noted, as are those of Richard Dobbs Spaight and other prominent early North Carolinians of the New Bern area.

Philip J. Klass Collection 1948-2000

American Philosophical Society

36.0 Linear feet

An electrical engineer and senior editor for Aviation Week and Space Technology, Philip Klass began investigating UFOs in 1966 after participating in a panel discussion on the subject for the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (IEEE). From that time forward Klass has investigated UFO sightings in an effort to find a credible prosaic explanation, and became one of the most widely recognized UFO

"debunkers." A founding member of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal (CSICOP), serving on the Executive Council and the UFO subcommittee, Klass has authored seven books and numerous articles on UFOs, including the Skeptics UFO Newsletter in 1989. In the early 1970s, he became interested in space based weapons, and began collecting material related to the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) for a possible book. The Klass Collection relate to his forty-plus years of investigating UFO sightings, and includes correspondence with many of the ... Read More

Founded in 1898 by the Missouri Press Association and a trustee of the state since 1899, The State Historical Society of Missouri is the premier research center for the study of Missouri state and local history. The Society preserves and provides access to reference materials and historical collections through research centers located in Cape Girardeau, Columbia, Kansas City, Rolla, St. Louis, and Springfield. The Columbia research center also houses a significant art collection with ongoing and varied exhibitions and serves as the administrative headquarters for the Society.

The Society's mission is to collect, preserve, make available, and publish materials that enhance research and support learning opportunities in Missouri studies and the history of the Midwest. Society holdings include rare and specialized books; an extensive newspaper collection dating from 1808 with newspapers from all 114 Missouri counties and the city of St. Louis; editorial cartoons that are national in scope; thousands of maps and photographic images; oral histories; unique manuscript collections; and, major artworks by George Caleb Bingham and Thomas Hart Benton.

In addition to caring for collections and working to provide easier access to records, the Society offers programs, lectures, historical and genealogical workshops, tours for school students and adult groups, and in-depth orientation for secondary and university students conducting research. A specific educational outreach objective of the Columbia staff is sponsorship and coordination of the National History Day in Missouri program which involves thousands of Missouri students (grades 6-12), as many as 600 of whom, along with their families and teachers, as well as contest judges and support volunteers, come to the University of Missouri campus each spring for the state contest.

The Society's editorial division is located in Columbia and publishes the Missouri Historical Review. This quarterly journal has been the cornerstone of the Society's publications program since 1906, offering scholarly articles on diverse topics in Missouri history. In recent years, the Society has published four volumes of the Century of Missouri History Scholarship Series which are anthologies of articles united by topic and drawn from the first 100 years of the Review. On April 2, 2011, the Society released its newest book, in partnership with the Friends of Arrow Rock, Inc., "But I Forget That I am a Painter and Not a Politician": The Letters of George Caleb Bingham.

Each year the Society holds its membership meeting on a Saturday in late fall – informational sessions, workshops, a silent auction, business meeting, luncheon, and special program are typically part of this annual event.

Collection Overview

Description Southern California artist, writer, and musician George Herms was one of the founders of the West Coast assemblage movement. Influenced by the art of his close friend Wallace Berman, his work brings together discards, beach trash, urban detritus and other "found objects" to create a highly original and personal mix of collage, sculpture, and assemblage. The bulk of the papers comprise full documentation of Herms' life and work from 1960-2000.

Background The son of an agronomist, George Herms was born in Woodland, CA in 1935. While studying engineering at the University of California at Berkeley in 1953, Herms became fascinated with jazz and literature. He left school in 1954 and moved to Los Angeles, where he found a job as a tabulation operator for Douglas Aircraft and spent evenings in jazz clubs. In 1955, he met the Beat poet Robert Alexander and the assemblage artist Wallace Berman, and over the next two years solidified friendships with them, and also with Dean Stockwell, David Meltzer, and other artists and poets. He also helped Shirley and Wallace Berman assemble the hand-printed, personally distributed literary journal Semina. Soon Herms bought his own small hand-press and began printing poems, an activity that would become a lifetime enterprise known as Love Press. He also began to make assemblage collages out of machine parts, punch-card detritus, and beach trash. In 1957, he brought his assemblages together in a vacant lot for Secret Exhibition, a self-curated, solo show viewed only by Wallace Berman and John Reed, that was allowed to decompose in place after the show's end.

Biographical History

Carey Orr (1890-1967) was a Pulitzer prize winning American editorial cartoonist.

Born in Ada, Ohio on January 17 1890, Carey Cassius Orr later moved to Spokane, Washington to live with his father. As a teenager, he took a correspondence course in cartooning. But following high school, Orr studied math and engineering at his father's urging. Orr went on to find success as a semi-professional baseball pitcher and used his earnings to study at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts.

Orr worked briefly for the Chicago Examiner and also as editorial cartoonist for the Nashville Tennessean from 1912 to 1917. While in Nashville, Orr was frequently the target of editorials by the opposition paper, the Banner ran by Major E.B. Stahlman. Orr's work also appeared in Literary Digest and Cartoons Magazine. In 1917, Orr returned to Chicago as an editorial cartoonist for the Chicago Tribune, filling in for John T. McCutcheon. Orr created the "Tiny Tribune" strip that appeared in the paper; each of the four panels caricatured a section of the paper. Eventually, Orr replaced John T. McCutcheon.

Orr received the Pulitzer Prize for editorial cartooning in 1961 for his October 8, 1960 cartoon. He also won several awards from the Freedoms Foundation and was presented with a gold medal from the United States government for his World War I cartoons. He was also featured on the television program, This is Your Life. Orr also is credited with drawing the "The Kernel Cootie" strip from approximately 1919 to 1922.

Orr retired from the Chicago Tribune on January 1, 1963. He died on May 16, 1967 at Evanston Hospital.

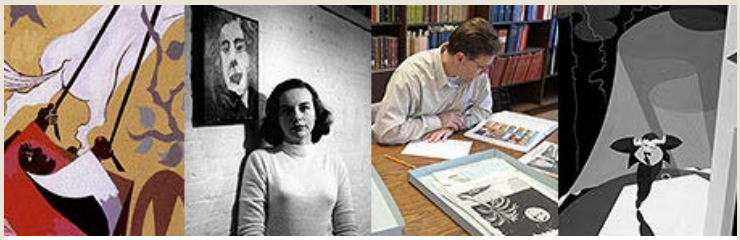
Scope and Contents of the Collection

The Carey Orr Cartoons are arranged in two series and contain original editorial cartoons, colored proofs of original cartoons and scrapbooks of published cartoons.

Cartoons (1917-1962) consists of approximately 5,314 original editorial cartoons drawn by Orr, primarily for the Chicago Tribune. Orr's work focused on local, state, national and international politics. His cartoons often feature lots of text used to label particular elements as well as signage and dialogue. From 1943 onward, for many dates, there

Special Collections Research Center



Welcome

Located on the 6th floor of Syracuse University's Bird Library, the Special Collections Research Center (SCRC) advances scholarship and learning by collecting and preserving rare books, manuscripts, and other primary source materials. SCRC's collections span time and format, from cuneiform tables to born digital electronic files. Collecting areas include activism and social reform, architecture and design, popular culture (cartoons, science fiction, and pulp literature), photography, and the history of recorded sound. SCRC is dedicated to connecting students, scholars, and the general public to its collections through exhibitions, lectures, and mini-seminars.

Overview of the Collection

Creator:	Department of Publications, MoMA
Title:	Department of Publications Collection on Proposed David Smith Monograph
Dates:	1957-1974
Quantity:	13 linear feet 13 5" manuscript boxes 2 4x6" card boxes 1 16x20" flat box
Abstract:	Records and documents from MoMA's Department of Publications related to a planned, but never published, monograph about the American sculptor David Smith (1906-1965), to be titled David Smith by David Smith.

Arrangement

The collection is arranged in four series:

Series I: MoMA Files, 1957-1974

Series II: Draft Texts and Supporting Documents, 1940-1969
Subseries II.A: David Smith, 1940-1954
Subseries II.B: William Berkson, 1960-1968
Subseries II.C: Clement Greenberg, 1966, undated
Subseries II.D: Cleve Gray, 1966
Subseries II.E: Rosalind Krauss, 1966-1969

Series III: Frank O'Hara Material on David Smith, 1957-1966

Series IV: Photographs, 1955-1968, undated

Historical Note

Proposed to MoMA's Department of Publications by artist and writer Cleve Gray in 1966, David Smith by David Smith was initially conceived in three parts. Following a foreword by MoMA Director René d'Harnoncourt, Part I was to be introductory notes on "The Man David Smith" by Gray, "The Artist David Smith" by MoMA Associate Curator Frank O'Hara, "Notes on the Sculpture" by critic Clement Greenberg, and "The Artist as Photographer" by MoMA Department of Photography Director John Szarkowski. Part II was to include Smith's writings interspersed with photographs of his work (see book mock-ups in Series II.D for the proposed eight sections of Part II, organized and designed by Gray). Part III was to include a biographical outline by William Berkson, a catalogue of the sculpture by Rosalind Krauss, various other illustrations, as well as a bibliography.

In July 1966, Frank O'Hara died suddenly from injuries sustained in an accident. After other unrelated delays in the project, Cleve Gray withdrew his planned Part II. (Holt, Rinehart & Winston published David Smith by David Smith, edited by Gray with text and photographs by Smith, in 1968.) The MoMA project was then redesigned to include an introduction by Hilton Kramer, twenty-four commentaries on individual Smith works by Clement Greenberg, the Krauss catalogue, the Berkson chronology, a bibliography, a list of exhibitions, and an index.

The project continued to change beyond its original specifications and budget, and relations between the Department of Publications and the remaining authors deteriorated. Krauss withdrew her content, and the MoMA project was abandoned. (In 1971, MIT Press published her catalogue as Terminal Iron Works: The Sculpture of David Smith.)

Scope and Content

The Department of Publications Collection on Proposed David Smith Monograph consists of records from MoMA's Department of Publications related to a planned, but never published, monograph about the American sculptor David Smith (1906-1965), to be titled David Smith by David Smith. The book was originally conceived as primarily Smith's own writings and photographs edited by Cleve Gray, with contributions by MoMA staff members and others (see Historical Note for details of the planned publication).

The collection includes correspondence among the Department of Publications and other MoMA staff members, and with the contributors during the book's planning and aftermath; photo reproductions of the book's mock-up by Gray; extensive catalogue entries and correspondence with individual and institutional owners of Smith works compiled by Rosalind Krauss; various drafts of William Berkson's chronology of Smith's life, with his accompanying correspondence and research notes; photocopies of Frank O'Hara's contributions to exhibitions of Smith's work at MoMA, and information on a televised interview he conducted with Smith; as well as extensive photographic documentation of Smith and his works, including images by Dan Budnik, Eliot Elisofon, Alexander Liberman, Ugo Mulas, and Smith himself.

Container List

Series I: MoMA Files, 1957-1974

Scope and Content

The series includes notes, correspondence, and background information on the David Smith by David Smith monograph project from the files of staff members in the Department of Publications (see Historical Note for details), including both its planning and demise. Because the monograph was never published, and the project was examined and revised repeatedly under various Directors of the Department, the material is repetitive, with certain memos and summary documents appearing in multiple files over time.

The files include copies of Krauss's catalogue forms (folders I.44-I.54), which were sent to owners of works by Smith and returned to the Department of Publications (other copies of the forms were returned to Krauss and form the bulk of Series II.E). They document significant holdings of his works by Smith's first wife Dorothy Dehner, collectors Joseph Hirshhorn and Roy Neuberger, the Whitney Museum of American Art, and the Estate of David Smith. The pieces owned by the Storm King Art Center are alphabetized under Mountainville, the sculpture park's location in New York State.

Historical Note

MoMA Department of Publications staff during the project included Directors of Publications Monroe Wheeler (until November 1966, when he became MoMA's Director of Exhibitions), Gray Williams (November 1966-October 1968), Robert Carter (October 1968-November 1969), and Richard Oldenburg (1969-1971, after which he served as Acting Director and then Director of the Museum). Helen Franc served as Editorial Associate in the Office of the Director, and as Senior Editor and Editor-in-Chief in the Department of Publications, where Françoise Boas was Publications Manager and Christine Kaiser Editorial Assistant. Associate Curator of Painting and Sculpture Frank O'Hara had worked on MoMA's exhibitions David Smith [MoMA Exh.

#621, September 11-October 20, 1957], which traveled in the United States [C/E 61-20] in 1961; and David Smith, 1906-1965 [ICE-F-82-63], which traveled internationally in 1966 and 1967.

Arrangement

The series is arranged chronologically, beginning with any undated materials. Files originally identified as related to specific contributors to the book are grouped together by their names within the chronological order, and are also ordered chronologically.

Series II: Draft Texts and Supporting Documents, 1940-1969

Scope and Content

The series includes drafts of the book's sections by its various contributors, originating from them. Because the project evolved over time, and multiple versions of drafts changed hands between the authors and Department of Publications staff members, these materials complement, and may in some cases also duplicate, those in Series I pertaining to specific contributors.

Subseries II.A. David Smith, 1940-1954

Folder	Title	Date
II.A.1	Articles and quotes Photocopied typed transcripts and reproductions of published and unpublished articles and speeches by Smith, numbered and marked in red by an unidentified hand; some attributions added in blue ink	1940-1954

Subseries II.B. William Berkson, 1960-1968

Historical Note

Berkson had assisted FOH with the Smith exhibitions at MoMA: David Smith [MoMA Exh. #621, September 11-October 20, 1957], which traveled in the United States [C/E 61-20] in 1961; and David Smith, 1906-1965 [ICE-F-82-63], which traveled internationally in 1966 and 1967. This included creating a chronology that was also used in the Fogg Museum's retrospective exhibition David Smith 1906-1965 (September 28-November 15, 1966). Both Berkson and Krauss used this earlier work to inform their contributions to David Smith by David Smith.

Subseries II.E. Rosalind Krauss, 1966-1969

Scope and Content

The subseries includes various drafts of the essay that was to precede Krauss's catalogue raisonée of Smith's work in David Smith by David Smith, correspondence and other writings, and the individual forms received by Krauss from owners of works by Smith that would form the basis for the catalogue. The latter make up the largest part of the subseries. A copy of each completed form was also returned to the MoMA Department of Publications: see folders I.44-I.54 for these items.

Arrangement

The catalogue entry forms (folders II.E.13-II.E.51) were sent to and filled out by individual and institutional owners of works by Smith, and returned to Krauss. There is a separate run of forms for works held by the Smith estate (folders II.E.52-II.E.55). Krauss had created one folder for each work, which included the catalogue entry form detailing size, markings, provenance; images; and other supporting documentation (see folder I.5 for blank forms). For some earlier works whose owners she could not identify, only photographs are included. The forms are now ordered sequentially in larger groupings within a folder. Her numbering of the works (typed on the forms at lower left, and marked on the back of photographs in red) is based on their chronological ordering from 1932 to 1965, and is alphabetical by title of works produced in a given year. Other numbers on some photographs may refer to those used in the Smith Papers held in the Archives of American Art.

The Medals for Dishonor are placed in the 1940-1944 period, with their own numbering. The chronologically ordered forms are followed by those describing works grouped by type: the Voltri, Cubi, and Posthumous Works (finished by Smith's studio assistant Leon Pratt), Miscellaneous, and Jewelry.

Any empty folders were photocopied and filed in order by number. Numbers in brackets represent those missing from the numerical sequence. Dates provided are those of the return of the forms to Krauss by the works' owners.

Series III: Frank O'Hara Material on David Smith, 1957-1966

Historical Note

Before his sudden death in 1966, MoMA Associate Curator of Painting and Sculpture FOH had written the introduction to David Smith: 1906-1965 [ICE-F-82-63], which traveled in 1966 and 1967. In 1964, he had interviewed Smith for a documentary produced by Colin Clark, directed by Bruce Minnix, and broadcast on educational channel WNDT, the precursor to WNET/Channel 13.

Scope and Content

The series includes material about Smith from FOH's files. More information about both the traveling exhibition and the television documentary can be found in MoMA's C/E and ICE records, and in the FOH Papers.

Folder	Title	Date
III.1	David Smith* [MoMA Exh. #621, September 11-October 20, 1957] Catalogue of the exhibition, without cover, annotated in FOH's hand	1957
III.2	David Smith: 1906-1965* [MoMA ICE-F-82-63] FOH introduction to exhibition; comments by Ambassador William R. Tyler at exhibition's opening in Otterlo, The Netherlands, with cover letter to FOH	May 1966
III.3	WNDT documentary on Smith FOH interview with Smith. Originally labeled "O'Hara text (to be supplemented with transcript of dialogue with Smith)"	November 13, 1964
III.4	WNDT documentary on Smith Script	November 13, 1964

Series IV: Photographs, 1955-1968, undated

Scope and Content

The series includes various albums and loose photographs of Smith at work, and of his sculptures individually and in galleries; at his studio in Bolton Landing, New York; and in Voltri, Italy. Smith and his works were widely documented during his life by photographers including Dan Budnik, Eliot Elisofon, Alexander Liberman, Ugo Mulas, and Smith himself. It is not clear from the records who amassed these images; many are reproduced in Cleve Gray's mock-ups of the planned book (see Series II.D). Krauss's catalogue (see Series II.E) also includes many images of the works individually and in situ.

Folder	Title	Date
IV.1	David Corcos Levy, and unattributed Smith at work: b/w prints	Undated
IV.2	[Ugo Mulas?] Mostly images of individual works not in situ, originally in box labeled "Mulas / Via Spollonia [?]": b/w prints	Undated
IV.3	Images of individual works (some in situ) and Smith Originally in box labeled "David Smith photos / (for Rothenstein [sic]": b/w prints	Undated
IV.4	Loose-leaf notebook Images of Smith works with paper captions interleaved between some images; some captions without images: b/w prints	Undated
IV.5	Voltri	Undated

	Images of works in situ and of Smith: 35 mm and larger-format contact sheets
IV.6	Images of Smith sculpture Originally in envelope with return address of Dan Rhodes Johnson, husband of gallerist Marian Willard: b/w transparencies	Undated
IV.7	Loose-leaf album Smith works in exhibitions and in situ at Bolton's Landing: 8x10 b/w prints. These may have become detached from pages in the album in folder IV.8.	1955, 1957
IV.8	Loose-leaf album Album pages of photographs with captions, and pages with captions but no photographs. The prints have been removed and sleeved in Mylar; empty pages were photocopied and retained in their original order.	[1955, 1957]
IV.9	Dan Budnik Smith at Bolton's Landing, in envelope addressed to Gray Williams: 5x7 b/w prints	1962
IV.10	Harold Jones Originally in envelope labeled "Photographs of David Smith by Harold Jones taken about one month before Smith's death. These were taken at Maryland Institute where Smith was a guest critic. / Please return to Bruce MacDonald in Photography Dep't MoMA": contact sheets	[April 1965]
IV.11	Alexander Liberman Images of Smith and the Motherwells taken May 15-16, 1965; with cover letter Liberman's secretary-Berkson (11/11/1965): edited contact sheets	May, November 1965

Collection Overview

Description Literary manuscripts: Notes, poetry fragments, single poems, poetry collections, plays, and prose works of fiction and non-fiction, largely holograph mss. and typescripts with holograph revisions; travel journals dating from 1960-1986; notebooks; musical compositions by various composers based on poems of Ferlinghetti.
Personal papers: Clippings of work by Ferlinghetti and clippings about Ferlinghetti; a small amount of correspondence; posters, fliers, programs and catalogs from events in which Ferlinghetti participated.

Background Lawrence Ferlinghetti, American poet, editor, and publisher, was born in March of 1919 in Yonkers, N.Y., the son of Charles S. and Clemence Ferling. From 1920 to 1924, he lived in France with his aunt, and after their return to the U.S., was educated in New York, at the Riverside Country School (1927-28) and Bronxville Public School (1929-33). Ferlinghetti attended high school at Mount Hermon School in Greenfield, Mass. (1933-37), then received a B.A. in Journalism from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill in 1941, his M.A. in Literature from Columbia University in 1948, and his Doctorat de l'Université from The Sorbonne, Paris in 1949. He served in the U.S. Navy from 1941 to 1945, and attained the rank of Lieutenant Commander. Ferlinghetti married Selden Kirby-Smith in 1951, and has two children, Julie and Lorenzo.

General Access

The entrance to The Bancroft Library is on the east side of the Main Library, facing the Sather Tower, more commonly known as the Campanile.

- Before entering the Reading Room, you must stow prohibited items in the lockers provided on the ground floor, located on the right-hand side of the east entrance. Pass the security guard station and proceed up one level by stairs or elevator to the Reading Room and Seminar Rooms (3rd floor).

- The Registration Desk is located on the left-hand side of the entrance to the Reference Center. You must stop here and register to use the library. Bancroft Library readers must be at least 18, or have graduated from high school. Current UCB photo identification is adequate for registration. Others must present two forms of identification (at least one containing a photograph).

- In the process of registering, you agree to abide by Bancroft regulations, as outlined in the "Reading Room Conditions of Use" leaflet available at the Registration Desk.

- Registration usually remains valid for two years.

Disabled Access

Visitors may enter The Bancroft Library via the ground-level front door on the east side of the Doe Annex.

- On-campus parking requires a UCB parking permit in addition to a state issued disabled parking placard. Please consult the UCB Parking and Transportation website for further information.

BIOGRAPHICAL STATEMENT

Stanley Robertson was a master gilder and a conservator of gilded objects and frames, who mostly worked in the Washington, D.C. area. He was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on July 9, 1937, the son of Jean Ayton and George Samuel Robertson. He took a circuitous route to becoming a conservator, studying art history and chemistry in college and working in advertising before becoming a musician. For more than ten years, he was a member of The Society of Seven, a well-known music group based in Honolulu, Hawaii. His interest in music led him to learning how to repair musical instruments. An instrument that needed repair to its gilding inspired him to learn how to gild.

Mr. Robertson became an apprentice gilder in Paris, where he studied for three years. During this time, he assisted the conservators working on a chateau in Meaux, France. Following his apprenticeship, Stanley worked in California for a short time but returned to England for additional journeyman training in frame repair. He made a special study of period frame styles. Having become an American citizen while living in Hawaii, he decided to return to the United States when a job for a frame conservator became available at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. He worked there for over two years (1984-1986), and then left to set up his own private practice, Chelsea Lane Conservation Studio. Mr. Robertson's clients included the Office of the Architect of the U.S. Capitol, the Federal Reserve System, the Corcoran Gallery of Art, the Freer Gallery, the Pentagon, the Bass Museum of Art (Miami, Florida), the Ringling Museum (Sarasota, Florida), The Hermitage of Andrew Jackson, schools, private individuals, and many other museums, art galleries, and historic houses.

Mr. Robertson was also active in conservation organizations. He was a member of the Guild of Master Craftsmen (Great Britain), the Society of Gilders, the Washington Conservation Guild, and a professional associate of the American Institute for Conservation. He taught classes in gilding for the Campbell Center for Preservation and the Smithsonian Resident Associate program. He gave lectures about the history of frames and frame styles. He wrote magazine articles and a chapter in the book Gilded Wood: Conservation and History, which was based on the talk he gave at the 1988 Gilded Wood Symposium held in Philadelphia. He was also a member of the St. Andrew's Society, having never forgotten his Scottish roots.

Stanley Robertson died on May 4, 2003, of lung cancer, perhaps caused by chemicals used in his work. He was survived by his wife, Sandra Spence, and by his former wife, Amanda Raphaelson. He had no children.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

Contains information relating to Stanley Robertson's career as a gilder and frame conservator. Included are treatment and survey reports; communications, such as meeting notices, from the various associations to which he belonged; articles and other information about frames and gilding; copies of lectures he gave and articles he wrote; notes and handouts from the classes he taught at the Campbell Center and through the Smithsonian Resident Associate Program; correspondence; calendars; recipes for gesso, sizes, and other materials used in the gilding process; advertisements for his business; and his records of employment by the National Gallery of Art. Photographs and slides of many of the items on which he worked are part of the collection, though few are identified. As well, there are trade catalogs from makers of gold leaf, frames, and tools. Some of the molds he created to make decorations for frames are also included with the papers. There are a few of his tools, probably used for carving rather than gilding. Cassette and video tapes relating to gilding are in the collection as well. Although most of the collection post-dates Robertson's return to the United States in 1984, there are a few documents relating to his time with the Society of Seven, a copy of his naturalization papers, and notes kept during his gilding apprenticeship in Paris.

ORGANIZATION

Most of the papers were not in folders or were in folders without titles when the collection came to this repository. Therefore, the papers had to be arranged as seemed best and folder titles were assigned. Legal size files are in Box 34. Postcards, and oversized articles, designs and tracings, and photographs are in Boxes 40-41.

Some of the photographs were filed with correspondence and treatment reports and were left where they were found. Most photos, however, were filed separately, and many were in unlabeled albums or folders. Some packets of prints include negatives, but many other negatives are filed separately. Trade catalogs are filed together and are arranged alphabetically by company name, not by product.

PROVENANCE

Gift of Sandra Spence.

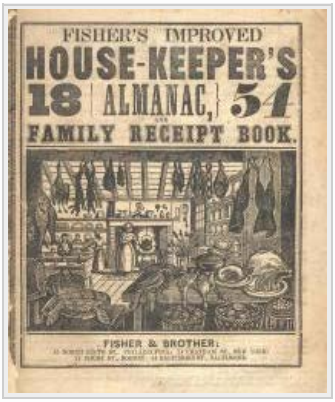
The Collection of Printed Books and Periodicals

The Collection of Printed Books and Periodicals contains more than 100,000 volumes in open stacks adjacent to the main reading room and about 20,000 rare American and European imprints in closed stacks. The collection focuses on the documentation of American household goods and their use, decorative arts and design, and the material culture of everyday life in America from the 17th through the early 20th centuries.

The holdings of rare books are particularly strong in architecture and design books; travel narratives; American painting and graphics; children's books; descriptions of craft techniques; women's magazines and the literature of domestic economy and etiquette; periodicals that promote or describe lifestyles; and city directories and guidebooks. A sizable portion of the rare book collection offers insights into the European antecedents that informed American taste and design. American and British manufacturers' and retailers' trade catalogs provide an invaluable record of product designs, technological developments, and marketing strategies.



Fisher's Improved House-keeper's Almanac and Family Receipt Book, 1854

In addition to monographs, rare books, serials, and trade catalogs, the Collection of Printed Books and Periodicals offers currently published periodicals as well as auction and exhibition catalogues.

The Joseph Downs Collection of Manuscripts and Printed Ephemera

Named for Winterthur's first curator, the Downs Collection contains about 3,000 record groups. Downs consists almost exclusively of primary research materials, including personal and business accounts in the form of diaries, family papers, tax records, and letter books of craftspeople and merchants. In addition, the Downs Collection contains drawings (architectural, artistic, and amateur); wills and household inventories; children's toys and games; scrapbooks and journals; and fabric swatch books. An extensive microform collection, including copies of material owned by other public repositories and private individuals, supplements the manuscript holdings.

An important complement to the Downs Collection is the Edward Deming Andrews Memorial Shaker Collection, named to honor America's pioneer Shaker scholar. The collection features manuscripts, books, and visual materials related to the Shakers as well as the research archives compiled by Dr. Andrews and his wife, Faith.

The Visual Resources Collection

Visual Resources is made up of tens of thousands of photographs in the Decorative Arts Photographic Collection (DAPC) and the Photographic Index of American Art and Design (PIAAD).

DAPC is a unique research resource of photographs of decorative arts objects made and used in America prior to 1920 and now located in public and private collections throughout the United States and England. DAPC documents the work of individual craftsmen, workshops, and manufactories. Images of furniture and silver are particular strengths. Indexes in the collection provide basic biographical and bibliographical information on craft workers compiled from newspaper advertisements, city directories, and major secondary sources.

PIAAD is the fine arts counterpart to DAPC. It contains photographs of American paintings, sculpture, graphic arts, drawings, Fraktur, gravestones, and architecture.

The Winterthur Archives

The Archives records the creation and development of Winterthur as a private estate and a public museum. The archives includes papers relating to Winterthur compiled by Henry Francis du Pont and his immediate family, as well as the records of Winterthur Farms and administrative documents of the museum.

The Archives documents a period of collecting and patronage, evolving attitudes toward museum display rooms in the 20th century, and aspects of early 20th-century taste in landscape design. Materials include autochrome views of the Winterthur garden and landscape, architectural drawings reflecting the development of Winterthur and its ultimate transition from home to public museum, and H. F. du Pont's correspondence with antiques dealers from the 1920s to 1969, the year he died.

Collection Overview

Description The Muybridge Lone Mountain Collection of photographs consists of 1700 stereographs, 6 albums and 39 individual photographs taken during the years 1867 to 1880.

Background Edward James Muggeridge was born on April 9, 1830 in Kingston-on-Thames, England. He was the second of four sons born to John Muggeridge and Susannah Smith Muggeridge. John Muggeridge was a grain, coal and timber merchant and Susannah Smith Muggeridge came from a prosperous family engaged in the business of carrying by barge. At the age of 22 Edward decided to go to America and he changed his name to Eadweard Muygridge. He took the spelling of his first name from the "Coronation Stone," which had been discovered in Kingston in 1850. Seven Saxon kings had been crowned upon this stone and two kings named Eadweard appeared on its plinth. As for the spelling of his last name, the "muy" may have been added to reflect some Spanish ancestry, and "gridge" was later changed to "bridge."

Extent 1700 stereographs, 6 albums and 39 oversize prints 1727 digital objects

Title: Frederick Mortimer Clapp Papers

Dates: 1852-1969

Bulk Dates: 1906-1969

Physical Description: 52.55 linear feet (132 boxes)

Language(s): In English.

Summary: The Frederick Mortimer Clapp Papers consists of personal and professional correspondence, writings, research material, lecture notes, subject files, diaries, and other papers documenting Clapp's activities as an art historian, educator, and poet as well as his personal and professional relationships. Writings include drafts and proofs for Clapp's various collections of verse and other works such as A History of the 17th Aero Squadron (1920) and The Frick Collection : Paintings : Summary Catalogue (1935). Amongst the extensive lecture notes and research material on various topics are some notes relating to Clapp's research on Pontormo and his work with The Frick Collection. Also found in the collection are the personal and family papers of Clapp's wife, Maud Ede Clapp, which consist of correspondence, diaries, writings and artwork.

Processing Notes

Collections are processed to a variety of levels, depending on the work necessary to make them usable, their perceived research value, the availability of staff, competing priorities, and whether or not further accruals are expected. The library attempts to provide a basic level of preservation and access for all collections, and does more extensive processing of higher priority collections as time and resources permit.

The collection received some level of processing in the 1970s or 1980s. Further organization and description were carried out in 2010. Series I, Correspondence, was largely left arranged as it was, with the exception that a distinct group of subject files was organized as a separate series (II). The group of Miscellaneous Manuscripts was broadened into a series of Writing and Research Files (Series III). The papers relating to Maud Ede Clapp and her family were organized as a separate series (V), and the remainder of the material was organized as a series of Personal and Other Papers (IV), including a small group of miscellaneous letters that had not previously been arranged with the rest of the correspondence and was therefore not included in Series I.

The collection is comprised of material formerly classed as: Za Clapp, Uncat Za MSS Clapp, ZA File Clapp, ZA File Jeffers.

This finding aid may be updated periodically to account for new acquisitions to the collection and/or revisions in arrangement and description.

Frederick Mortimer Clapp (1879-1969)

Frederick Mortimer Clapp was an American art historian, educator, and poet, and the first director of The Frick Collection from 1936 to 1951. He was born in New York City in 1879, and attended the City College of New York (1896-1899) and then Yale (1899-1902) receiving a B.A. and M.A. He taught at City College and the University of California extension services before traveling throughout Europe and studying art. Clapp married Maud Caroline Ede (1876-1960), an artist in Florence, in 1908. He received a doctorate in art history from the Sorbonne in 1914 and wrote his dissertation on Pontormo's drawings. In 1916 Clapp published a book and catalogue raisonné on Pontormo's paintings. The same year, he began publishing poetry, issuing collections of verse through the 1950s.

Clapp served with the 17th and 22nd Aero Squadrons during the First World War, and wrote a history of the 17th Aero Squadron that was published in 1920. In 1926 Clapp joined the University of Pittsburgh as chair of the art history program. His association with The Frick Collection began in 1931, when he was named advisor to the collection after the death of Mrs. Frick. He became organizing director in 1933, overseeing the transformation of the Frick mansion from a home into the present museum, and then director in 1936, eventually retiring in 1951. Clapp died in 1969 at the age of ninety.

Description of the Papers

The Frederick Mortimer Clapp Papers consists of personal and professional correspondence, writings, research material, lecture notes, subject files, diaries, and other papers documenting Clapp's activities as an art historian, educator, and poet as well as his personal and professional relationships. Writings include drafts and proofs for Clapp's various collections of verse and other works such as A History of the 17th Aero Squadron (1920) and The Frick Collection : Paintings : Summary Catalogue (1935). Among the extensive lecture notes and research material on various topics are some notes relating to Clapp's research on Jacopo da Pontormo and his work with The Frick Collection. Also found in the collection are the personal and family papers of Clapp's wife, Maud Ede Clapp, which largely consist of correspondence, diaries, writings and artwork.

Arrangement

Organized into five series: I. Correspondence, 1878-1969. II. Subject Files, 1928-1963. III. Writing and Research Files, 1917-1967. IV. Personal and Other Papers, 1906-1967. V. Maud Ede Clapp Papers, 1852-1960.

Planning Your Research Visit

Please Note: The Beinecke Rare Book & Manuscript Library will close for a major renovation in May 2015, reopening in September 2016. We will maintain a reading room in Sterling Memorial Library during this time, but access to various collections will be limited as early as April 2014 while we prepare for closure. Please consult the Closed Collections Schedule while planning your visit to confirm that desired materials will be available.

The Beinecke Library is open to all Yale University students and faculty, and visiting researchers whose work requires use of its special collections. Please take a moment to pre-register online. Materials may be requested using request links in ORBIS, the Yale Finding Aid Database, as well as the Beinecke Digital Collections tool. We ask that you fill out one form per box of archival material.

Please consult the Reading Room Policies prior to visiting the library. All library materials must be handled with great care to ensure their safety and preservation.

Research areas and public exhibition spaces are accessible to the handicapped via elevator. Researchers requiring special accomodations are encouraged to email beinecke.access@yale.edu prior to their visit. Metered parking for the handicapped is available on High St. between Wall St. and Grove St.

Researchers are encouraged to bring their own laptop computers or they may borrow a laptop from the Public Services Desk. The library's laptops are equipped with wireless technology linking Yale affiliates to the university's computer network. The Yale Guest network is available for those who are not affiliated with Yale.

Please be prepared to secure most of your belongings in a Beinecke locker, as limited amounts of material are permitted in the reading room.

Researchers are encouraged to acquaint themselves with the library's holdings and to gather preliminary information needed to identify and locate materials relevant to their work by reading an overview of the curatorial areas of the collection and available library catalogs and databases. Yale University Library's online catalog, Orbis, and databases devoted to new acquisitions and manuscripts and archival materials provide descriptions of the library's books and archives. Curators and public services librarians are available for reference consultations by request.

Many Beinecke Library collection materials may be digitally photographed by readers in the reading room for study purposes with a small handheld camera, cell phone or iPad. Large cameras and tripods are not allowed. Researchers will need to complete and sign the "Policy on Digital Photography be Readers in the Reading Room" as a part of the registration process. It is also possible to order reproductions.

Requesting Materials

Beinecke is a non-circulating, closed stack library. Paging is done by library staff during business hours. All requests for Beinecke materials must be placed through our online requesting system, Aeon. Fill out the pre-registration form and log in. Once your account has been created, you can use request links in ORBIS, the Yale Finding Aid Database, as well as the Beinecke Digital Collections tool. We ask that you fill out one form per box of archival material.

Material that is stored within the main Beinecke building will be paged when you arrive. It typically takes twenty minutes to retrieve materials from the stacks. Some Beinecke material is stored off-site and must be requested two days in advance. Collections housed off-site will be identified in Orbis with "LSF-BEINECKE."

Permission is required for access to some materials. Please consult the Closed Collections Schedule for a list of archives closed for processing.

Born-digital materials in manuscript collections must be requested at least two days in advance. Permission to view these digital files will be granted to researchers upon application. Please review our access policies for specific information about born-digital collection materials.

Yale Affiliates | Visitors

All Yale University students and faculty are welcome to study at the Beinecke. If you have not visited the Beinecke before, please take a moment to pre-register using your Net ID via Aeon. When you arrive, be sure to bring your Yale ID to compete the registration process.

BIOGRAPHY

Izola Forrester was born November 15, 1878, in Pascoag, Rhode Island. Her mother was Ogarita "Rita" Booth, a stage actress who believed herself to be the daughter of John Wilkes Booth, and used his last name. Her father was George Wallingford Hills, a Harvard College student. They never married. Ogarita Booth was briefly married to William Ross Wilson before marrying Alexander Henderson, who was a director of musicals and light operas. They had two children, Beatrice Henderson Clutts Colony (1885-1961) and Charles Henderson (1886-1888). Forrester often acted on stage with her mother, but for periods of her childhood, she lived with her maternal grandmother, Izola Martha Mills, her cousin, Hanson Pike Gilman, and with George and Harriet Forrester. Following Ogarita Henderson's death on April 12, 1892, Izola Forrester went to live permanently with the Forresters, who formally adopted her on January 6, 1893.
On October 28, 1899, Forrester married Reuben Merrifield, a painter for Ringling Brothers Circus. They spent the early years of their marriage in Chicago before moving to New York City. The family also spent time in Canterbury, Connecticut. The Merrifields had five children: Arthur (1901-1983), Rita (1903-1921), Richard "Dick" (1905-1977), Beatrice (1906-1907), and Dorothy (born 1908). In 1913, Forrester left Merrifield to marry author, screenwriter, and playwright, Mann Page; they had three children, Izola (1914-2004), Marjorie "Peg" (born 1916), and Rosamond "Ros" (born 1918).
Forrester was a prolific writer whose articles appeared in magazines including Ainslee's, Munsey's Magazine, Red Book Magazine, and The Young Churchman. She also wrote several books for young girls including Those Preston Twins, Rook's Nest, The Girls of Bonnie Castle, and "Us Fellers", as well as the series featuring Polly Page and the Greenacre Girls. In 1937, she wrote This One Mad Act: The Unknown Story of John Wilkes Booth and His Family, in which she defended her belief that Booth was her grandfather. Forrester also wrote several silent movie screenplays including, The White Moth and a Café in Cairo.
In 1940, Forrester and her family moved to Keene, New Hampshire. She died on March 6, 1944.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The collection contains biographical information, diaries, scrapbooks, personal and business correspondence, published copies and drafts of writings by Forrester and Page, genealogical research materials, photographs, ephemera, and other materials. Members of the Forrester family foldered materials and created folder headings prior to the collection's arrival at the library. Those headings were maintained by the archivist who subsequently arranged the files. Additional information provided by the archivist appears in square brackets. Most of the photographs in this collection are or will be cataloged in VIA, Harvard University's Visual Information Access database. Others, referred to as "uncataloged" photographs, are not of sufficient research interest to warrant cataloging and are simply treated as part of the documents they accompany.
The collection is arranged in nine series:

- Series I. Izola Forrester and Mann Page
  - Subseries A. Izola Forrester biographical and personal
  - Subseries B. Mann Page biographical and personal
  - Subseries C. Izola Forrester and Mann Page correspondence
- Series II. Izola Forrester and Mann Page writings
- Series III. Booth material
  - Subseries A. General
  - Subseries B. Gail Merrifield Papp
- Series IV. Izola Martha Mills
- Series V. Ogarita Booth
- Series VI. Arthur Merrifield and family
- Series VII. Richard Merrifield
- Series VIII. Other family and friends
- Series IX. Photographs, oversized, audio-visual, and memorabilia
  - Subseries A. Photographs
  - Subseries B. Oversized
  - Subseries C. Audio-visual
  - Subseries D. Memorabilia

Series I, IZOLA FORRESTER AND MANN PAGE, 1879-1998 (#1.1-17.16), includes biographical information, diaries, scrapbooks, correspondence between Forrester and Page, letters from Forrester's and Page's families and friends, business correspondence, and other materials. It is arranged in three subseries.
Subseries A, Izola Forrester biographical and personal, 1894-1949 (#1.1-4.12, E.1), contains biographical writings, diaries, address books, and scrapbooks. Also included are many clippings that were of interest to Forrester, but which contain no mention of her. Of particular interest among these clippings is a series of articles written in 1917 by Grace Humiston concerning the vulnerability of young women in the work place, while walking alone at night, and in romantic relationships. A web site created by Forrester's family in honor of Forrester is being captured periodically as part of Harvard University Library's Web Archive Collection service (WAX); searchable archived versions of the web site will be available through this finding aid in 2010. Files are arranged with biographical materials first, followed by the remaining files in chronological order.
Subseries B, Mann Page biographical and personal, 1903-1998 (#4.13-6.1), includes an obituary, will, list of plays, theater programs, materials relating to his years as a student at the Episcopal High School of Virginia, and a family history. Files are arranged chronologically.
Subseries C, Izola Forrester and Mann Page correspondence, 1879-1967 (#6.2-17.16), contains correspondence between Forrester and Page, letters from Forrester's and Page's families and friends, and business correspondence. The letters between Forrester and Page reveal their affection for each other as well as their frustration with their economic situation due to slow sales of their writings, particularly their screenplays. Family correspondents include Forrester's biological father, George W. Hills, who claimed that until Forrester wrote to him, he did not know of her existence, and Richard F. Merrifield, Forrester's younger son. Topics in Richard F. Merrifield's letters include his father, Reuben Merrifield, who lived with him; his philosophies on life, particularly fidelity; his marital problems; and his writing career. There are several folders of correspondence concerning a mine in Arizona that was owned by Katherine Harris. Forrester used to read to Harris' mother in Chicago and the two women became friendly. Following her mother's death, Harris moved to rural Arizona to live with her brother, who owned several mines. The files contain letters from Harris asking Forrester to purchase goods for her and to handle business correspondence and to meet with people concerning the mine. When Harris died, Forrester inherited the mine and investigated the viability of hiring someone to work the mines for her before eventually selling the land. Business correspondence includes information about Forrester's and Page's writing incomes as well as their personal financial transactions. Files are arranged with correspondence between Forrester and Page first, followed by an alphabetical arrangement of letters from family members and friends, and an alphabetical listing of general correspondence files.
Series II, IZOLA FORRESTER AND MANN PAGE WRITINGS, 1896-1982 (#18.1-51.7), contains published copies and drafts of newspaper and magazine articles, plays, and screenplays. Also included are reviews and ideas for stories. Stories were written for both juvenile and adult publications. Many of the stories written for adult audiences focus on romantic situations. Well represented in this series is the book This One Mad Act: The Unknown Story of John Wilkes Booth and His Family, in which Forrester defended her belief that Booth was her grandfather. When easily identifiable, the author and date of the work has been included in the folder title. In many cases, it is not clear if works were written by Forrester, Page, or as collaborations between the two. Files are arranged alphabetically by publication, followed by an alphabetical listing of story titles, and related materials.
Series III, BOOTH MATERIAL, 1844-2005 (#51.8-57.13), contains materials relating to the Forrester family's efforts to learn whether or not Ogarita Booth was John Wilkes Booth's daughter, and includes correspondence with researchers, correspondence between family members, marriage and death records, pension records, transcription of Izola Martha Mills' diaries, and other materials. It is arranged in two subseries.
Subseries A, General, 1847-2005 (#51.8-56.15), contains correspondence with researchers, marriage and death records, pension records, transcriptions of Izola Martha Mills' diaries, and other materials relating to the Forrester family's efforts to learn whether or not Ogarita Booth was John Wilkes Booth's daughter. Materials in this subseries were designated as Booth materials by the Forrester family. Files are arranged alphabetically.
Subseries B, Gail Merrifield Papp, 1844-2005 (#56.16-57.13), contains letters, Booth research, Abraham Mills' seaman's certificate, George Forrester's church confirmation certificate, and a scrapbook created by Mann Page. Correspondents include Izola Forrester, Richard Merrifield, Gail Merrifield Papp, Alonzo Mills, and Ogarita Booth. Materials in this subseries were donated by Gail Merrifield Papp and contained a detailed inventory separate from the rest of the collection. Files are arranged alphabetically.
Series IV, IZOLA MARTHA MILLS, 1869-1887 (#57.14-59.1), contains a scrapbook created by Mills, a poetry book inscribed to Mills from Rosalie Booth, a book of Mills' poetry, and four of Mills' diaries. The diaries chronicle Mills' marriage to Edwin Bates. Many entries describe an incident where Bates went missing for several weeks and was believed dead. Mills writes of her anguish over Bates' death and her joy when Bates returns and tells of his near-death illness that kept him from returning home. Throughout the collection, Mills was referred to by several versions of her name, including Martha Mills; Izola Martha Mills was the most common version. Materials are arranged alphabetically.
Series V, OGARITA BOOTH, 1866-1901 (#59.2-59.4), contains scrapbooks of theatrical memorabilia, playbills, and theatrical programs. Letters from Booth to her brother, Harry Stevenson, can be found in Series VIII, Other family and friends. Items are arranged alphabetically.
Series VI, ARTHUR MERRIFIELD AND FAMILY, 1911-1977 (#59.5-61.6), includes from Izola Forrester and Mann Page to Arthur and Betty Merrifield and their two sons, Donald and Peter. Arthur and Betty's letters include news about family members and often contain descriptions of trips they took along the California coastline in their recreational vehicle. Folders are arranged alphabetically.
Series VII, RICHARD F. MERRIFIELD, 1917-1978 (#61.7-64.13), contains letters from family members and copies of stories written by Merrifield. Family correspondents include Izola Forrester, Arthur and Betty Merrifield, Donald Merrifield, Richard Noel Merrifield, Gail Merrifield Papp, Izola Allen, Peg Colony, and Rosamond Putnam. Forrester's letters detail her philosophies on many topics, including literature and marriage. She includes news about her other children and her grandchildren. Several letters mention their poor financial situation and her poor health. She also offers her son advice on his often unhappy marriage to Emma and his attraction to his second wife, Gladys. Letters from Donald Merrifield chronicle his years in the seminary and later, as president of Loyola Marymount University. Writings include samples of Merrifield's poetry and copies of his "Monadnock Journal" articles. Correspondence folders are arranged chronologically, followed by writing files, which are arranged alphabetically.
Series VIII, OTHER FAMILY AND FRIENDS, 1860-1998 (#64.14-68.19), includes correspondence among several members of Forrester's family, including, Robert and Madeline Joslyn, Dorothy Merrifield, Emma Merrifield, Gladys Merrifield, and Harry Stevenson. Stevenson's files include letters from his sister, Rita Booth, which contain family news and accounts of her theater work with her husband, Al Henderson. There are also letters from family friends and several sketches by unidentified artists. Files are arranged alphabetically.
Series IX, PHOTOGRAPHS, OVERSIZED, AUDIO-VISUAL, AND MEMORABILIA, 1866-2004 (#PD.1-PD.55, 69FB.1-69FB.8f, F+D.1-F+D.4, 70FB.1m, 71FB.1m, Phon-4.1, T-332.1-T-332.2, MP-52.1-MP-52.18, DVD-5.1-DVD-5.2, 72CB.1, Mem.1-Mem.2), contains candid and portrait photographs; oversized publications, playbills, and artwork; DVDs, reel-to-reel home movies, audiotapes, and ephemeral items. It is arranged in four subseries.
Subseries A, Photographs, 1866-1950 (#PD.1-PD.55), contains portraits and candid photographs of Izola Forrester, Mann Page, Ogarita Booth, Izola Martha Mills, Forrester's children, other members of Forrester's family, and people connected to the Booth-Mills story. Also included are photographs removed from other files in the collection.
Subseries B, Oversized, 1891-1937 (#69FB.1-69FB.8, F+D.1-F+D.4), contains oversized publications, playbills, artwork, writings by Forrester, a scrapbook by an unidentified creator containing cartoon clippings, etc. Folders are arranged by size, from smallest to largest.
Subseries C, Audio-visual, 1937-2004 (#Phon-4.1, T-332.1-T-332.2, MP-52.1-MP-52.18, DVD-5.1-DVD-5.2), contains interviews with Izola Forrester about This One Mad Act; an interview with Forrester's daughters about Canterbury, Connecticut; Arthur and Betty Merrifield's home movies; a DVD of a tour of Izola Allen's house; and a DVD of a memorial service for Forrester's daughter, Izola Page Allen. Items are arranged by format.
Subseries D, Memorabilia, 1908, n.d. (#70FB.1m, 71FB.1m, 72CB.1, Mem.1-Mem.2), contains a scarf pin owned by John Wilkes Booth; the contents of Ogarita Booth's theatrical trunk, including material scraps, a bracelet, and clothespins; a box of Izola Forrester's hair; an award won by Mann Page; and other objects. Items are arranged alphabetically.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME

Mission Statement

The University Archivist bears the responsibility, by appointment of the President and under the supervision of the Office of the Provost, for the collection and maintenance of the official records and papers of the University as well as other documents of enduring historical value.

The University Archives collects, preserves, and makes accessible the official records of the University of Notre Dame. This historically valuable material documents the academic and administrative responsibilities of the University as well as the experiences of its students, alumni, officers, faculty, staff, and benefactors.

In addition, the University Archives, through its records management program, provides record retention and retrieval services to campus offices. This program ensures that historically valuable records are identified for permanent retention in the Archives and that documents with no historical significance are appropriately destroyed after there is no continuing administrative, fiscal, or legal need for their retention.

The Archives also collects and maintains records, papers, photographs, printed material, and audio-visual material that document the life of the Catholic Church and her people as lived in the American context, and is recognized as one of the nation's foremost archival repositories for the study of American Catholicism. The Archives has collected these materials since the nineteenth century, and the availability of these important scholarly resources at Notre Dame is a major contribution to the academic mission of the University.

How to Use this Website

The website is divided into ten major sections. You are currently in the About the Archives section, which contains general information about the Archives and our policies and procedures.

Information for Researchers: This section provides necessary information regarding Archives' history, fees, and services. It is helpful whether you are visiting the Archives in person or requesting information from home.

About Our Collections: General descriptions of the different types of material in the Archives can be found here. If you are interested in University records, Catholic historical manuscript collections, photographs, audio/visual material, or printed material, you should seek additional information and links to the search pages here.

Search Our Collections: From this page you can perform a search across all of the Archives' online finding aids and also search unique individual databases, such as an index to early Notre Dame students from 1849 to 1912.

Records Management: This section is intended for University departments only and contains information for faculty and staff on how to manage records.

Research Resources: This section provides documents, online exhibits, statistics, full text publications, and links useful to many of the topics that may be of interest to researchers.

Digital Collections: This section includes links to many digitized Notre Dame publications -- including student magazines and newspapers, alumni journals, football reviews, and others -- and to two of our manuscript collections, the Records of the Diocese of Louisiana and the

Collection Overview

Description 130 paintings by Henry Sugimoto, a Japanese American artist who flourished in the 1930s and continued to paint well into the 1990s.

Background An Issei, or immigrant from Japan, Henry Sugimoto defied convention to pursue a career as a painter. Talent and a persevering drive brought him early success in the 1930s. His rising career came to a halt during World War II when he was confined to American concentration camps. What is striking about Sugimoto is the way he responded to his incarceration. The experience initiated a deeply personal exploration that transformed how he viewed himself and his art.

About JANM

The mission of the Japanese American National Museum is to promote understanding and appreciation of America's ethnic and cultural diversity by sharing the Japanese American experience.

We share the story of Japanese Americans because we honor our nation's diversity. We believe in the importance of remembering our history to better guard against the prejudice that threatens liberty and equality in a democratic society. We strive as a world-class museum to provide a voice for Japanese Americans and a forum that enables all people to explore their own heritage and culture.

We promote continual exploration of the meaning and value of ethnicity in our country through programs that preserve individual dignity, strengthen our communities, and increase respect among all people. We believe that our work will transform lives, create a more just America and, ultimately, a better world.

History of the Japanese American National Museum
The Japanese American National Museum is the largest museum in the United States dedicated to sharing the experience of Americans of Japanese ancestry. The founding of the Museum is a story of high hopes, remarkable achievements, frustration, and ultimately, success. Like the saga of generations of Japanese Americans, it is a story of tenacity. This is that story. more...

O'Neil Ford:

An Inventory of his Drawings, Papers, and Photographic Material, 1864-1983

Collection Summary

Creator: Ford, O'Neil, 1905-1982

Title: O'Neil Ford collection

Dates: 1864-1983

Abstract: Papers, plans, photographic prints and negatives, slides, exhibit boards, drawings, and sketches reveal the life and career of O'Neil Ford (1905-1982), a prominent architect in the southwestern United States whose work also extended nationally and internationally. The collection demonstrates the origins and practice of Ford's dedication to native architectural forms and hand craftwork, historic preservation, innovative design, and his tireless advocacy of education, particularly in the arts.

Quantity: 54 linear feet papers and photographic material; approximately 8,275 sheets of drawings

Language: Materials are in English.

Repository: Alexander Architectural Archive, University of Texas Libraries, The University of Texas at Austin.

Biographical Sketch of O'Neil Ford

"Born in the town of Pink Hill, Otha Neil Ford (1905-1982), attended an elementary school in nearby Sherman with a progressive curriculum influenced by the arts-and-crafts movement. From the first grade on, he learned to draw and to build what he drew. Following his father's death in a railroad accident, Neil became the family breadwinner at age 12. To obtain work, he developed a flair for persuasive showmanship, one of many aspects of the complex Fordian persona that he was to invent as he progressed through his long and extraordinarily influential life.

"The family moved to Denton, where, during his high school years, Neil haunted the libraries at the local colleges. In 1924, he entered what was then North Texas State Teachers College, a block from his home, He did well in manual training and Shakespeare, the subjects that interested him, but was forced to leave college after two years. His only formal professional training was a basic architecture course from the International Correspondence School of Scranton, Pa. Ford's lack of university education became part of his mystique.

"In 1926, Ford entered the Dallas office or architect David R. Williams, where he served an apprenticeship. Flamboyant and often outrageous, Williams had "star quality" and, quite naturally, was Ford's first role model and mentor. Williams responded to Neil's abilities as a designer. Working together they produced a number of houses in North Central Texas that were distinguished by the integration of architecture and crafts and the use of native materials. The Hugh Drane residence in Corsicana is a notable example. Williams closed his practice in the early '30s; as deputy administrator of the National Youth Administration from 1936 to 1941, and in influential posts with other federal depression-recovery agencies, he was able to direct commissions to Ford.

"Ford formed his first viable partnership in 1936 with Arch Swank. Significant early jobs for the Dallas office of Ford and Swank were the Little Chapel in the Woods on the campus of Texas Women's University, constructed by National Youth Administration trainees and college art students; and a house on St. Joseph's Island for oilman Sid Richardson.

"Ford's move to San Antonio was precipitated by his work as consulting architect on another NYA project, the restoration of La Villita. He married Wanda Graham in 1940 and settled into the Graham homestead, Willow Way. The house's ambience dramatically influenced what come to be called the Ford style: a mix of worn stone and low-fired bricks, tile floors, and well-crafted wood, united by a lack of pretension.

"In 1946, Ford formed a new partnership with Jerry Rogers that lasted until 1953. Their interest in innovative building systems, such as the Youtz-Slick lift slab process, was put to the test in 1949 when, thanks to William Wurster, another enthusiastic Ford supporter, Ford & Rogers won the commission to design a new campus for Trinity University in San Antonio in association with Bartlett Cocke & Associates. Work at Trinity would span three decades.

"The firm known as O'Neil Ford & Associates was established in 1953 (lasting until 1966), as was Ford's Houston-based partnership with Richard Colley and William Tamminga, which lasted until 1956. From the mid-'50s on, associated architects Ford, Colley & Swank, with planner Samuel B. Zisman, collaborated on a number of projects for Texas Instruments.

"The partnership with Boone Powell and Chris Carson came into being in 1967. Campuses for Skidmore College in New York and the first phase of UT San Antonio (in association with Bartlett Cocke) are examples of the firm's work, as are scores of understated residences including that of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Steves in San Antonio.

"Generations of bright young architects were eager to work for the dynamic Ford. In fact, his best work was done in collaboration with talented young associates who practiced what he preached. And preach he did, tirelessly traveling the lecture circuit. He made himself the grand old man of Texas architecture, simultaneously its eternal naughty boy and its valuable conscience.

"Ford's work was nationally published. Among Ford's honors were his appointment by President Lyndon Johnson in 1968 to the National Council on the Arts; by David Rockefeller, Jr. in 1975 to the American Council for the Arts in Education; and in 1977 to the advisory panel for federal Foreign Buildings Operations. The first endowed chair in the School of Architecture at UT Austin was named for Ford.

"Until he died in 1982, O'Neil Ford was contentious and ebullient, and he never lost his childlike sense of wonder."

Scope and Content of the Collection

Papers, plans, photographic prints and negatives, slides, exhibit boards, drawings, and sketches reveal the life and career of O'Neil Ford (1905-1982), a prominent architect in the southwestern United States whose work also extended nationally and internationally. The collection demonstrates the origins and practice of Ford's dedication to native architectural forms and hand craftwork, historic preservation, innovative design, and his tireless advocacy of education, particularly in the arts.

Drawings (1886, 1920-1980, n.d.) in the collection were received from the firm Ford Powell & Carson and include all projects in which Ford was involved prior to the establishment of that firm in 1967. Two separate databases index this material: one for drawings received into the collection and another for pre-1967 projects whose drawings were not received by the Archive. Approximately 8275 sheets representing 480 projects were received by the Archive; those drawings not received represent 164 projects.

Fifty-four linear feet of papers and photographic material represent Ford's personal and professional life, including his service to several institutions of higher learning as professor of architecture and his active participation in organizations related to architecture, education, and the arts in general. Due to his involvement in these groups, the greatest bulk of material lies in his professional papers (1864-1888, 1933-1983, n.d.) which exist outside of his work for any architectural firm. Most prominent among the organizations are the National Council on the Arts, to which Ford was appointed for the term 1968-1974 by President Lyndon Johnson, and the National Endowment for the Arts, to whom the Council makes funding recommendations. Ford's other important governmental appointments represented here in much less detail include the U.S. Foreign Buildings Operations and General Services Administration. Well-documented is Ford's participation in professional architectural associations and historic preservation groups. Professional correspondence (1933-1982, n.d.) is extensive and demonstrates Ford's wide and varied professional relationships not only with architects but also with individuals in academia and in the organizations with which he was involved, with potential or established clients, and with members of the community who came to know Ford through his professional activities, architectural and otherwise. A large quantity of professional reference files (1864-1888, 1937-1982, n.d.) comprises clippings and other printed material gathered by Ford on architectural matters, including documents relating to the Youtz-Slick lift slab method of construction.

Among Ford's personal papers (1926-1928, 1940-1982, n.d.) are biographical documents including résumés and information regarding Ford's death, personal correspondence (1940-1982, n.d.) with family and friends, and papers and photographs relating to travel (1957-1981, n.d.) which Ford undertook for architectural research and personal pleasure. Approximately 7000 slides taken during travel remain as yet unprocessed.

Office records (1904, 1909, 1939-1982, n.d.) comprise records created and gathered by architectural firms of which Ford was a partner or principal. Included are administrative and financial records, correspondence, publicity clippings of completed projects, and reference materials.

Project records (1886, 1931-1982, n.d.) include files (1938-1982, n.d.) and photographs (1931-1975, n.d.) of projects undertaken by Ford during his architectural career operating in the offices of Ford and Swank (1938-1941), Ford and Rogers (1946-1953), O'Neil Ford and Associates (1953-1966), and Ford Powell & Carson (1967-1982). Documents in the files include correspondence, notes, sketches, and office records relating to the project. Several project lists (1977-1982) of Ford Powell & Carson are present, as well as specifications dating from the firm of Ford and Swank.

Papers (1930-1960, n.d.) created and gathered by Samuel B. Zisman (1908-1970), architect and friend of O'Neil Ford document Zisman's military, professional, and academic career. For other materials relating to Zisman, see also, Samuel B. Zisman: An Inventory of his Papers, 1937-1970, a separate collection of the Alexander Architectural Archive.

A small amount of material (1927-1978, n.d.) relating to Lynn Ford (1908-1978), brother of O'Neil Ford and craftsman mainly in wood and metal, includes personal and professional papers consisting largely of correspondence and records of work projects he undertook.

Unprocessed material, both personal and project related, in the O'Neil Ford collection includes papers, sketches, photographic material (including over 8,000 slides, most of which are partially processed), audiotape recordings, and objects ranging from awards and degrees to product samples and tools.

Series B: Professional Papers, 1864-1888, 1933-1983, not dated

Series Abstract

The Professional Papers series contains material created and gathered by Ford in the course of his life as a professional architect outside of his operation in any architectural firm or engagement in other design work. Professional relationships, service as an architectural authority, research interests, and recognition both within the profession and by the general media are documented here. Especially prominent are materials that reflect Ford's active and wide participation in groups dedicated to architectural and educational interests.

Series B1: Artwork & Drawings, 1965-1974, n.d.

Subseries Abstract

The Artwork and Drawings subseries contains Ford's work submitted to the McNay Art Show in 1965 and a pre-fab house drawing for David Williams (not by Ford.)

Series B2: Associations & Committees, 1939-1941, 1952-1983.

Subseries Abstract

The Associations and Committees subseries contains papers relating to Ford's activity in associations related to architecture, arts, and education, both regional and national. Included are professional architectural associations (i.e. American Institute of Architects, Texas Society of Architects), preservation/conservation organizations and committees (i.e. Texas State Historical Survey Committee, San Antonio Conservation Society), architectural committees at institutions of higher learning (i.e. Harvard, MIT, University of Texas), and government architectural committees (i.e. Federal Architecture Task Force, Foreign Buildings Operation). Of the arts, humanities, and education organizations, especially prominent are papers concerning Ford's involvement as a member of the National Council on the Arts/National Endowment for the Arts during 1968-1974. Folders appear alphabetically by group name and then are arranged chronologically within each group.

Subseries Abstract

The Drawings subseries entries are indexed by client name when known, otherwise by project name. Furthermore, similar projects are sorted in chronological order by date. Project names are supplied by the cataloger, as title blocks on the drawings prove to be inconsistent and many drawings are not labeled. Project names may also have been adjusted to accommodate alphabetical sorting. Dates are offered if they can be derived from the drawings or gathered from other authoritative sources. The term "drawing" includes both original works (such as pencil on trace paper, or ink on tracing cloth) as well as copies (such as sepia prints, blue line prints, etc.).

The Alexander Architectural Archive at the University of Texas at Austin is an architectural research center of national importance. As a unit of the University of Texas Libraries within the Architecture and Planning Library, the Archive supports research and education about the history of the built environment by acquiring and preserving research collections and by making them accessible. The Archive also supports learning opportunities and scholarly activities for students studying preservation of the cultural record and archival enterprise.

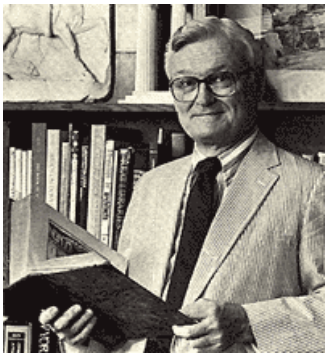
Origins



Blake Alexander started what has become known as the Alexander Architectural Archive in 1958, after he directed a team of student architects recording historic buildings in Pennsylvania for the Historic American Buildings Survey. Professor Alexander adapted the HABS format to his own course at UT, requiring students in his architectural history class to measure and draw historic Texas buildings as one of their assignments. Known as the Texas Architecture Archive, this rapidly expanding collection soon outgrew his office and was moved into a small storage room, otherwise known as "Alexander's closet."

In the mid-1960s, one of Professor Alexander's students arrived with large paper sacks filled with tattered, water-damaged drawings. As Professor Alexander examined them, it became apparent that they had in fact been through a flood - the great Galveston hurricane of 1900. These drawings, by the well-known Galveston architect Nicholas Clayton, had been given to the student by Clayton's granddaughter and became the first professional records to be deposited in his collection.

The Clayton drawings opened up the prospect of seeking original drawings of other important Texas architects whose records needed to be preserved. In 1979, the General Libraries (now the University of Texas Libraries) became the repository of the records, and it was moved to the Architecture and Planning Library and named "The Architectural Drawings Collection."

Other collections became available as word spread of this new resource. The family of Robert Ayres generously donated the records of the San Antonio firm of Ayres and Ayres. About the same time, Professor Alexander contacted a descendant of James Riely Gordon, one of the premier designers of Texas courthouses to obtain his vast collection of documents. Professor Alexander also helped secure the acquisition of the original design drawings for The University of Texas campus by Paul Philippe Cret.

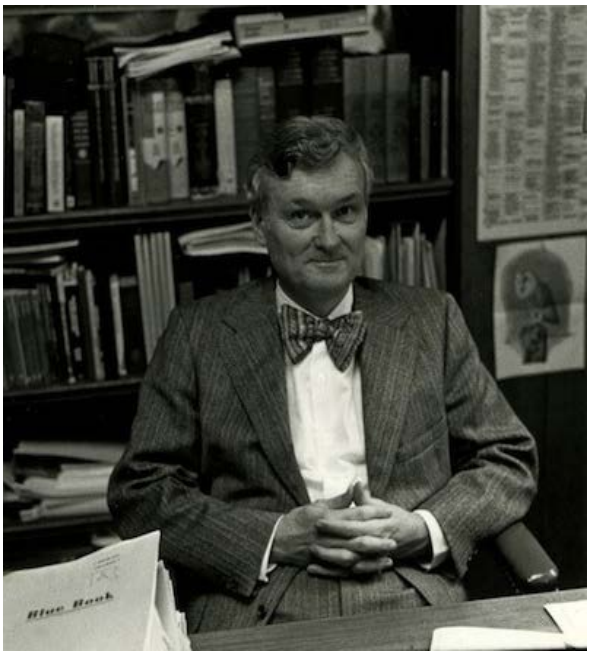
Today, the Alexander Architectural Archive is the largest such resource in Texas, representing thousands of projects in Texas as well as New York, Chicago, California, and Great Britain. Holdings include: over 280,000 drawings, 1,150 linear feet of papers, photographic material (56,000 prints, 22,700 negatives, 214,600 slides), models and ephemera. Professor Alexander was a pioneer in recognizing the importance of preserving architectural records. The resources he collected have played an important role in the restoration of many of Texas' most important buildings and continues to be essential for the study of American architectural history.

In 1997, the Texas Chapter of the Society of Architectural Historians sponsored a campaign to name this valuable archive after its founder. The University, in support, recognized that without Alexander's initiative, records of our architectural heritage would have perished from neglect. It is with great appreciation and celebration that the collection he founded is named the Alexander Architectural Archive.



Blake Alexander (February 4, 1924 – December 11, 2011)

Drury Blakeley Alexander was a champion for the education, documentation, and preservation of Texas' architectural heritage. He was also a pioneer in recognizing the importance of archiving architectural records. The Alexander Architectural Archive grew out of his personal collection and stewardship. The resources he collected continue to play an important role in the restoration of many of Texas' most important buildings and continues to support the education and scholarship of American architectural history.

The University of Texas Libraries and the School of Architecture celebrated Blake's long life and accomplishments in a memorial gathering held in the Battle Hall Reading Room of the Architecture & Planning Library on Saturday, April 28, 2012 from 3-5pm. Please consider offering your remembrance of Blake or view a recording of the service. For further inquiry please contact Nancy Sparrow at 512-495-4621.

Blake Alexander Architectural Library Endowment

Throughout his long career, Blake found great value in his Architecture & Planning Library. He once boasted that he personally knew each librarian in its history, from its early years as a departmental library until it joined the University of Texas Libraries system. The quality of the students' experience was also important to Blake. He used the library during his school days and naturally continued as faculty in teaching and his own research. He understood that the library and archive play an important role in supporting research and scholarship at the School of Architecture through its expertise, services and collections. He backed this with the donation of his personal library, archival collections, and faculty support. It was with great pride that he could continue his stewardship through the gift of an endowment.

"Blake Alexander lived a productive life as a scholar's scholar, and he left us with an enduring legacy," says University of Texas Libraries' director Dr. Fred Heath. "The Alexander endowment will permanently enrich a great library's contribution to teaching and learning on behalf of every student and faculty member it serves."

The Blake Alexander Architectural Library Endowment—funded with almost a million dollars— provides for acquisitions, collections support and technological improvements that directly impact the quality of students' experiences at the library and archives. Additionally, funds support professional development activities of the Architecture & Planning Library's head librarian.

The Alexander family asks that memorial contributions be made to the Alexander Architectural Archive or the Architecture & Planning Library. Please contact Beth Dodd at apl-aaa@lib.utexas.edu or donate online.

Scope and Research Support

The Alexander Architectural Archive is a repository of over 139 collections of material preserved to enrich and serve our architectural heritage. Holdings include any type of document involved in the management of a firm, the development of a design through the finished product, and the reflection of lives of architects, landscape architects, planners, designers, preservationists, historians, professors, and businesses in the industry. Emphasis is on the southwest region of the United States, however, we do have material from England, California, Chicago, and some Latin American countries.

The Alexander Architectural Archive supports instruction in the School of Architecture through the doctoral level in architectural design, history, preservation and community and regional planning; and the bachelor level in Interior Design. The Archive also supports research in history, art history, American Studies, anthropology, and engineering, as well as that undertaken by design professionals, governmental agencies, and others involved in the preservation and restoration of buildings. The Alexander Architectural Archive is available to all serious inquirees for research and scholarship.

Hours

The Alexander Architectural Archive is open for scholarly and professional research. In order to ensure the preservation of the materials as well as guarantee quality service, the Archive is accessed by appointment only. Appointments are taken Monday through Friday 9am-12pm and 1pm-4pm. Hours of operation are subject to change according to holiday and intersession schedules. Please call (512) 495-4621 to set up an appointment.

Collection Overview

Description The Jack Spicer Papers, 1939-1982, document Spicer's career as a poet in the San Francisco Bay Area. Included are writings, correspondence, teaching materials, school work, personal papers, and materials relating to the literary magazine J. Spicer's creative works constitute the bulk of the collection and include poetry, plays, essays, short stories, and a novel. Correspondence is also significant, and includes both outgoing and incoming letters to writers such as Robin Blaser, Harold and Dora Dull, Robert Duncan, Lewis Ellingham, Landis Everson, Fran Herndon, Graham Mackintosh, and John Allan Ryan, among others. Also included are writings by other Bay Area writers, including Blaser, Duncan, and a significant amount by Stephen Jonas.

Background John Lester Spicer was born on January 30, 1925, in Hollywood, California, where his parents managed a small hotel. He attended Hollywood and Fairfax High Schools from 1939 to 1943, then University of Redlands, California from 1943 to 1945.

Quantity:	5.0 linear ft. (10 boxes and digital objects)
Language:
Repository:	Woodson Research Center

Biographical/Historical note

The Chao Center for Asian Studies is a research institute attached to an undergraduate major at Rice University. The Center supports a model of Asian Studies that looks carefully and critically at the complex ways people in ‘Asia’ have been involved with one another and with the rest of the world, not only today, but also in the past. Toward these ends, they work closely with peer organizations in inter-Asia, indeed, in some cases with those whom they study, and in every case collaborating with scholars who pursue similar questions as they do.

The Chao Center for Asian Studies builds on the core initiatives outlined in Rice University President David Leebron’s “Vision for the Second Century.” These are: (1) visibly and substantially increasing our commitment to our research mission and raising our research and scholarship profile; (2) aggressively fostering collaborative relationships with other institutions to leverage our resources; (3) becoming an international university, with a more significant orientation toward Asia and Latin America than now characterizes our commitments.

(This information was excerpted from the Chao Center for Asian Studies website http://chaocenter.rice.edu/about-the-center.aspx on December 1, 2010.)

Scope and Contents note

This is a collection of oral history interviews conducted by the Chao Center for Asian Studies at Rice University. This collection includes audio recordings and transcripts of interviews with the following Asian Americans native to Houston: Edward Chen, Esther Quan, Gene L. Lee, Lewis Yee, Jane Gee, George Gee, Viola Chan, Wea Lee, Eugenie Chen, and Hannah Chow. The interviewees include one of the first Asian Americans elected to office in Harris County, a former rocket scientist and high school chemistry teacher, a founding member of the Chinese American Citizens Alliance, a World War II veteran, and the publisher of a Chinese newspaper in Texas and owner of the first Chinese printing company in Houston. Also included are several recording the KPFT "Echoes of China" radio program produced by Andy Lai, dating from 1980-1981. There are currently 116 English language audio interviews in the collection, mostly dating from 2010-2013, with expectation that more new interviews will be added annually.

There are a number of English-language audio interviews from 1980 which were a gift of Dr. Edward C.M. Chen who participated in many of those interviews.

Video interviews dating from 2011 and conducted by the Vietnamese American Heritage Foundation are also being added to the collection. These interviewees are Texas-based, and the interviews form part of the national 500 Oral Histories Project conducted by the Vietnamese Heritage Foundation. There are 88 of these online. Most are in Vietnamese, although some are in English. No transcripts exist at this time for the interviews but brief abstracts for each are being created to offer some initial insight into the interviews.

The bulk of the material relates to his career as an astronomical researcher and administrator at the Yerkes Observatory (University of Chicago), McDonald Observatory (University of Texas), and the Lunar Planetary Laboratory (University of Arizona). Items included in the collection are correspondence, publications, research material, newspaper clippings and photographs as well as Kuiper's personal experience as a member of the ALSOS Mission following World War II.
Collection Number:	MS 480
Repository:	University of Arizona Libraries, Special Collections University of Arizona PO Box 210055 Tucson, AZ 85721-0055 Phone: 520-621-6423 Fax: 520-621-9733 URL: http://www.library.arizona.edu/speccoll

Biographical Note

Gerard P. Kuiper was born in The Netherlands in the town of Harenkarspel on December 7, 1905. He entered Leiden University in 1924 and received his Bachelor of Science in 1927. Kuiper immediately continued his graduate studies and received his Ph.D. in Astronomy in 1933. While completing his advanced studies, he was an assistant observer at the Leiden Observatory, 1928-1933. From 1933-1935 he was a Kellogg Fellow under American astronomer Robert Grant Aiken at Lick Observatory, Mount Hamilton, California.

In 1935 he went to Harvard College Observatory, Cambridge, Massachusetts as a lecturer in Astronomy. There he met Sara Parker Fuller and they married on June 20, 1936. They had two children, Paul Hayes born in 1941 and Sylvia Lucy Ann born in 1947. In 1936 Gerard Kuiper accepted a job at Yerkes Observatory of the University of Chicago as an assistant professor of Practical Astronomy. In 1937 he became an American citizen and was appointed associate professor. In 1943 he became a full professor and in 1947 Kuiper became the director of the Yerkes and McDonald Observatories. In 1960 he resigned from Yerkes Observatory and relocated to the University of Arizona in Tucson. Some of his best known discoveries during his tenure at the University of Chicago are: the atmosphere of Saturn's moon Titan in 1944, the carbon dioxide atmosphere of Mars in 1948, Uranus's satellite Miranda in 1948, and Neptune's satellite Nereid in 1949.

In 1960 Kuiper established the Lunar and Planetary Laboratory (LPL), first as part of the Institute of Atmospheric Physics and later as a separate unit at the University of Arizona. In his years at LPL Kuiper established a group of telescopes in the Santa Catalina Mountains above Tucson; made balloon spectroscopic observations of the Earth's atmosphere; and conducted observatory site surveys in Hawaii, Mexico, and California. He was principal investigator on the NASA Ranger program, and as an experimenter on the Surveyor programs in the mid 1960s. Kuiper also served on numerous NASA Committees and Panels and briefed many high government officials on features of the space program. He died on a vacation trip in Mexico City on December 24, 1973

Gerard P. Kuiper is considered by many as the father of modern planetary science. In 1975 Kuiper was posthumously honored by NASA when the airborne infrared telescope was named the "Kuiper Airborne Observatory". He was honored again in 1984 with the establishment of the Kuiper Prize by the American Astronomical Society Division of Planetary Science, and in 1992 when the Kuiper Belt was named after him.

Scope and Content Note

Papers 1894-1992 (bulk 1949-1973): This collection consists of the personal and professional papers of Gerard Peter Kuiper. The bulk of the material consists of his correspondence with other noted astronomers and scientists. His research including his work with NASA on the Ranger, Apollo, Mariner, Surveyor, Viking, and Orbiter Projects during the late 1950s through the early 1970s. Other items in the collection are his administrative papers pertaining to the Lunar Planetary Laboratory, publications; newspaper clippings; and photographs.There is also detailed account of Kuiper's involvement as a member of the ALSOS mission in Germany in 1945 and the relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union following World War II.

Series XI: Trip Reports. 1958-1973

This series is arranged chronologically. The bulk of the trips are to the Soviet Union from 1958-1959, 1967-1970. These trips were taken by Dr. Kuiper and other American astronomers. There are reports of trips taken by Dr. Kuiper to Hamburg Germany 1964; Prague Czechoslovakia 1967; Hawaii 1970; Brighton, England 1970 Flagstaff, Arizona 1972; Mexico 1973.

As well as trips to Sydney, Australia and Torun, Poland taken by Tom Gehrels for Dr. Kuiper who was ill. There are also records of Russian scientists visiting Dr. Kuiper in the United States.

Series XII: World War II 1938-170.

This series is arranged chronologically. The series documents Dr. Kuiper's activities during World War II as a member of the ALSOS Mission. It contains reports, interviews, correspondence, articles and also an account of military, naval and air operations in the Netherlands.

The ALSOS Mission was part of the Manhattan Project, an effort during World War II by Great Britain and the United States to create an atomic bomb. The ALSOS Mission followed the Allied invasion of Italy in September 1943, to investigate the German nuclear energy project. The ALSOS Mission personnel followed close behind the front lines, and occasionally behind enemy lines, first in Italy, and later in France and Germany. ALSOS personnel managed to find and remove many of the German research effort's personnel, along with a substantial portion of the surviving records and equipment.

Creator: Evans, David C. (David Cannon), 1924-

Title: David C. Evans audio-visual collection

Dates: 1972-1987 (inclusive)

Quantity: 5 VHS videocassettes, 3 audiocassettes

Collection Number: A0159

Summary: The David C. Evans audio-visual collection (1972-1987) consists of films and audio relating to Evans & Sutherland, a computer graphics company founded in Salt Lake City by David Evans and Ivan Sutherland. The films demonstrate computer modeling and animation made from the Picture System 1 and 2 including 3D microorganism models for scientists, flight simulators for pilot training, space simulations for NASA, and more.

Biographical Note +/-

David Cannon Evans was born February 24, 1924, in Salt Lake City, Utah. He is the son of David W. and Beatrice C. Evans. His father was the founder and president of David W. Evans, Inc., an advertising firm. He married Joy Frewin in 1947, and is the father of seven children.

Evans attended the University of Utah, receiving his Bachelor of Science in Physics in 1949 and his Doctorate in Physics in 1953. After completing his education, he was employed by the Bendix Corp. as Senior Physicist in the Computer Division. In 1955, he was promoted to Director of Engineering of the Computer Division. This position gave him responsibility for research, development, and product design of commercial computing systems and special purpose information processing systems for military and industrial applications. Two of the most noteworthy projects he directed while at Bendix were the innovative G-20 computing system and the G-15 computer, the first inexpensive general purpose computer to be mass produced.

In 1962, Evans joined the faculty of the Department of Electrical Engineering at the University of Utah. He later was named the University's first Director of Computer Science in 1965, becoming the main force in the founding of the Computer Science Department. During his years at the University of Utah, Evans pioneered time-shared computing systems, as well as real-time continuous-tone computer graphics. Other research activities included the hidden-line problem, syntax-directed computers, constraint processor declarative languages, and memory systems. Evans left his full-time position at the University in 1966, but continued his involvement with the institution as an Adjunct Professor. In 1967, he served on the University of Utah Academic Policy Committee.

During the same years he was employed by the University of Utah, Evans was also a Professor of Electrical Engineering and the Associate Director of the Computer Center at the University of California at Berkeley. During this time, he was the principal investigator of a project sponsored by the Advanced Research Projects Agency (United States Department of Defense) aimed at improving computer-aided problem solving capabilities.

Along with Ivan Sutherland, Evans founded Evans & Sutherland Computer Corporation in 1968, serving as President and/or Chief Executive Officer until his retirement.

Throughout his life, Evans was involved in numerous professional organizations. These included the American Federation of Information Processing Societies, the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers, the National Academy of Engineering, the National Academy of Science, the American Electronics Association, the Utah Engineers

Council, the Association for Computing Machinery, the National Research Council's Committee on Computer-Aided Manufacturing, the Committee for Computer Science in Electrical Engineering, and various university advisory committees, among others. In addition, he was also involved in community service, participating in directorial capacities for Westminster College and Holy Cross Hospital. He was also Vice Chair of the State of Utah Steering Committee for Systems Planning and Computing, and was involved with the Boy Scouts of America throughout his life.

Evans & Sutherland Computer Corporation was founded by David Evans and Ivan Sutherland in 1968. The first offices for the company were in a building on the University of Utah campus. Eventually, the company found a permanent home in the University of Utah Research Park, where it grew to a company occupying four buildings and employing 830 people, with sales of 60 million, by 1982. Before going public, the company was a privately held company backed by a group of eastern investment groups. These included Venrock, the Venture Capital Investment Co. of the Rockefeller family, the Endowment Management and Research Corp., GCA Corp., and Hambrecht & Quist investment bankers.

The company was one of the first developers of interactive graphics. The first product produced by the company was the Line Drawing System, a high-speed interactive graphics display system patterned after a prototype based on research done by Dr. Sutherland at Harvard University. The application of the Line Drawing System to flight simulation followed its introduction.

Along with advanced versions of the Line Drawing System, other computer graphics systems have been developed by the company. Novoview was a family of computer image generators which produce visual scenes for use in pilot training simulation. This product was the outcome of Evans & Sutherland's collaboration with Redifon/Rediffusion, a European company specializing in computer simulation. The Picture System product line was a three-dimensional graphics system which yielded smooth motion computations for rotation, translation, clipping, scaling and zoom display requirements. Other products, including Digistar, a system which adapted computer graphics for projection displays in planetariums, have also been developed by the company.

In addition to its collaboration with Redifon/Rediffusion, Evans & Sutherland purchased or invested in other companies to enhance their product line. These include Shape Data, VLSI Technologies, Inc., Mosaic Systems, and Unicad. Major customers included many commercial airlines, Volkswagen, General Motors, McDonnell Douglas, the United States Department of Defense, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Boeing, General Dynamics, General Electric, International Business Machines, and Northrup.

Content Description

The David C. Evans audio-visual collection (1972-1987) consists of films and audio relating to Evans & Sutherland, a computer graphics company founded in Salt Lake City by David Evans and Ivan Sutherland. The films demonstrate computer modeling and animation made from the Picture System 1 and 2 including 3D microorganism models for scientists, flight simulators for pilot training, space simulations for NASA, and more. The audio recordings describe the history of the Evans & Sutherland company. All materials have been digitized and are available to access on CD or DVD.

Detailed Description of the Collection

History of Evans & Sutherland part 1, 1977 June 17

David Evans recounts the history of Evans & Sutherland, the computer firm he started with Co-founder Ivan Sutherland that became a pioneer in computer-generated imagery. Evans speaks with humor and provides a detailed account of his quest to make computer programs that ordinary people can use.

Container(s)	Description	Dates
Cassette 3 Video
F001	Voyager 2 encounters Jupiter, computer simulation, NASA/JPL A three minute, narrated computer simulation of the upcoming Voyager 2 Jupiter encounter scheduled for July 1979. Detailed computer models of Jupiter, its moons, and the Voyager 2 satellite are shown while the narrator explains what will occur during the encounter. By James F Blinn, Charles E Kohlhase.	1979
F002	Voyager I encounter film, computer animation, Jet Propulsion Lab and Pioneer 11 encounters Saturn, computer simulation, NASA Short, silent computer simulations of the Voyager 1 and Pioneer 11 encounters in space. Detailed computer models of planets including Saturn and satellites are animated to create the impression of flying through space. By James F Blinn, Bill Blume, Robert E Holzman, Julian E Gomez, Peter H Blinn.	1979
F003	Halftone animation, University of Utah A silent film that displays several early computer animated models created at the University of Utah. The film first shows a computer-animated hand along with the steps taken to create it. Next there are shots of a computer-animated artificial heart valve and human faces (including smoosh shaded faces using cosine interpolation and two faces using linear interpolation). By Ed Catmull and Fred Parke, 3D titles by Bob Ingebretsen.	1972
F004	Case Western University film A silent film that shows a man using the Evans & Sutherland hidden-surface processor to create "real-time pictures" at Case Western University. Operating two pens wired into the computer, he manipulates a ship model created with basic geometric shapes.	undated
F005	SST vs. Capitol, an example of computer halftone animation This silent film demonstrates "computer halftone" with a computer animated short of an airplane crashing into the capitol building. Made by Barry Wessler.	1972
F006	Early computer animations	undated

	Computer animations are shown that include blocky human models playing football and walking, the state of Utah being lifted out of a 3D map of the U.S., and an aircraft carrier landing.
F101	A demonstration of H01, Evans & Sutherland Computer Corporation In this silent film, a man demonstrates how to use an Evans & Sutherland computer graphics system. Controls involve a wired pen and tablet and a joystick. Simple shapes are drawn and the text and graphics are repositioned on the screen. Made at Princeton University Department of Chemistry.	undated
F102	The Evans & Sutherland Picture System, Evans and Sutherland This narrated film demonstrates what the Picture System computer graphics program can do. A man shows how to use the pen and tablet to navigate the program and build 3D wire mesh models. Credits: Vertebra – University of Colorado, Turbine Blade – Pratt & Whitney Aircraft, Highway – State of Utah, Aircraft Maneuvering Range – Cubic Corporation. Produced by John Whitney Jr. and Gary Demos.	1975
F103	Wire mesh woman A silent film that shows a wire mesh model of a woman being pieced together and walking.	undated
F104	Cubes and pyramids computer game his silent film shows a Computer game in which cubes and pyramids picked up by a claw machine are stacked on top of and inside each other. A conversation with commands and responses is typed out on screen.	undated

F105	High altitude resonance graph and models This film from Evans & Sutherland demonstrates a computer graphics program with an animated graph labeled "high altitude resonance" and 3D wireframe shapes that are manipulated and rotated.	undated
F106	A computer graphics demonstration, Ecstall Mining Limited This silent film was made for Ecstall Mining Limited by Professor W. Todd Wipke and Mr. P Friedland of the Chemistry Department of Princeton University. It shows a series of Programs designed to expose the potential of computer graphics as a mine engineering tool. The programs were written by Dr. J. Warnock of Computer Sciences Corporation, Prof Wipke and Mr. Friedland.	undated
F107	An atomic d-orbital This narrated film illustrates how faculty members at the University of California have been using computer animation to aid chemistry research. Several aspects of their work are shown and described in technical detail. Topics include Teddy Trailer's wave function modeling, Kent Wilson's quasi-diatomic model for photo association dynamic, Robert Bowl and Tom DeGennaro's post NMR modified spinicular studies, and Nguyen Sang's study relation of structure and electrophysiological function in neural networks.	undated

F108	Tomato bushy stunt virus, The National Resource for Computation in Chemistry (NRCC) A film sequence programmed by Arthur J. Olson that shows rotating scientific 3D models such as the tomato bushy stunt virus, a cubic crystal, icosahedral geometry, viral protein subunits, and more. Credits: Data used in the film are the result of a collective effort spanning over 10 years in the lab of Professor Stephen C. Harrison, Harvard University. Researchers on the Tomato Bushy Stunt Virus structure: S.C. Harrison, A. Jack, C.E. Schnutt, F.K. Winkler, G. Bricogne, A.J. Olson, I.K. Robinson. Dot surfaces were generated by Michael Connolly's program, Molecular dynamics of C subunit arms calculated by David Ceperley's program called CLAMPS.	undated
F109	New developments in day/night CGI, recorded from Lufthansa Image Generator, Evans & Sutherland, Redifon, American Airlines A first person computerized simulation of an airplane takeoff and flight above farmlands and cities. Models are simple but textured.	undated
F110	Abase graphics terminal Shows revolving wireframe models of graphs, directional arrows, simple shapes, and numbers. Prepared by: the Computer Graphics Group, the Applied Research Laboratory, the Pennsylvania State University.	undated

F111	Molecular dynamics of Bovine Pancreatic Trypsin Inhibitor Silent film shows an animated 3D model of a Bovine Pancreatic Trypsin Inhibitor from the front, back, and sides. Credits: Molecular Calculations by Michael Levitt, Salk Institute of San Diego, California and Weizmann Institute of Science Rehovot, Israel. Crystallographic structure by Robert Huber, Johann Deisenhofer, Wolfgang Steigemann. Max Planck Institut fuer Biochemie Martinsreid, Germany. Filming by Richard J. Feldmann, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland. Hidden surface algorithm by Thomas K Porter, Title program by Charles R. T. Bacon, National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland.	undated
F112	Yisplan – an interactive graphics visual scheduling and planning tool This film demonstrates a program that monitors and adjusts bus routes interactively. Its purpose was to develop user-oriented bus schedules, improve scheduler's productivity, and reduce wait time at major transfer points. In the film, the program displays bus routes and times, a list of commands to type, and a map titled "Utah Transit Authority" with moving markers that indicate buses traveling along their routes.	undated
F113	Evans & Sutherland Picture System 2 Demonstrations A simple demonstration program filmed on an Evans and Sutherland Picture System 2 to illustrate the potential application of high performance computer graphics. There are two short demos that show a grid of squares gradually darkening and several wireframe geometric shapes revolving.	undated

F114	Space and shapes demonstration The computer program displays a scene of flying through space with stars and constellations. Next various shapes made up of jagged lines are manipulated. They revolve, move, and appear to draw themselves.	undated
F115	Chicago Film shows wireframe models of buildings in a computer generated Chicago city. The camera flies through the city, exploring it from various heights and angles.	undated
F116	Carrier landing simulation, produced for the Department of the Navy Exhibits a computer program that simulates landing a plane on an aircraft carrier. Includes a version that displays simultaneous views through left and front windows. Also shows live action, black and white footage of the computer system and a man controlling the program with a tablet and stylus. Credits: Equipment used in simulation is an Evans & Sutherland LDS-1 graphic display system connected to a PDP-10 computer manufactured by Digital Equipment Corporation. Programming Dan Cohen and Frank S. Greatorex, Jr., Photography by Red Lunde.	undated
F117	Automatic landings in low visibility at night and approaches and landings in low visibility by day Live action, first person views of a plane landing at night and during the day under various conditions. This film is narrated. Photography by R.A.E. Bedford Flights Photographic group, produced by the Blind Landing Experimental Units.	undated
F119	Man using aircraft carrier flight simulator This film shows a man operating an early flight simulation computer program with a joystick and keypad. Scenes were generated on an Evans & Sutherland Picture System 2 graphics display with software developed by Martin Pensak and Thomas Ferrin. Robert Langridge, principle investigator.	undated

F120	Describing three-dimensional objects for computer display This narrated, educational film illustrates a method for creating computerized objects using polygons and coordinate points. Their 3D data input system uses two data pens to measure points on drawings of objects. Typewriter printing assists the user by recording the sequence of points. The film demonstrates creating a ship. Unfortunately, the film is cut off before finishing. By Picture Design Group for Evans & Sutherland Computer Corp.	undated
F121	Examples of current computer graphics technology A collaboration of short computer graphic works that demonstrate current technology from researchers at the University of Utah and Brigham Young University.	undated

	Highlights include Ed Catmull's animated hand, carrier plane landing and takeoff simulations, and transfigurations of 3D shapes. Contents in Detail - Line Drawing: Carrier approach and landing, Creation of a Specific Complex Form (Jim Clarke), Solid Forms in Motion: Shading & Texture (Fred Parke) – human face models, Solid Forms in Motion: Shading & Texture (Ed Catmull) – hand model, Shading Techniques for Theoretical Models: Phong's Shading (Transparency), Dynamic Representation of Complex DATA (Henry Christiansen), Dynamic Representation of Complex DATA (Henry Christiansen). Contributors from the University of Utah (Ed Catmull, Jim Clarke, Fred Parke, Frank Crow, Phong Bui Tuong) and Brigham Young University (Henry Christiansen.) Equipment from Evans & Sutherland Computer Corp., Salt Lake City, Utah.
F202	Evans & Sutherland 3D models	undated
	Two 3D models, one rectangular and one thimble shaped, are shown with some animation. There is text, but it is difficult to read.
F203	Cartos, visualizing nerves in three dimensions	undated
	A narrated educational film about Cartos, Columbia University's new technique that simplifies the production of 3D neuronal structures. The film includes live interviews, demonstrations of the production process, and revolving computer images. Credits: Produced by NIH Division of Research Resources and its Research Resources Information Center, in affiliation with Cineworks, INC. Directed by Larry Engel, written by Irwin Sobel, Gregory Freiher, Larry Engel; Narrator Robb webb. Music by Rusty Cloud, Jim Clouse. Computer Graphics Photography by Irwin Sobel, Nicholas Necles, Bert Fichman. Color Vector Display Stan Kiger, Evans & Sutherland Corp., Salt Lake City, Utah. Laser film scanner built by Alman Associates, Stamford, Conn. Camera Operator Yuet-Fong Ho. Assistant Cameraman Richard Crudo. Sound Recordist Li-Shin Yu. Gaffer Stand Davis. Editor Larry Engel. Assistant Editors Richard Crudo, Stan Davis. Re-recordist Rick Dior. Titles Christos Tountas, Irwin Sobel, Isaac Kerlow. Special thanks to Lee Buck, Noel Kropf, Stephen Senft, Nicholas Necles, Euardo Macagno, Irwin Sobel.
F204	NormalmModes of vibration of a sonar projector transducer element	undated
	This narrated film is about a computer simulation of a sonar projector transducer. The film presents a sequence of computer-generated images that describe a mathematical model used to predict the normal modes of vibration. Credits: Produced by Computer Science Division, University of Utah and Naval Ships System Command. Finite element analysis by Larry Gwin of Standford University. Computer animation by Hank Chistiansen, Professor of civil engineering at BYU and research associate at University of Utah. Technical Assistance Bruce Brown. Film processing by Mike Milochik and Sy Felt.

F205	Interactive molecular graphics	undated

Demonstrates colorful molecule models that move and rotate. Molecules include Carboxypeptidase, Trypsin, and Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA). Credits: By Thomas Ferrin and Robert Langridge, University of California, San Francisco. Scenes in this film were generated on an Evans & Sutherland Picture System 2 graphics display using a calligraphic shadow mask color monitor. Graphics made at the UCSF Computer Graphics Laboratory.

F206 Applications of the LDS system undated

A collection of silent short films presented by Evans & Sutherland to demonstrate the Picture System computer graphics program. Includes Splashdown, 2D and 3D printed circuit boards (shows how the LDS-1 can be used in printed circuit board design), Aircraft Carrier Landing (simulates a plane landing, produced for the Naval Training Device Center), Piping Diagram (shows model of the piping layout of an oil refinery), Road (very coarse simulation of the view from a car driving down a road), and black and white footage of an operator working at the CRT using a pen and tablet.

F207 Evans & Sutherland demonstrations undated

Another demonstration of the Picture System computer graphics program. This film displays wiremesh models of Kitsault Mine, jets flying in formation, planes with propellars, and a car. Also shows the interface for manipulating models.

F208 Evans & Sutherland demonstrations 2 undated

Includes clips of various computer projects with title cards such as an oil well, Kitshault Mine (red, various angles), "Battle" (shooting airplanes flying over a mesh landscape), "Surface," Shooting Star Productions logo animations, and live action footage of a man describing the Picture System (silent).

Collection Overview

Description This collection documents Dr. Fred Elmadjian's career as a research scientist and science administrator. His scientific work centered mostly on the endocrinology of stress. His administrative services at the National Institute of Mental Health focused on developing manpower for effective research into mental health and behavior. Elmadjian first envisioned, then enabled establishment across the country of interdisciplinary training programs which emphasized both the biological and the psychological knowledge needed for such research. The papers also contain transcripts of 16 audiotapes recorded after his retirement, which provide a rich personal account of his background, education, work, and especially his beliefs about the proper approach for a study of human behavior.

Background Fred Elmadjian, Ph.D. had two careers during his lifetime. First, as a researcher he focused primarily on neuroendocrine mechanisms and adaptive processes in stressful environments - in psychiatric patients, athletes, combat troops, chimpanzees being prepared for early space flights, etc. His numerous publications and reports, and the expressed gratitude of young protégés whom he mentored document the success of this professional phase. Then, after twenty years he switched to government service. The National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) first asked Dr. Elmadjian to develop programs that would train people for basic science research relevant to mental health, and train professional mental health personnel in the research methodology of the biological sciences. For the next twelve years, mainly as Chief, Biological Sciences Section, Behavioral Sciences Training Branch, he helped to envision and to enable the establishment of new interdisciplinary training programs across the country. Then Dr. Ellmadjian was promoted to increasingly broader policy-making positions in the Division of Manpower and Training Programs, but he continued to focus on the appropriate training of professionals to further

Consultation Appointments

Current UCLA students, faculty, and staff can meet with librarians for in-depth consultations and personalized instruction on research topics, database mechanics, useful resources, and other subjects. To schedule an appointment or for more information, submit the form below.

Circulation

For questions about books you have checked out, recalled items, library bills, and items from the Southern Regional Library Facility, call the circulation desk at 310.825.4904 and press option 2.

Course Reserves

Instructors who wish to place materials on course reserve can contact Juan Jaime by calling 310.825.4055 or by email.

Interlibrary Loan and Document Delivery

For information about interlibrary loan and document delivery requests, call 310.825.4055 Monday through Friday between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Reference and Instruction

For reference questions, call 310.825.4904 option 3 during hours that the reference desk is staffed. During hours that the desk is not staffed, use the form below or email biomed-ref@library.ucla.edu.

Recommend a Purchase

Recommendations for purchases of books or subscriptions to print or electronic journals can be submitted through an online form.

By: Mary O. Murphy and Laura Peimer, with assistance from Camille Owens, Madalyn Durgin, Adrian Gonzalez, Daily Guerrero, Jeanne Mack, Catie Ressijac, and Sandy Uwimana.

Acquisition Information:

Accession numbers: 2008-M69, 2008-M91, 2008-M139, 2008-M145, 2008-M158
The papers of Shere Hite were acquired by the Schlesinger Library from Shere Hite in 2008.

Access Restrictions:

Access. Researchers must sign a special permission form to use the collection. In addition, access to post-1990 correspondence (including all of Series I, Subseries B; Series II; and other folders as noted) requires the written permission of Shere Hite, a restriction that expires upon her death. Folders containing personal information, including medical and financial information, are closed until January 1, 2043. Additional papers where access would constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy for third party individuals are closed for a period of 80 years from the most recent document in the folder. Researchers wishing to use redacted digital copies of the sexuality questionnaires (Series III) or digitized clippings and articles (Series V) must make an appointment with Research Services. An appointment is necessary to use any audiovisual material.

Use Restrictions:

Copyright. Copyright in the unpublished papers created by Shere Hite is held by the President and Fellows of Harvard College for the Schlesinger Library. Copyright in the published works created by Shere Hite is held by Shere Hite. Copyright in other papers in the collection may be held by their authors, or the authors' heirs or assigns.
Copying. Unrestricted for personal use for all papers to which access is open upon signing of the special permission form. Open materials may not be reproduced on the Internet without the permission of the Schlesinger Library. Permission obtained from Shere Hite for access to post-1990 correspondence includes permission to copy.

BIOGRAPHY

American-born German author, sex educator, and feminist, Shere Hite was born Shirley Diana Gregory in Saint Joseph, Missouri, to Paul Gregory and Shirley Hurt Gregory on November 2, 1942. Shirley Gregory was 16 years old when Hite was born, and divorced her husband and later remarried. Hite was adopted by her stepfather, Raymond Hite, though she was raised by her grandparents and then by her mother's sister.

After graduating from Seabreeze High School in Daytona Beach, Florida, in 1960, Hite earned degrees in history (BA, 1963 and MA, 1966) from the University of Florida, Gainesville. From 1969 to 1972 she worked towards a PhD in history at Columbia University (New York City). She would complete her doctorate in international relations with a specialty in gender politics at Nihon University (Tokyo, Japan) in 1996.

Early in her career, Hite worked as a model and posed nude for Playboy magazine. In the 1970s, she became active in feminist circles and began her groundbreaking research relating to women's sexuality. From 1972 to 1982, she directed the feminist sexuality project for the National Organization for Women, New York Chapter, and in 1976 published The Hite Report: A Nationwide Study of Female Sexuality, which was based upon anonymous responses to questionnaires in which women detailed their sexual experiences. This was followed by other works based on responses to questionnaires, including The Hite Report on Male Sexuality (1981), The Hite Report on the Family: Growing Up under Patriarchy (1994), and The Hite Report on Women Loving Women (2007), among others.

In 1976, Newsweek magazine named Hite one of the "most outstanding people of the year," and the World Almanac named her one of "America's 25 most influential women" in 1978.

By the early 1990s, she began writing regular opinion pieces and articles for various newspapers and magazines and traveling internationally as a lecturer and consultant. Starting in the late 1990s, Hite founded the Hite Research Foundation, part of Hite Research International, to increase and advance the visibility and potential of women around the world. Related companies and projects included Hite Research Enterprises, which was designed to provide counseling and networking services among women's rights activist groups. Also during this time she began teaching at Nihon University, Chongqing University (China), and Maimonides University (Florida).

Hite married the classical pianist Friedrich Höricke in 1985 and moved to Europe in 1989. Due to ongoing criticism of her research and methodology, Hite renounced her United States citizenship in 1995 and became a German citizen. She divorced in 1999 and subsequently married Paul Sullivan. In 2012, she was living in London.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The majority of the Shere Hite papers contain materials relating to her professional career as a researcher and writer on sexuality, a commentator on cultural norms and current events, and as a public figure. The papers include biographical material; correspondence; public response letters to her work; completed questionnaires for the Hite Reports; drafts of her writings; project files; clippings; notes; photographs; memorabilia; and electronic records.

The collection, originally in storage facilities in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and Paris, France, lacked any recognizable original order; the 180 linear feet of papers were in a state of extreme disarray, and many items were found loose. Fourteen archivists at the Schlesinger Library roughly sorted the material into broad categories: audiovisual materials; addresses; published articles by and about; biographical; conferences; correspondence; drafts; engagements; fan mail; financial and legal; international; memorabilia; notes and scraps; photographs; posters; publicity; publishers; questionnaires; speeches; and television and film ideas. Two processing archivists then worked as a team, completing further rounds of sorting with help from student assistants. The archivists focused their efforts on limiting extensive cases of overlap and filing inconsistencies. However, due to the nature of the documentation, some overlap within and among series remains. More detailed information regarding the location of specific types of material can be found in the series descriptions below. Researchers are encouraged to use the browser's search feature to locate materials by topic, title, or genre.

Many folders in this collection contain undated materials, and may include random notes on scraps of paper, post-its, napkins, empty match books, and other objects, often folded, taped, and/or stapled together. Such materials have been left in their original condition; preservation photocopying was not attempted. There were some folders or packets of papers with original headings by Hite. Where possible, these original folder titles have been maintained and appear in quotation marks; remaining titles were created by the processors. To maintain any possible context, Hite's original folders have been kept intact, even when multiple folders with the same headings have overlapping dates. Additional material received as electronic files will be reformatted at some future date for inclusion in this collection.

Series I, BIOGRAPHICAL, PERSONAL, AND LEGAL, ca.1940-2007 (#1.1-22.12, 261F+B.1-261F+B.6), contains correspondence, notes, printed materials, and uncatalogued photographs relating to Hite's personal life and legal activities. Of note are drafts of Hite's autobiographical writings and correspondence relating to her lawsuits for libel and defamation.

WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO SUBSERIES B.

Subseries A, Biographical and personal, ca.1940-2007 (#1.1-17.4, 261F+B.1-261F+B.6), includes writings, correspondence, notes, and uncatalogued photographs. Autobiographical and personal writings include photocopies of Hite's early journals, as well as drafts of parts of her autobiography under various titles. This subseries includes her research into graduate school programs as well as samples of papers and school work and transcripts of interviews, many of which were published. Included is correspondence with friends and/or relatives in Florida and St. Joseph, Missouri, including letters from her mother, grandfather, and her Aunt Cile. Correspondence of an extremely personal nature is closed as noted. Folders (#17.1-17.4) contain information on maintenance and sale of the family property. Hite was also the head of the co-op board for her Manhattan home at 2 East 64th Street, and saved numerous files that include shareholder information; board of directors meeting minutes; and correspondence and notes regarding building improvements, building personnel, and sublets. There are also budgets and other financial information, sales documents, and real estate agreements. Mortage-related information can be found in both financial and real estate folders. Financial materials also include bank account and credit card statements, invoices, bank loan documents, tax forms, and investment information, and are closed until January 1, 2043. For additional financial information, including information regarding royalties, contracts, and payments for articles, see Series II. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

Subseries B, Legal, 1974-2005 (#17.5-22.12), includes correspondence with lawyers regarding specific legal complaints and cases, individuals involved in these cases, and law firms regarding billings, as well as Hite's inquiries into potential lawsuits. Of note are correspondence with lawyers regarding protection of the Hite trademark against unauthorized use, including by a Korean beer company that produced Hite beer. This subseries also contains materials relating to Hite's contract and royalties dispute with Macmillan Publishing Company, publishers of The Hite Report: A Nationwide Study of Female Sexuality; and her complaints against the use of photographs of her in publications here and abroad without her consent. As a tenant at 249 Central Park West, Manhattan, Hite organized and led the other renters in a case against the landlord for neglect of the building, also documented here. Files are arranged alphabetically.

WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO THIS SUBSERIES.

Series II, CORRESPONDENCE, SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS, AND RELATED, 1970-2006 (#23.1-115.14, 261F+B.7, OD.1-OD.2, SD.1), contains materials relating to Hite's professional activities, writings, and special projects in the United States and abroad. There is significant overlap and some possible duplication among each subseries, particularly Subseries A, B, and C (e.g., publicity and agent correspondence, which closely relate to Hite's published works, can be found within all three subseries). Also, there is overlap of information among folders within each subseries (e.g., royalty information for a particular publisher may be found within folders titled "royalties," or by the publisher name).

WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO THIS SERIES.

Subseries A, General correspondence, 1970-2006 (#23.1-56.4), contains correspondence and related materials found together, including extensive notes; printed materials; publicity information; writings and draft articles; schedules; contacts and business cards; thank you and holiday cards; postcards; invitations; clippings; and uncataloged photographs. Correspondents include media outlets, public relation firms and publicists, professional organizations, colleagues and friends, business acquaintances, scholars, fans, and agents. Although correspondence is found throughout this series, general files titled "correspondence" are made up of correspondence and related materials found loose and then grouped together and arranged by year. Correspondence documents general information regarding the Hite reports, including methodology and distribution of questionnaires; professional reactions to and impressions of her work; events or conferences she may have attended; publicity, including reviews, interviews, speaking engagements, and advertisements for her work; Hite's articles, series, or columns for various publications in the United States and abroad; new book ideas; financial information relating to agents or article writing; her life abroad; promoting and translating books in Europe; others' related research projects; requests for autographs by fans; inquiries from the public regarding counseling services through the Hite Research Foundation; and the development of the Hite Research Foundation and related administrative issues. Files titled by country name (e.g., "Japan") include everything from publicity and publisher correspondence to general information and notes regarding travel and living arrangements. "Japan" folders (#49.7-51.5) also contain information about her adjunct professorship at Nihon University. Although some draft writings are included here with correspondence, the majority are in Series IV. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO THIS SUBSERIES.

Subseries B, Publishers, 1971-2005 (#56.5-75.10), includes correspondence; contracts and domestic and foreign publishing rights agreements; financial information and royalties; draft writings; book outlines; notes; clippings; publisher catalogs listing Hite's books; and sample book covers. Topics include book project ideas and book promotion; articles series; details regarding publishing works; requests for foreign rights; book cover designs, layout, and development; and publicity events, including readings; and some legal issues regarding contracts. A number of folders also contain correspondence with agents, editors, and lawyers. See Subseries A for additional material regarding publication. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO THIS SUBSERIES.

Subseries C, Publicity, ca.1975-2005 (#75.11-95.8, SD.1), contains publicity materials created by Hite, as well as by her publishers. Included are drafts or copies of public relations materials, including fact sheets, press releases, copies of articles or reviews, and materials consolidated in press kits. In addition, there are clippings scrapbooks; publicity tour schedules; press conference materials; draft writings; promotional brainstorming materials; event information; special projects; interviews; lists of contacts; and extensive notes. Many files contain correspondence with agents, publishers, and the media regarding interviews and other publicity-related issues. General publicity and general correspondence files may contain similar materials to the contents in folders listed by book title, as well as general public relations materials. For additional publicity information, see Subseries A, especially correspondence and files by country name, and Subseries B. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO THIS SUBSERIES.

Subseries D, Conferences and speaking engagements, 1976-2006 (#95.9-104.12, 261F+B.7, OD.1-OD.2), includes materials regarding Hite's participation as a speaker, organizer, or participant in national and international conferences, meetings, lecture series, workshops, symposia, etc. Materials include correspondence; speech transcripts; drafts; notes; proposals and abstracts; contracts with venues, lecture agencies and speakers bureaus; publicity materials; agendas; and conference programs. Also included are research materials, correspondence regarding professional organizations; potential panels and presentations; notes; clippings; articles; writings; panel outlines; and printed materials. There is extensive correspondence regarding coordination for conference panels and suggested panelists, as well as letters regarding rejected proposals. International PEN Congress documents (#100.12) contain information relating to Hite hosting a pre-congress party. The symposium on masculinity was co-organized by Hite and various publishing companies; it is unclear whether the symposium took place. Material (#103.6-103.10) includes letters to successful public figures, including businessmen and celebrities. The American Historical Association conference materials (#96.11-97.10) include information regarding the publication of panel papers. Documentation of multiple conferences or organizations is sometimes grouped in one folder, as originally received. Some general conference folders may include materials relating to conferences also listed by organization. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO THIS SUBSERIES.

Subseries E, Response letters, 1972-2005 (#104.13-115.14), contains letters requesting questionnaires; asking to be included in one of Hite's studies; sharing personal stories; or asking questions in response to Hite's published columns or articles. Most of the respondents had either read her works, seen Hite on television, read about her, or heard her being interviewed. Some responses are very detailed and include extensive documentation. Because of the extremely personal nature of these materials, the letters in this subseries are closed for 80 years from the most recent date in the folder. The subseries is arranged chronologically.

Series III, QUESTIONNAIRES AND RELATED RESEARCH, ca.1972-2005 (#203.1-260.9, 217F+B.1-217F+B.2, 218F+B.1-218F+B.2), contains blank and completed questionnaires, data charts, notes, quotes, and related material for Hite's research, and demonstrate her method of analysis. For drafts of the reports, see Series IV.

Beginning in the early 1970s, Shere Hite developed an extensive survey that included numerous open-ended questions about what women felt, what they liked, and what they thought about sex; the questionnaires were printed on the National Organization for Women, New York Chapter (NOW-NYC) letterhead and distributed with the help of the chapter. To examine her hypothesis that a "woman's place in sex mirrors a woman's place in the rest of society," Hite designed her questionnaires to be answered anonymously. She published the answers in the respondents' own words. Her intention was for women to see their own and other women's personal lives more clearly, thus expanding their views of sexuality, and strengthening their identities as women.

Hite describes her methodology in the introduction of the first Hite Report (1976): "The questionnaire and three different versions were distributed to women all over the country since 1972. Great effort was put in the mailing and distribution of the questionnaires in an attempt to reach as many different kinds of women, with as many different points of view, as possible. Early distribution was done through the National Organization for Women, abortion rights groups, university women's centers, and women's newsletters. Notices appeared in the Village Voice, Mademoiselle, Brides, and Ms. magazines, informing readers that they could write in for the questionnaire. Later, more notices appeared in church newsletters, and Oui magazine published the questionnaire in its entirety, with 253 women responding to it. Finally, the paperback Sexual Honesty: By Women for Women, which contained forty-five complete early replies, asked women readers to send in their own replies since the publication in 1974. All-in-all, one hundred thousand questionnaires were distributed, and slightly three thousand returned."

Hite continued: "The questionnaires were analyzed in this way: a large chart was made for each question asked. Each person's answer to a question being analyzed was then copied onto that chart, next to its responder's identification number. Once the charts had been prepared, the answers were categorized by finding patterns. The figures were prepared by totaling the number of women in each category, following which representative quotes were selected. This procedure was followed for each question."

While Hite has been praised for using a research method that provoked high levels of honesty in the responses, critics argued that Hite's data was not collected using standard sampling techniques. Some researchers raised questions about her conclusions, which, though presented as representative of the views of various populations, were based on responses from non-scientific samples. Critics further argued that the high non-response rate also biased or skewed the results.

Hite used a similar methodology to gather and analyze research for three additional reports: The Hite Report on Male Sexuality (1981), The Hite Report: Women and Love: A Cultural Revolution in Progress (1987), and The Hite Report on the Family (1994). For further information regarding her methodology and funding, and for lists of the organizations and publications that published each questionnaire, see the introductions to the individual books.

Folders are arranged alphabetically by general questionnaire. Following the first survey on female sexuality, Hite distributed three other major questionnaires regarding male sexuality, women and love, and growing up in the family. She also distributed variations of the major questionnaires along with smaller surveys, such as the Japanese questionnaire, which contributed to a Japanese version of the report. Hite received responses to the questionnaires years after the relevant books were published. She likely used these later responses in subsequent editions of her major publications, or other related books, such as The Shere Hite Reader (2006).

All of the questionnaires were intended to be anonymous. Responses in English were digitized and identifying information of those who chose to provide personal names or addresses have been redacted to protect their privacy. Questionnaires completed in languages other than English have not been digitized and are closed for 80 years. All original completed questionnaires in English will be closed for a period of 80 years, while redacted, searchable electronic copies are available at the Schlesinger Library. Researchers wishing to use redacted digital copies must make an appointment with Research Services.

Series IV, WRITINGS AND OTHER PROJECTS, 1975-2007 (#116.1-185.15, 261F+B.8, OD.3), contains drafts of articles, books and related material, and files regarding film, television, and other projects that are arranged alphabetically within three subseries. For published versions of articles, see Series V.

Subseries A, Articles and related, 1982-2007 (#116.1-132.13), is arranged alphabetically by subject, or title when known, and contains drafts, notes, and correspondence regarding the many articles Hite wrote for foreign and United States publications including Cosmopolitan (London), El País (Spain), and the Washington Post. Topics generally regard human sexuality, equality in the family, and women's issues, as well as many other subjects. Hite appears to have altered or expanded articles for various purposes as the content of many of the articles is similar. Additionally, she may have expanded articles into chapters of books or full-length books, or alternatively, edited chapters or taken excerpts from her books to create articles for publication. For additional drafts of articles, see correspondence re: articles in Series II, Subseries A.

Subseries B, Books and related, 1976-2005 (#132.14-177.3, 261F+B.8, OD.3), contains drafts of and notes regarding Hite's best known works, such as The Hite Report: A Nationwide Study of Female Sexuality (1976), The Hite Report on Male Sexuality (1981), and The Shere Hite Reader (2006), as well as book proposals and drafts of books that were never published. Titles of books that were published appear in italics while working titles of unpublished books and chapter titles appear in quotation marks. Books and related material are arranged alphabetically by title.

Subseries C, Film, television, and other projects, 1975-ca.2005 (#177.4-185.15), contains files arranged alphabetically by type and then by production or project title thereunder. Files often relate to articles or books, such as the The Hite Report on Female Sexuality, that Hite may have intended to expand into film, television, or World Wide Web projects. Files also document autobiographical projects, such as biopics. In addition, there are fictional dramas and non-fiction projects, including talk shows and documentary proposals, which may or may not have been produced. Items include correspondence, film and television scripts, proposals, outlines, notes, funding information, executive summaries, business plans, and research material. Various proposals and a significant amount of correspondence document Hite's professional dealings with agents, producers, and representatives from film production companies and television networks.

Series V, CLIPPINGS AND ARTICLES, ca.1970-2006, contains various published articles by and about Hite, reviews, interviews, and profiles of Hite that appeared in newspapers and periodicals within the United States and abroad. Many of these published writings were sent to Hite from a clipping service. Some clippings are syndicated articles that appeared in various newspapers. Archivists and student assistants gathered together clippings that were dispersed throughout the collection; discarded some obvious duplicates, while retaining sampled syndicated versions of columns in order to maintain geographic diversity; and clipped relevant articles from magazines. This series has been digitized and most articles are full text searchable. The originals have been discarded. The digitized series is available at the Schlesinger Library. Researchers wishing to use the digital copies must make an appointment with Research Services. For draft versions of articles by Hite, see Series IV.

Series VI, NOTES, 1977-2003 (#185.16-202.4), contains items that have been minimally processed due to the original condition of the material. Items include handwritten "general" notes (#185.16-197.4), and notes regarding specific subjects, arranged alphabetically by topic. "General" notes contain scraps of paper, which are often taped or stapled together; post-its; clippings from magazines and newspapers; napkins; empty match books; and other materials, usually in color marker or pen and often illegible. Hite appears to have written down various thoughts or ideas as they occurred to her, on whatever material was nearby. Notes referred to as "general" include a wide range of topics of a personal and professional nature. Many folders include multiple topics, and include thoughts about articles and publications; contacts; personal health issues and aesthetics; living arrangements; actresses and celebrities; financial information; and weekly schedules and commitments. Extremely personal notes are mixed with those of a professional nature; these folders are closed until January 1, 2043.

Larger batches of notes regarding specific topics have been separated from general notes and are arranged alphabetically by subject; original folder titles have been maintained. Topics include adoption, articles and books, interviews, press releases, public relations, Hite's scientific method, and a proposed women's club. To protect personal privacy, #199.8 and 201.12 are also closed until January 1, 2043.

Series VII, PHOTOGRAPHS, ca.1916-1995 (#PD.1-PD.45), contains photographs of Shere Hite along with images of her family and husband Friedrich Höricke, her pets, friends, and special events in which she participated. In many of the photographs she is alone. Also included are professional photographs that Hite used on book covers, or that were published with magazine articles about her. Formats include black and white and color photographs, Polaroids, slides, and negatives, and are arranged alphabetically by subject.

Series VIII, MEMORABILIA AND OVERSIZED, ca.1970-2004 (#202.5m, FD.1-FD.3, 217F+B.1-217F+B.2, 218F+B.1-218F+B.2, 261F+B.1-261F+B.10, OD.1-OD.4, SD.1), contains buttons, followed by oversized material removed from various series throughout the collection; a plastic bag (#261F+B.9m) is also listed and filed with the oversized material. The oversized listing also serves as a shelflist for oversized items found throughout the collection and listed previously in the series above.

Most of the photographs in this collection are or will be cataloged in VIA, Harvard University's Visual Information Access database. Others, referred to as "uncataloged" photographs, are not of sufficient research interest to warrant cataloging and are simply treated as part of the documents they accompany; they are marked on the back with an asterisk in square brackets [*].

There is related material at the Schlesinger Library; see the Shere Hite Audiotape collection, 1977-2004 (T-340), and the Shere Hite Video and motion picture collection, ca. 1978-2006 (Vt-150; MP-58; DVD-85).

INVENTORY

- Series I. BIOGRAPHICAL, PERSONAL, AND LEGAL, ca.1940-2007 (#1.1-22.12, 261F+B.1-261F+B.66)
  Scope and Content: This series contains correspondence, notes, printed materials, and uncataloged photographs relating to Hite's personal life and legal activities. Of note are drafts of Hite's autobiographical writings and correspondence relating to her lawsuits for libel and defamation.
  Access Restrictions: WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO SUBSERIES B.
  - Subseries A. Biographical and personal, ca.1940-2007 (#1.1-17.4, 261F+B.1-261F+B.6)
    Scope and Content: This subseries includes writings, correspondence, notes, and uncataloged photographs. Autobiographical and personal writings include photocopies of Hite's early journals, as well as drafts of parts of her autobiography under various titles. This subseries includes her research into graduate school programs as well as samples of papers and school work and transcripts of interviews, many of which were published. Included is correspondence with friends and/or relatives in Florida and St. Joseph, Missouri, including letters from her mother, grandfather, and her Aunt Cile. Correspondence of an extremely personal nature is closed as noted. Folders (#17.1-17.4) contain information on maintenance and sale of the family property. Hite was also the head of the co-op board for her Manhattan home at 2 East 64th Street, and saved numerous files that include shareholder information; board of directors meeting minutes; and correspondence and notes regarding building improvements, building personnel, and sublets. There are also budgets and other financial information, sales documents, and real estate agreements. Mortage-related information can be found in both financial and real estate folders. Financial materials also include bank account and credit card statements, invoices, bank loan documents, tax forms, and investment information, and are closed until January 1, 2043. For additional financial information, including information regarding royalties, contracts, and payments for articles, see Series II. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

- Series II. CORRESPONDENCE, SPEAKING ENGAGEMENTS, AND RELATED, 1970-2006 (#23.1-115.14, 261F+B.7, OD.1-OD.2, SD.1)
  Scope and Content: This series contains materials relating to Hite's professional activities, writings, and special projects in the United States and abroad. There is significant overlap and some possible duplication among each subseries, particularly Subseries A, B, and C (e.g., publicity and agent correspondence, which closely relate to Hite's published works, can be found within all three subseries). Also, there is overlap of information among folders within each subseries (e.g., royalty information for a particular publisher may be found within folders titled "royalties," or by the publisher name).
  Access Restrictions: WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO THIS ENTIRE SERIES.

  - Subseries A. General correspondence, 1970-2006 (#23.1-56.4)
    Scope and Content: This subseries contains correspondence and related materials found together, including extensive notes; printed materials; publicity information; writings and draft articles; schedules; contacts and business cards; thank you and holiday cards; postcards; invitations; clippings; and uncataloged photographs. Correspondents include media outlets, public relation firms and publicists, professional organizations, colleagues and friends, business acquaintances, scholars, fans, and agents. Although correspondence is found throughout this series, general files titled "correspondence" are made up of correspondence and related materials found loose and then grouped together and arranged by year. Correspondence documents general information regarding the Hite reports, including methodology and distribution of questionnaires; professional reactions to and impressions of her work; events or conferences she may have attended; publicity, including reviews, interviews, speaking engagements, and advertisements for her work; Hite's articles, series, or columns for various publications in the United States and abroad; new book ideas; financial information relating to agents or article writing; her life abroad; promoting and translating books in Europe; others' related research projects; requests for autographs by fans; inquiries from the public regarding counseling services through the Hite Research Foundation; and the development of the Hite Research Foundation and related administrative issues. Files titled by country name (e.g., "Japan") include everything from publicity and publisher correspondence to general information and notes regarding travel and living arrangements. "Japan" folders (#49.7-51.5) also contain information about her adjunct professorship at Nihon University. Although some draft writings are included here with correspondence, the majority are in Series IV. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

Subseries D. Conferences and speaking engagements, 1976-2006 (#95.9-104.12, 261F+B.7, OD.1-OD.2)

Scope and Content: This subseries includes materials regarding Hite's participation as a speaker, organizer, or participant in national and international conferences, meetings, lecture series, workshops, symposia, etc. Materials include correspondence; speech transcripts; drafts; notes; proposals and abstracts; contracts with venues, lecture agencies and speakers bureaus; publicity materials; agendas; and conference programs. Also included are research materials, correspondence regarding professional organizations; potential panels and presentations; notes; clippings; articles; writings; panel outlines; and printed materials. There is extensive correspondence regarding coordination for conference panels and suggested panelists, as well as letters regarding rejected proposals. International PEN Congress documents (#100.12) contain information relating to Hite hosting a pre-congress party. The symposium on masculinity was co-organized by Hite and various publishing companies; it is unclear whether the symposium took place. Material (#103.6-103.10) includes letters to successful public figures, including businessmen and celebrities. The American Historical Association conference materials (#96.11-97.10) include information regarding the publication of panel papers. Documentation of multiple conferences or organizations is sometimes grouped in one folder, as originally received. Some general conference folders may include materials relating to conferences also listed by organization. The subseries is arranged alphabetically.

Access Restrictions: WRITTEN PERMISSION OF SHERE HITE IS REQUIRED FOR ACCESS TO THIS ENTIRE SUBSERIES.

Subseries E. Response letters, 1972-2005 (#104.12-115.14)

Scope and Content: This subseries contains letters requesting questionnaires; asking to be included in one of Hite's studies; sharing personal stories; or asking questions in response to Hite's published columns or articles. Most of the respondents had either read her works, seen Hite on television, read about her, or heard her being interviewed. Some responses are very detailed and include extensive personal information. Because of the extremely personal nature of these materials, the letters in this subseries are closed for 80 years from the most recent date in the folder. The subseries is arranged chronologically.

- Series III. QUESTIONNAIRES AND RELATED RESEARCH, ca.1972-2005 (#203.1-260.9, 217F+B.1-217F+B.2, 218F+B.1-218F+B.2)
  Scope and Content: This series contains blank and completed questionnaires, data charts, notes, quotes, and related material for Hite's research, and demonstrate her method of analysis. For drafts of the reports, see Series IV. Folders are arranged alphabetically by general questionnaire. Following the first survey on female sexuality, Hite distributed three other major questionnaires regarding male sexuality, women and love, and growing up in the family. She also distributed variations of the major questionnaires along with smaller surveys, such as the Japanese questionnaire, which contributed to a Japanese version of the report. Hite received responses to the questionnaires years after the relevant books were published. She likely used these later responses in subsequent editions of her major publications, or other related books, such as The Shere Hite Reader (2006). All of the questionnaires were intended to be anonymous. Responses in English were digitized and identifying information of those who chose to provide personal names or addresses have been redacted to protect their privacy. Questionnaires completed in languages other than English have not been digitized and are closed for 80 years. All original completed questionnaires in English will be closed for a period of 80 years, while redacted, searchable electronic copies are available at the Schlesinger Library. Researchers wishing to use redacted digital copies must make an appointment with Research Services.

- Series IV. WRITINGS AND OTHER PROJECTS, 1975-2007 (#116.1-185.15, 261F+8.8, OD.3)
  Scope and Content: This series contains drafts of articles, books and related material, and files regarding film, television, and other projects that are arranged alphabetically within three subseries. For published versions of articles, see Series V.
  - Subseries A. Articles and related, 1982-2007 (#116.1-132.13)
    Scope and Content: This subseries is arranged alphabetically by subject, or title when known, and contains drafts, notes, and correspondence regarding the many articles Hite wrote for foreign and United States publications including Cosmopolitan (London), El País (Spain), and the Washington Post. Topics generally regard human sexuality, equality in the family, and women's issues, as well as many other subjects. Hite appears to have altered or expanded articles for various purposes as the content of many of the articles is similar. Additionally, she may have expanded articles into chapters of books or full-length books, or alternatively, edited chapters or taken excerpts from her books to create articles for publication. For additional drafts of articles, see correspondence re: articles in Series II, Subseries A.

- Subseries C. Film, television, and other projects, 1975-ca.2005 (#177.4-185.15)
  Scope and Content: This subseries contains files arranged alphabetically by type and then by production or project title thereunder. Files often relate to articles or books, such as the The Hite Report on Female Sexuality, that Hite may have intended to expand into film, television, or World Wide Web projects. Files also document autobiographical projects, such as biopics. In addition, there are fictional dramas and non-fiction projects, including talk shows and documentary proposals, which may or may not have been produced. Items include correspondence, film and television scripts, proposals, outlines, notes, funding information, executive summaries, business plans, and research material. Various proposals and a significant amount of correspondence document Hite's professional dealings with agents, producers, and representatives from film production companies and television networks.

- Series V. CLIPPINGS AND ARTICLES, ca.1970-2006
  Scope and Content: This series contains various published articles by and about Hite, reviews, interviews, and profiles of Hite that appeared in newspapers and periodicals within the United States and abroad. Many of these published writings were sent to Hite from a clipping service. Some clippings are syndicated articles that appeared in various newspapers. Archivists and student assistants gathered together clippings that were dispersed throughout the collection; discarded some obvious duplicates, while retaining sampled syndicated versions of columns in order to maintain geographic diversity; and clipped relevant articles from magazines. This series has been digitized and most articles are full text searchable. The originals have been discarded. The digitized series is available at the Schlesinger Library. Researchers wishing to use the digital copies must make an appointment with Research Services. For draft versions of articles by Hite, see Series IV.

- Series VI. NOTES, 1977-2003 (#185.16-202.4)
  Scope and Content: This series contains items that have been minimally processed due to the original condition of the material. Items include handwritten "general" notes (#185.16-197.4), and notes regarding specific subjects, arranged alphabetically by topic. "General" notes contain scraps of paper, which are often taped or stapled together; post-its; clippings from magazines and newspapers; napkins; empty match books; and other materials, usually in color marker or pen and often illegible. Hite appears to have written down various thoughts or ideas as they occurred to her, on whatever material was nearby. Notes referred to as "general" include a wide range of topics of a personal and professional nature. Many folders include multiple topics, and include thoughts about articles and publications; contacts; personal health issues and aesthetics; living arrangements; actresses and celebrities; financial information; and weekly schedules and commitments. Extremely personal notes are mixed with those of a professional nature; these folders are closed until January 1, 2043. Larger batches of notes regarding specific topics have been separated from general notes and are arranged alphabetically by subject; original folder titles have been maintained. Topics include adoption, articles and books, interviews, press releases, public relations, Hite's scientific method, and a proposed women's club. To protect personal privacy, #199.8 and 201.12 are also closed until January 1, 2043.

Guide to the F. Curtis Michel Scientist-Astronaut Papers, 1951-1981 MS 043

creator	Michel, F. Curtis
Title:	F. Curtis Michel - Scientist-Astronaut Papers
Dates:	Bulk, 1963-1974
Dates:	1951-1981, Bulk Dates 1963-1974
Abstract:	Papers related to F. Curtis Michel's participation in NASA's Scientist-Astronaut program (1965-1969); materials (primarily concerned with the Gemini and Apollo Programs) include information on astronaut training, experiments, technical reports, course and seminar notes, handbooks, familiarization materials, training manuals, scientific reports and reprints, photographs, correspondence, and memorabilia; also included are academic papers from his years as a graduate student in physics at California Institute of Technology, and from his academic position at Rice University.
Identification:	MS 043

Biographical Note

Frank Curtis Michel was born June 5, 1934, in La Crosse, Wisconsin. He attended high school in Sacramento, California, and went on to receive a Bachelor of Science degree from California Institute of Technology in 1955, graduating with honors. After working briefly as an engineer, he served in the United States Air Force as a pilot from 1955 to 1958.

Michel then returned to California Institute of Technology, where be received a Ph.D. in physics in 1962. He continued as a Research Fellow in Physics at the Institute until April, 1963 when he accepted a position as assistant professor in the newly established Space Science Department at the Rice Institute (now Rice University) in Houston, Texas.

Michel's entry into the field of space physics proved timely, for a national effort was underway to accelerate scientific research programs needed in the nation's space endeavors. Two years earlier, President John F. Kennedy had enunciated a national goal to place a man on the moon before the end of the decade. Academic programs useful to the projected Apollo spaceflights were thus undergoing intense evaluation by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) together with the National Academy of Sciences and with other interested federal agencies, such as the National Science Foundation and the Department of Defense.

A Space Science Summer Study, conducted in 1962 and involving more than one hundred scientists from universities, private research organizations, industry, and the government recognized the potential for scientific investigation which could be carried out on manned missions of NASA's Apollo spacecraft. They proposed establishment of a program for training scientists as astronauts to participate in the Apollo flights and in later space programs.

The following year, specific recommendations for such a program were presented to Congress by the Space Science Board, an arm of the National Academy of Sciences which served as the main liaison between NASA and the American scientific community. The Board's Ad Hoc Committee on Scientific Qualifications of Scientist-Astronauts began work in May, 1964, to establish scientific criteria for applicants.

Michel's qualifications as a scientist who was also an experienced pilot made him a likely candidate for such a program, and he was attracted by the possibility of combining his expertise and special interest in solar winds with his desire to take part in space flight. His interest was shared by Dr. Alexander J. Dessler, director of Rice's Department of Space Science, who was an early supporter of the proposed Scientist-Astronaut program. Furthermore, Rice's Space Science Department had a close relationship with NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center near Houston (MSC, later Johnson Space Center). Departmental research projects, funded in part from NASA grants, were of direct benefit to NASA's programs, and MSC personnel were among those coming to Rice for graduate training.

Michael was thus in a fortunate position to take advantage of these new developments. When NASA officially established the Scientist-Astronaut program and began recruiting in October, 1964 Michel applied and was one of six accepted into the first group in June, 1965.

As a Scientist-Astronaut Michel spent six months in orientation training at MSC (he was already a qualified pilot and thus exempt from basic flight training). His work assignment was primarily to plan for the Apollo Applications Program (AAP, later known as the Skylab program). In September, 1966, Michel was appointed to monitor progress on the Apollo Telescope Mount project (ATM), which involved working with specialists at the Marshall Space Flight Center. At various periods he also served on working groups concerned with Lunar Atmospheres, Manned Space Science Atmospherics, and Planetary Atmospheres. In addition to these duties, Michel participated in ongoing astronaut training and in maintaining his flight proficiency as a potential flight crew member.

In 1967, NASA established a review procedure to ensure that the scientist-astronauts had time for study and research in order to maintain proficiency in their particular areas. Although officially one day a week and one week a month were to be set aside for this purpose, it proved difficult in some cases to achieve this. Over a period of time Michel was among those concerned about being able to meet requirements as an astronaut along with those of a scientist.

When it became apparent in 1967 that budget problems (caused in part by the war in Vietnam) would decrease the number of Apollo flights and thus the possibility for assignment to one of the flight crews, Michel requested and was granted a year's leave of absence to return to Rice in the fall of 1968 to teach and to pursue research. Michel resigned from NASA in August, 1969, when opportunities for space flight continued to appear unlikely and the time commitment for academic interests made remaining in the space program difficult.

Scope and Contents

The F. Curtis Michel Scientist-Astronaut Papers consist of 68 linear feet of material organized into two series, Academic Papers (1951-1979) and NASA Papers (c. 1963-1981). The collection includes correspondence, memos, technical handbooks, training manuals, course and seminar notes, photographs, and a great variety of ephemera, including a flight jacket with NASA emblem. Extensive scientific research material in the collection (seminar notes, scholarly publications, and such) provide a good overview of contributions from the academic community to NASA's various endeavors. The collection has interest not only for the extensive material concerning Michel's work in the Scientist-Astronaut program, but also for glimpses into the administrative workings of NASA and the tensions between various groups involved with the space program. Michel's candid observations and reflections both during his years as an astronaut and after his resignation offer an unusual look at a complex institution and the gifted individuals whose lives were caught up in it.

Series I: Academic Papers contains material from Michel's days as a graduate student in physics at California Institute of Technology and correspondence and research materials pertaining to his academic position at Rice University. Of particular interest is the early correspondence between Michel and officials at NASA concerning his interest in and later application to the Scientist-Astronaut Program. A number of newspaper clippings from 1963 concerning plans for the program and Michel's interest in it are also helpful in documenting the new directions underway in the national space effort toward lunar flight and research.

Of equal interest is material from the period following Michel's resignation in August, 1965. Correspondence and clippings reveal an intense ongoing critique of manned space flight programs, with debate between members of the scientific community and NASA over how to balance the demands of scientific research with those of technical flight proficiency.

Series II: NASA Papers, is divided into seventeen sub-series. The Correspondence sub-series consists of correspondence about the Scientist-Astronaut Program, personal correspondence, letters to and from the public, and administrative and travel material. The sub-series is especially valuable in documenting Michel's experience with NASA, including his application for admission to the Scientist-Astronaut Program, astronaut work assignments and training, pertinent clippings about NASA, early doubts about continuing in the program, and factors leading to his resignation in 1969. The last three folders contain manuscript notes for a book discussing his NASA experiences, and also his response to a Space Program Advisory Council study of the Scientist-Astronaut program, which was conducted in 1974-75, accompanied by a copy of the resulting report.

Astronaut Training and Familiarization gives a good overview of the many technical and scientific areas in which an astronaut was expected to develop proficiency. Areas included geology and astronomy, Gemini Program familiarization, flight training, and the Apollo Program.

The Gemini Program, Apollo Program, Surveyor Program, and Space Station sub-series include material from four NASA programs, with good coverage of experiments conducted and samplings of scientific publications contributing to these programs, while the Technical and Scientific Publications gives an idea of the variety of material produced between 1950 and 1970 relating to space research.

Included in the Oversize Materials is a commemorative album, large photographs, and assorted newspapers and publications. Photographs of the various groups of astronauts are found in the Photograph sub-series, including Group 4, Michel's group of Scientist-Astronauts, and a number of photographs of Michel in his role as an astronaut. Geologic scenes and various technical subjects make up the remainder of the sub-series, along with an astronaut training film.

The final subseries, Memorabilia, contains a wide variety of material collected by Michel during his affiliation with NASA. Boxes 67 and 68 hold commemorative plaques, medallions and insignia, certificates, postal envelopes, launch invitations, calendars, and assorted other items.

Collection Overview

Description The Stanford Photograph Collection contains over 16,000 images of Stanford scenes including photographs of and relating to the Stanford family, views of the campus and individual buildings, photographs of students and student life activities, and photographs of faculty and administrative staff. The majority of photographs are black and white gelatin prints but nineteenth-century albumen prints mounted on boards are also represented. The collection spans the late 1890s through the 1990s.

Extent 43 Linear feet

Featured collections

Here are a few of our notable collections. Check more out on the Libraries' Collections page.

R. Buckminster Fuller Collection

Fuller's versatile career as an architect, lecturer, mathematician, writer, and social critic is documented extensively.

Edward A. Feigenbaum Papers

Primarily concerns his work in artificial intelligence at Stanford University.

William Shockley Papers

Professional and personal papers documenting research on transistors and electronics; genetic influences on intelligence; and science education.

Project South coordinator revisits collection 50 years later

On April 24th, the University Archives was pleased to welcome back to the farm Jim McRae ('68), coordinator of the KZSU-sponsored Project South, which interviewed civil rights workers during the summer of 1965. Jim (seen here examining interview transcripts) sat down with us to talk about the project and even provided some personal photographs (below) and documents.

During the summer of 1965, eight students from Stanford University spent ten weeks in the southern states tape-recording information on student participation in the Civil Rights Movement. The eight interviewers -- Mary Kay Becker, Mark Dalrymple, Roger Dankert, Richard Gillam, James McRae, Penny Niland, Jon Roise, and Julie Wells -- were sponsored by KZSU, Stanford's student radio station, and their original intent was to gather material suitable for rebroadcasting in the form of radio programs. Northern college students who were working in the South for the first time were the major focus, although many other topics were also investigated. To find out why these students decided to go to the South to work for the movement, what they expected to find there, what they did find, the pressures they experienced, their reaction to these pressures, what they accomplished, and what they planned to do in the future (both near and distant), they interviewed as many students as possible. What is planned is a series of programs expressing in the volunteers' and workers' own words, their motivations and their feelings towards the many aspects of the South and of the Civil Rights Movement experienced that summer.

Collection Overview

Description A consortium of scholars and researchers devoted to exploring and promoting discussion of race, iconography, and the colonial and post-colonial periods of Africa and Europe. The ACHAC collection documents the influence of French colonialism, both on Africa and on France itself, as represented in images produced and distributed through the media of French popular culture as well as in the personal photographs of European residents of the African colonies. Some materials concern Belgian and German colonies.

Background ACHAC (Association Connaissance de l'histoire de l'Afrique contemporaine) is a consortium of scholars and researchers devoted to exploring and promoting discussion of race, iconography and the colonial and post-colonial periods of Africa and Europe. Founded in 1990 by historian and author Pascal Blanchard, ACHAC organizes conferences and prepares scholarly publications on these topics, often in conjunction with other associations. Participants who assisted in the transfer of the materials in this collection include Dr. Blanchard, anthropobiologist Gilles Boëtsch, Director of Research at the CNRS (Centre national de la recherche scientifique), and historian and filmmaker Eric Deroo.

Library News

- The Library will be open Saturday May 24th but will be closed May 25th and 26th for the Memorial Day Holiday. For more information, please visit our holiday hours page.
- Check out our newest online video tutorial "Searching the Library Catalog" to get great hints on how to best use our catalog for your research. And watch our other video tutorials for help and advice things like ordering photos, using finding aids, and bring a class to visit the Library.
- We are happy to announce a brand-new Research Service: the Gold Star Roll Record Request! The Gold Star Roll recorded information about Minnesota men and women who died in military service during World War I, and researchers can now order copies of these interesting records, many of which include photographs, clippings, and letters.
- Check out our new Research Guide all about researching in Minnesota's Court Records. Our Research Guides give how-to instructions for research like legislative history and house history and a wide range of history subjects are also represented--from the Fur Trade and the First Minnesota to Walter Mondale and the Winter Carnival.

BIOGRAPHY

Actress Lorraine Huling Maynard was born in Oaksdale, Washington, on January 20, 1897, the daughter of Floyd and Florence Simmons Huling. The Hulings divorced when Lorraine was five, and her mother worked in Chicago, Illinois, as a nurse/receptionist for Edmund James Doering, who became her lover as well as a father figure for Lorraine. Lorraine attended Chicago public schools and a convent school for the first few years of her education; her mother later placed her in a variety of boarding schools in the United States and abroad. Lorraine spent several summers in Westbrook, Connecticut, with her grandmother, Mary Elizabeth Lyman Simmons, and also frequently travelled abroad with her mother and Doering. When Lorraine was 15, Florence's relationship with Doering ended and she married Charles Young, who drank heavily and made advances to Lorraine on at least one occasion.

Encouraged by her mother to go on the stage, Lorraine made her Broadway debut in 1913, playing the role of "Doll" in Prunella; she began acting in silent films produced by the Thannhauser Company in New Rochelle, New York, the following year. In 1915, while working as a model in New York City, she met Richard Field Maynard, a portrait painter and Harvard College graduate. A romantic relationship developed between them but was opposed by Richard's parents, who were concerned about the age difference between Richard (born in 1875) and Lorraine, and also about Lorraine's career as an actress. Lorraine's mother also objected to the match, and moved to Hollywood, California, with her daughter. Lorraine appeared in several more films, including King Lear, in which she played Cordelia, and The Fall of a Nation, a response to D.W. Griffith's The Birth of a Nation. (The two films were based on books by the same author, Thomas Dixon, who directed The Fall of a Nation.) Lorraine and Richard corresponded during their separation and married in 1917, with Lorraine retiring from the screen. They had two daughters, Sylvia (born in 1921) and Beverly (born in 1923).

Shortly after their marriage, Lorraine began taking creative writing classes at Columbia University. A number of her stories were published in magazines for children; in both 1929 and 1930, her stories were included in anthologies of "best" children's stories. She also wrote the children's books Twinkle Little Movie Star, which drew on her knowledge of Hollywood and moviemaking, and Dilly Was Different. In the 1930s, Lorraine began therapy with David Seabury and formed a deep attachment to him. She worked with him on his books, transcribing at least one into Braille, and he provided the introduction to her Genius in Chrysalis: Locked Doors on Greatness Within. Lorraine's last book, Bellevue, written with Dr. Laurence Miscall, was published in 1940. Richard Field Maynard died in 1964 and Lorraine, increasingly dismayed at growing old, committed suicide in her home in Old Greenwich, Connecticut, in late November, 1971.

ARRANGEMENT

The collection is arranged in five series:

- Series I. Biographical and personal, 1873-1995 (#1.1-4.2. F+D.1, Mem.1-Mem.2)

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The collection documents Lorraine Huling Maynard's personal life and her career as a silent film actress, as well as the life of her husband, Richard Field Maynard. Included are Lorraine Huling Maynard's autobiography, diaries, and writings; correspondence, including courtship letters and family correspondence; photographs, including movie stills and multiple generations of the Maynard family; correspondence and other papers of Richard Field Maynard; and notes and reflections on Lorraine and Richard by their daughter Sylvia Maynard. Relatively little material after 1930 is included. Most of the folder headings were created by the archivist; those by Lorraine Huling Maynard and Sylvia Maynard appear in quotation marks. Books by Lorraine Huling Maynard were transferred to the Schlesinger Library book collection.

There is related material: correspondence,coursework, and diaries of Richard Field Maynard at the Harvard University Archives.

Series I, BIOGRAPHICAL AND PERSONAL, 1873-1995 (#1.1-4.2, F+D.1, Mem.1-Mem.2), includes diaries (including those kept during Maynard's childhood trips to Europe and during the filming of The Fall of a Nation, and her mother-in-law Margaret Field Maynard's travel and social engagement diaries); notes and letters written by Lorraine Huling Maynard during her therapy with psychologist David Seabury; detailed notes and writings by Sylvia Maynard regarding the Maynard family (and, in particular, her parents' characters and their relationship); address and appointment books; a wooden figurine depicting Lorraine Huling Maynard's character in Prunella; and other memorabilia. The series is arranged with notes on the Maynard papers appearing first, followed by Lorraine Huling Maynard's autobiography; her thoughts regarding aging, and what appears to be her suicide note; and by scrapbooks and articles (including her obituary). The remaining material is organized into several alphabetical groupings.

Series II, CORRESPONDENCE, 1896-2006 (scattered) (#4.3-6.16, FD.1, PD.1), includes Maynard's extensive correspondence with Richard Field Maynard and others. Topics discussed with Richard include their often troubled relationship, Lorraine's experiences in Hollywood, Richard's work as a painter in New York City, and their wedding plans. (Richard bound his and Lorraine's letters into several small volumes. The archivist disbound the volumes but maintained the overall arrangement of the letters. Sylvia Maynard frequently annotated her parents' correspondence, either on photocopied pages or on small strips of paper, and these annotations are interfiled with the letters.) The series also contains letters to Lorraine from her mother, Florence Simmons Huling Young; from her maternal grandparents, Mary Elizabeth Lyman Simmons and S.G. Simmons; from movie fans; from her admirer Theodore Rand "Mac" McNally, a captain in the Canadian Expeditionary Force during World War I; correspondence and publicity regarding Lorraine's film The Fall of a Nation; letters regarding the Maynard's engagement, Lorraine's first pregnancy, and the birth of their daughter Sylvia. The series is arranged with Sylvia Maynard's notes on Lorraine's letters appearing first, followed by a small amount of correspondence of Isaac Newton Maynard and Margaret Field Maynard; by Lorraine Huling Maynard's correspondence; and finally by Sylvia Maynard's correspondence. Sylvia Maynard's correspondents include her sister Beverly Maynard, her daughter Melissa Knox, her grandfather Isaac Maynard, great-grandmother Mary Elizabeth Lyman Simmons, and the Archives of American Art. Correspondence is arranged alphabetically within each group.

Series III, WRITINGS, 1906-ca.1967 (scattered) (#6.17-9.10), contains stories by Lorraine Huling Maynard, including one co-written with Richard Field Maynard, and drafts of her unpublished autobiographical novel A Continental Breakfast. Several of the stories were written for creative writing classes at Columbia University and include instructor and classmate comments. The series is arranged with an essay Maynard wrote re: her 1909 trip to Europe, correspondence, and a list of works sold appearing first, followed by an alphabetical arrangement.

Series IV, RICHARD FIELD MAYNARD, 1876-1928, 1964, 2005-2006 (#9.11-26.9, FD.2-FD.4, F+D.2), includes Cornell University and Harvard College yearbooks and essays, scrapbooks, etc.; correspondence with parents, classmates, and friends; and drawings and small oil paintings. The series consists of five subseries, each arranged chronologically.

Subseries A, Personal, 1894-1898, 1912, 1964 (#9.11-10.5), consists primarily of material from Richard Field Maynard's years as an undergraduate at Cornell University and Harvard College and includes scrapbooks, Cornell and Harvard yearbooks with illustrations by Maynard, and his obituary.

Subseries B, Correspondence with parents, 1876-1928 (#10.6-21.5, F+D.2), includes extensive correspondence with Margaret Field Maynard and Isaac Newton Maynard, beginning with the birthday greetings Margaret sent Richard every year. (Subsequent to his marriage in 1917, most letters are addressed to both Richard and Lorraine.) Topics include daily life in Utica, New York; trips taken by Isaac and Margaret; their health and that of other family members; financial matters; Richard's experiences at Cornell and Harvard; and his work as a portrait painter. Some letters from 1915 include references to Lorraine Huling, whom Richard had met that year, and his letters from December 1916 refer to their intention to marry, objections his parents had raised to the marriage, and wedding preparations.

Subseries C, Correspondence with others, 1893-1939 (#21.6-25.2), consists largely of letters received by Richard Field Maynard, though some letters by him are also included, as well as some sketches, diary entries, and short stories. Correspondents include maternal grandmother Margaret Telfair Field; author (and daughter of William Dean Howells) Mildred Howells; college friends; children with whom Maynard exchanged fairy tales; and fellow artists. Of particular note are photocopies of letters from Richard to Anais Nin and David Seabury, in which he reflects on his own and Lorraine's emotional difficulties and unhappiness, and a letter from Otto Rank to Richard, regarding the possibility of Anais Nin offering psychological help to Lorraine. Some correspondence refers to the "Maynard easel," a folding easel invented by Richard, and to art exhibits in which his paintings were featured.

Subseries D, Coursework, 1894-1901, 1919 (#25.3-25.11), includes essays and stories written at Cornell University and Harvard College, and correspondence from the Art Students' League of New York.

Subseries E, Artwork, 1891-1925, 2005-2006 (#25.12-26.9, FD.2-FD.4), includes charcoal and pencil sketches and oil sketches (created in preparation for larger oil paintings), primarily of Lorraine Huling Maynard. Some information on art exhibitions in which Maynard's work appeared is also included, as well as some photographs and print-outs of digital images of his paintings.

Series V, AUDIOVISUAL AND PHOTOGRAPHS, ca.1850-1970 (MP-55.1 - MP-55.5, DVD-60, PD.2-PD.61), contains film reels, a DVD, and photographs.

Subseries A, Audiovisual, 1916, n.d. (MP-55.1 - MP-55.5, DVD-60), contains a DVD of the 1916 film King Lear, in which Lorraine Huling Maynard played Cordelia, and several film reels, consisting of home movies and travel footage.

Subseries B, Photographs, ca. 1850-1970 (#PD.2-PD.61), contains images of Lorraine Huling Maynard from babyhood to old age, alone, and with others. Publicity photographs and stills from her movies are included, as well as photographs of extended family and friends, and of the Maynard's apartment in New York City. The subseries is arranged with photographs of Lorraine Huling Maynard appearing first, followed by Richard Field Maynard; Isaac Newton Maynard; Margaret Field Maynard; other family (including daughters Sylvia and Beverly Maynard, and Lorraine's mother Florence Simmons Huling Young and grandmother Mary Elizabeth Lyman Simmons, and members of the Maynard and Field families); and finally, photographs of friends.

Most of the photographs in this collection are or will be cataloged in VIA, Harvard University's Visual Information Access database. Others, referred to as "uncataloged" photographs, are not of sufficient research interest to warrant cataloging and are simply treated as part of the documents they accompany; they are marked on the back with an asterisk in square brackets [*].

Biographical Note

Helen Baker Cushman, the daughter of Westinghouse vice president Ivan F. Baker, ran a business history consulting service in Westfield, N.J., under the style of H.M. Baker Associates. The firm specialized in business anniversaries. Its typical publication was based on a time line and blended facts from the client firm's history included with general events in politics and popular culture. H.M. Baker Associates also collaborated on a few book length company histories and acted as consultant setting up in-house corporate archives. In the course of conducting her business, Mrs. Cushman collected a wide variety of business publications, trade cards, ephemera, and other memorabilia with special emphais on world expositions. She also assembled her own general picture archive for use in her business.

Scope and Content

The Cushman collection consists of two parts. The first is composed of miscellaneous illustrations and printed information (8 x 10 inch inches or smaller) which are arranged by subject and chronology; the second part is a collection of advertising trade cards and a small 4 x 6 inch research file that Cushman accumulated about world fairs. The subjects covered in the first part include automobiles, aviation, banks, baseball, books, famous buildings, calendar art, calligraphy, carpets, cities, Ciovil War generals, fashion, fishing, flags, golf, industrial history, insurance, kitchens, military equipment, portraits of United States presidents, Panama Canal, printing history, Statue of Liberty, stock certidicates, U.S. Navy ships and ordnance, among other topics. The cities are represented by 19th century French prints dated 1864. Graphic materials and printed information relating to clothing and fashion are especially plentiful in this part of the collection. Many types of clothing are illustrated: military uniforms, formal dress, bathing suits, and childrens clothing among others. A number of portraits of unidentified women and children are also in the fashion files. Most of these date to the late nineteenth century. A large number of maps from the early 20th century are also part of the collection, the majority of which feature the United States in 1902.

The largest part of the collection is the chronological file, with miscellaneous images arranged by year, starting with "Before 1700." These cover a multitude of subjects, but especially contain items showing fashions, transportation, houses, public buildings, U. S. presidents and First Ladies, current events, inventions, entertainment, and housekeeping. A number of the folders also contain images and information about world fairs and other expositions held in the United States.

The trade cards that Cushman collected have been organized by the business type that distributed each card. The following are represented: agricultural, agricultural machinery and fertilizer; beverages; clothing and dry good stores; cosmetics and perfumes; coal and other fuel; entertainment and recreation; food and grocery; furniture and floor coverings; hair products; hardware; holidays (birthday, Christmas, Easter, New Year's, Valentine's Day); insurance; clocks, watches and jewelry; kitchen; laundry and starch; lighting; machinery; musical instruments; paint and wallpaper; patent medicines; printing and stationery; religious items; rewards of merit; sewing machines; shoes and shoe polish; soaps, glues and other chemicals; stoves, ovens, ranges; thread; tobacco; toys, dolls and games; transportation. Another group includes cards with African American images--some of them with racist subjects.

The small research files on world fairs include mostly research notes, but there are a few pieces of original ephemera. Call slips from the N.Y. Public Library, microfiche, and postcards make up the balance of this portion of the Cushman collection. The files are organized alphabetically by place name and include both American and foreign exhibitions. An interesting aspect of her research notes is the compiled lists of exhibiting companies that still existed at the time of her research (approx. 1970). The New York World's Fair of 1939 is perhaps best represented with a small selection of matchbook covers and postcards including one showing the transparent car at the General Motors Building.

II. Chronological files

Scope and Content

This part of the collection is organized year-by-year, chronologically illustrating many topics of interest, but especially the following subjects sorted by their applicable chronological year: men's, women's and children's fashions; transportation; houses; public buildings; President of the United States and First Ladies; current events; inventions; autos; shipping: naval vessels, ocean liners, etc.; movies, radio, entertainments; aircraft; women's activities and housekeeping.

For the years after 1850 the picture selection is greater. However, there are some very extensive files even for the earlier years. The pictures in this section include black-and-white glossies reproduced from original art or from life, Currier & Ives prints, sheet music covers, book jackets, cartes de visite, ledgers, stock certificates, letter heads, Victorian valentines, stereoscope slides, postcards, album leaves, photographic prints and slides, original documents, original trade cards and other advertisements, steel, wood, and copper engravings, color lithographs, original photographs, ship menus, ads showing grocery store prices, and various types of prints.

Manuscripts and Archives Department

For information about collections in our Manuscripts and Archives Department, please contact us at 302-658-2400 ext 330 or send us an email via Ask Hagley

Hagley's Manuscripts and Archives Department has more than 2,500 separate collections, ranging in size from a single item to 3,000 linear feet. They cover the full spectrum of American business and technology from the mercantile houses of the late eighteenth century to the multinational corporations of the twenty-first, including also the personal and family papers of the entrepreneurs, inventors, designers, and managers who helped build them.

The business records of the DuPont Company and du Pont family papers constitute one of the library's great assets. The history of northeastern railroads and of iron, steel, coal, and oil production are well represented, along with a myriad of smaller collections on industrial, commercial, and mercantile activities in Delaware, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. While much of this documentation concerns business activities in the Mid-Atlantic region, firm records such as those of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Sun Oil (Sunoco), and DuPont cover national and often international operations.

The scope of manuscript and archival materials has expanded steadily to include wide-ranging areas of business activity. Firms with innovative technological practices— ranging from leading military contractors such as Sperry Gyroscope (and the personal papers of Elmer Sperry) to the MCI records that detail many aspects of the computer and communications revolution—have deposited their records at Hagley. Records and photographs of Sperry–UNIVAC, the Eckert-Mauchly Computer Corporation, Engineering Research Associates, and the IBM antitrust suit trace the early history of the computer and aeronautics industries. The records of the RCA Corporation include thousands of technical reports that document the development of a wide array of consumer and military electronics products.

The development of American consumer culture and business' central role in this process is a major collecting emphasis. Consumer-oriented companies such as Joseph E. Seagram & Sons, Avon Products, and the Strawbridge & Clothier department-store chain offer rich insights into the relationships between such firms and the consumer marketplace. The Irving Koons collection provides invaluable information on mass marketing, advertising, market research, and packaging, and Ernest Dichter's papers contain rich research studies on consumer motivation. Product designs are well represented in the papers of industrial designers Raymond Loewy, Thomas Lamb, Marc Harrison, Richard Hollerith, and Marshall Johnson. The papers of interior designers such as William Pahlmann and Ken White illustrate the changes in corporate, residential, and retail spaces throughout the second half of the twentieth century.

Hagley's unique holdings of business- and trade-association archives offer national perspectives on business attitudes towards government policy and corporate strategy. Hagley holds the records of America's four major national business associations: the National Association of Manufacturers, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, the National Industrial Conference Board, and the National Foreign Trade Council. These extensive collections offer almost limitless research opportunities on national and international business practices. Perspectives on particular business sectors can be gained through the archives of industry-wide associations such as the American Iron and Steel Institute and the International Housewares Association.

Personal papers form an important component of Hagley's collections. The papers of individual business people frequently contain evidence of family and social life, including correspondence of their spouses and children, opening windows into the changing lifestyles and mentalities of the middle and upper classes. Personal papers of du Pont and Pew family members and of John J. Raskob, for example, document the role of business leaders in party politics and civic affairs.

Hagley's collections contain significant information about many of the commercial and industrial structures that defined modern America, such as the skyscraper, the industrial plant, the department store, the office building, and the railroad station. In addition to vernacular structures, Hagley's collections document several iconic buildings, including the Seagram Building, the PSFS (the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society) headquarters, and New York City's Pennsylvania Station.

Abstract

The Delafields were avid collectors of family history and family-related memorabilia in the Hudson River Valley region. This collection consists of the papers of the Delafield family and related families, most prominently the Livingstons, containing both personal papers and papers collected for their genealogical/historical significance.

Hello. I came across a tin serving tray with the name " Delafield Farmers Mutual Insurance Company on top, An outline of the state of Minnesota with major cities listed inside, The year 1888 on left side of tray and 1963 on right side. Underneath the state of Minnesota outline are the words, " Seventy five years of Continuous Service". I was wondering if this was a part of your family history. The only thing I could find on this was related to John Delafield. I wanted to know if this is true Thank you.

Dear Mr. Johnson,

Thank you for your note. I'm forwarding your inquiry to our Public Services staff, who may be able to assist you with your inquiry. Meanwhile, if you haven't already discovered it, you may be interested to explore Series 7 of the Delafield Papers, which deals with John Delafield's insurance interests. You may also contact Public Services directly by clicking on the "Ask a Question" button at the top of that page: http://findingaids.princeton.edu/collections/C039...

I hope this information was helpful. If we can assist you further, please do not hesitate to contact us again.

Sincerely,

Mary Jo Bole Collection
A Guide and Inventory
SPEC.RARE.CMS.381

INTRODUCTION

This collection relates to Mary Jo Bole - sculptor, book artist and Ohio State University faculty member from Cleveland, Ohio. Bole exhibited "Purge Incomplete" at the Eastern State Penitentiary in Philadelphia and "My Yard" at the Wexner Center at Ohio State in Columbus, Ohio. She has published MJ's Daily Spy History and was a part of the book Combing Columbus: Photogenic Drawings for the Bicentennial. Her unusual, playful, and unrestrained work often involves the use of language, topics, and themes from popular and alternative cultures. Bole provides this additional information about her career:

Sculpture, book-works and drawings by Bole often utilize materials of geologic origin: shaped by her lineage of Victorian leftover culture experienced through her equally decaying hometown of Cleveland (OH). Her projects can involve intensive historical research. Currently she is working on a collaborative installation at the Lloyd Library in Cincinnati titled "Wounded Home". A solo exhibition titled "Tombs and Toilets" is scheduled January through March 2014 at Mount Saint Mary's College in Los Angeles (CA). Recently completed book-works projects are Toilet Worship (Logan Elm Press 2012 [OH]) and Combing Columbus (Finding Time: Columbus Public Art 2012). Her 2012 installation at the Eastern State Penitentiary Historic Site in Philadelphia titled "Purge Incomplete," centered on the prison's early plumbing. It was supported by artist residencies at The Kohler Factory (WI) and Pilchuck (WA). Recent catalogues featuring Bole's work include "Finding Time: Public Art 2012"; "Of Other Spaces" curated by James Voorhies, Bureau For Open Culture at Columbus College of Art and Design; and Bole's 2005 solo exhibition "Dear Little Twist of Fate" at the Aronoff Center Weston Art Gallery, Cincinnati (OH). The Greater Columbus Arts Council recently published a set of catalogues by artists who were recipients of the Dresden Germany Exchange and Bole is part of the set. She has exhibited work in the United States, Russia, Lithuania, the Netherlands, Sweden, England and Germany. She has lectured extensively about her work and the numerous artists' residencies she has attended and self-organized. These include The Ohio Art Council's sponsored Headlands Art Center residency (CA), Women's Studio Workshop (NY), Belden Brick Factory (OH), Dedouch Monument Plaque Company (IL) and KVO Enamel on Steel (CA). She had previously created five artists book editions at Knust Press (part of Extrapool, The Netherlands), and she has written for journals such as Morbid Curiosity and Death's Garden. She has received numerous grants including six Ohio Arts Council grants, Andy Warhol Foundation Grant (through Women's Studio Workshop, NY), two Greater Columbus Arts Council Grants, the Coca-Cola Grant (through The Ohio State University Women's Studies Dept.) and an NEA grant through Randolph Street Gallery, Chicago (IL).

Mary Jo Bole donated the collection. The collection is in 12 boxes and focuses on her papers. It contains mail art, correspondence, information on exhibits, drawings, photos and other materials. The Mary Jo Bole Collection provides a valuable resource in the research of art, book arts, mail art, multimedia art, and the work of Mary Jo Bole.

Internship and Practicum Info

Internships and Practicum Opportunities at OSUL Special Collections

Special Collections at OSUL often have opportunities for students looking for internships and practicums.

PLEASE NOTE: OSUL does not pay for internships or practicums.

If you are interested in pursuing an internship or practicum, please follow these steps:

1. Decide what type of project you would like to do during your internship or practicum. Examples include web exhibitions, processing a collection, creating an education unit for teachers.
2. Review the OSUL Special Collections and determine which fit your interests.
3. Contact the appropriate staff person (listed below) to learn if there is an opening for an intern or practicum student. There may be times when there are no opportunities available. In addition, some areas may require certain course work to be completed before a practicum can be started.
4. The staff person will set up a meeting with you to discuss the project, if your skills and desires meet their needs, and if so when the internship or practicum will begin.

Byrd Polar Research Center Archival Program: Contact Laura Kissel at kissel.4@osu.edu or 614-688-8173.

Previous project examples: processing manuscript collections, including creation of finding aids; processing artifact collections, including photographing the item, creating appropriate metadata and uploading the images and metadata to OSU's Media Manager; creating digital exhibitions.

Billy Ireland Cartoon Library & Museum: Contact Jenny Robb at cartoons@osu.edu or 614-292-0538.

Previous project examples: processing collections of original cartoon art using Past Perfect collections management software; processing manuscript collections, including creating EAD finding aids; and creating union lists, digital exhibitions or albums.

William Charvat Collection of American Fiction: Contact Rebecca Jewett at jewett.36@osu.eduor 614-292-5938

Previous project examples: Processing book collections; performing collection-level surveys related to particular genres or thematic topics.

Special Collections Sponsored Early Modern Printed Book Open House on April 3rd.

The OSU Libraries would like to invite you to the final open house of the school year: our Early Modern Printed Book Open House! Featuring books, pamphlets, art and architectural treatises, and travel itineraries in English, Latin, German, French, Italian, and Spanish, we're pulling items with substantial visual material that date from the 1400s to the 19th century from our collections university-wide. Among the artists and authors included will be Albrecht Durer, Giorgio Vasari, Leon-Battista Alberti, Andrea Palladio, Giovanni Battista Piranesi, Sebastiano Serlio, Baldassare Castiglione, Peter Paul Rubens, William Blake, and many more. Subjects include History, English, Architecture, Entomology, Herbology, Astrology, and more. Rare Books Librarian Dr. Eric Johnson will be on hand to explain the making and materials of these objects, as well as to help with on-the-spot Latin translations. The Early Modern Printed Book open house will take place on Wednesday, 3 April, from 11 to 2 in Thompson Library room 150.

Patrons with freshly clean hands will be able to handle the items gently. Because of the sensitive nature of the materials (such as their age, designs, paper qualities, and fragility), we will ask that no backpacks or portfolios, food, drink, or wet media be brought into the room with them. Pencils and paper are recommended for note-taking and sketching, and photography is permitted. Feel free to bring your classes or to encourage your students to stop by! For highlights of the Open House visit a list on Buckeye Box.

King James Bible Digital Exhibit Now Live!

At long last, our digital repackaging of our 2011 physical exhibition, "'Translation... openeth the window to let in the light: The Pre-History and Abiding Impact of the King James Bible,"is live! Please visit the exhibit to see this great online show, complete with medieval manuscripts, early-printed books, fine press Bibles, steel engravings, original art, comic books and strips, literary classics, and much much more!

Special Collections Sponsored Artists' Book Open House Back by Popular Demand

The OSU Libraries had a great response from our Fall semester Artists' Books Open House. And so, by popular demand, we're bringing it back this semester! Come see work by Marina Abramovic and Ulay, John Baldessari, Johanna Drucker, Fluxus, General Idea, The Guerrilla Girls, Hans Haacke, Nancy Holt, Douglas Huebler, Barbara Kruger, Sol LeWitt, George Maciunas, Ed Ruscha, Carolee Schneemann, Richard Tuttle, Lawrence Weiner, Xu Bing, and many more. The Artists' Books Open House will take place on Wednesday, the 20th of February, from 11:00 am to 3:00 pm in Thompson Library room 150.

This semester we're also thrilled to include a selection from the Billy Ireland Cartoon Library and Museum's Dylan Williams Collection of small press and self-published mini-comics, which showcase unique formats and binding techniques from underground cartoonists to contemporary self-publishers. If you are interested in homemade comics and the art of the book, this is a unique opportunity to examine these objects up close and to really understand how they're made. The Cartoon Library curator Caitlin McGurk will also be available during the open house to discuss the materials and their construction. We will provide gloves so that you can study the works. Because of the sensitive nature of the materials (such as their designs, paper qualities, and fragility), we will ask that no backpacks or portfolios, food, drink, or wet media be brought into the room with them. Pencils and paper are best!

Special Collections Celebrates American Archives Month

October is American Archives Month, and Special Collections conducted two programs to highlight our archives.

Tamar Chute, University Archivist, and Kevlin Haire, Archives Librarian, conducted tours focusing on the history of the buildings on the Oval on October 11th and 17th.

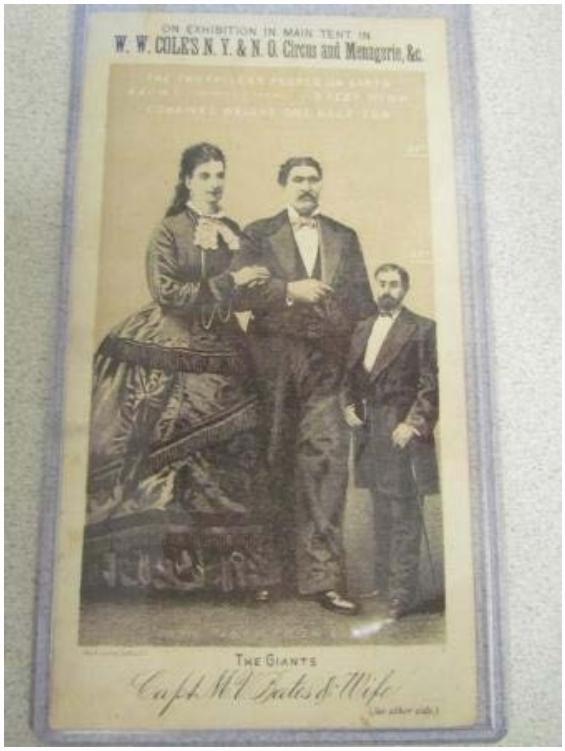
Tamar and Kevlin conducting an Oval Tour

Special Collections also held a program entitled “Voices from the Vault: Unique and Amazing Finds from Special Collections” on October 29th. The program highlighted items from The Ohio State University Archives, The Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee Theatre Research Institute, the Byrd

Polar Archive, the Billy Ireland Cartoon Library and Museum, and the Floyd and Marion Rinhart Collection of Photographs.

Attendees view the items on display. The Milton Caniff life mask from the Billy Ireland Cartoon Library and Museum is in the foreground.

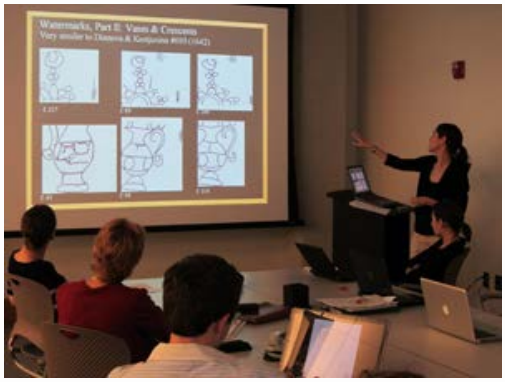
Visitors enjoy the stereogram viewers and daguerreotypes provided by the Rare Books and Manuscript's Rinhart Collection.



A new addition to the Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee Theatre Collection.

For more information on these events, please contact Melanie McGurr, Instruction and Access Librarian for Special Collections at 247-4689 or at mcgurr.2@osu.edu.

Medieval Slavic Summer Institute (Hilandar Research Library)



From June 27 to July 25, ten participants in the 2011 Medieval Slavic Summer Institute (and the sixth such since 1999) participated in four weeks of daily three-hour lectures, additional practical exercises, and afternoon hands-on work with actual medieval Slavic Cyrillic manuscripts and other resources of the Hilandar Research Library. The 2011 MSSI was the first to be held in the "Jack and Jan Creighton Special Collections Reading Room" in what were enhanced, superb teaching and research conditions with original materials. For the first time, related materials in other special collections were also used.

The premise behind the MSSI is to use and share the unique resources at Ohio State to provide opportunities to graduate students to receive practical training and expertise in handling, reading, and understanding Slavic manuscripts, their component parts, tradition, and cultural significance. The Slavic Cyrillic manuscript tradition dates from the 9th to the 20th century.

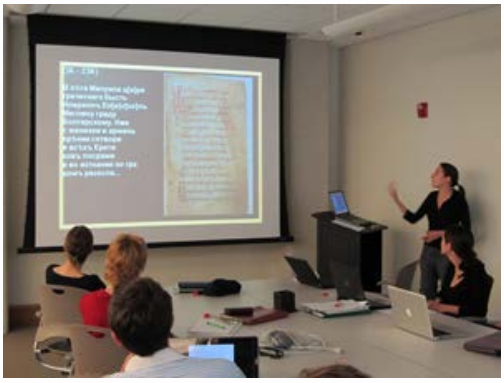
The MSSI was conducted by Daniel E. Collins, Department of Slavic Languages and Cultures, and Predrag Matejic, Curator of the Hilandar Research Library, who presented lectures on “Readings in Church Slavic” and “Practical Slavic Paleography.” Additional guest and occasional public lectures were provided by professors of other universities, most of whom have themselves conducted lengthy research in the Hilandar Research Library.

While OSU graduate students, especially those in Slavic, Linguistics, and History are the most frequent participants, the MSSI was envisioned to also provide needed instruction and training to graduate students of other universities. The 2011 MSSI had guests from Michigan, Brown, Arizona State, and the Pontifical Oriental Institute in Rome.

For more information on the Hilandar Research Library and the related Resource Center for Medieval Slavic Studies, see http://cmrs.osu.edu/rcmss/.



"Picturing History: Editorial Cartooning in America, 1754-2011," an Ohio Humanities Council Summer Institute

(Billy Ireland Cartoon Library & Museum)

Editorial cartoons are unique records of the past that summarize complicated historical issues in a way that allows students to grasp and remember them. ("Where Is He?", Publication: Puck, Vol. 32, November 16, 1892; From the collection of The Ohio State University Billy Ireland Cartoon Library & Museum.)

August 1-5, 2011

Ohio 8th and 10th grade teachers explored the history of American editorial cartooning at the Billy Ireland Cartoon Library and Museum in August, 2011. Jenny Robb and Lucy Caswell served as co-directors of the Institute. More infomation is available on the Ohio Humanities Council web site, as well as a brochure listing other topics and locations.

Festival of Cartoon Art (Billy Ireland Cartoon Library & Museum)

The Festival, a celebration of cartoons and comics, took place October 14-17, 2010.

About the Festival:
This was the tenth triennial Festival organized by the Billy Ireland Cartoon Library & Museum (formerly the Cartoon Research Library). An academic symposium kicked off the Festival events. Humor, Play and Indentity: Academic Perspectives took place on Thursday, October 14 at the Ohio Union and ended with a keynote address on George Herriman by author Michal Tisserand. That evening, all Festival participants were invited to celebrate the 100th birthday of Krazy Kat at a special exhibition reception and birthday party.

Creators who were scheduled to present at the Festival on Friday, October 15 and Saturday, October 16 included Steve Breen, Roz Chast, Tony Cochran, Jan Eliot, Matt Groening and Tom Gammill, Dave Kellett, Paul Levitz, Dan Piraro, Jen Sorensen, James Sturm, and Gene Luen Yang. The Festival also featured a special tribute panel to Jay Kennedy, the late Editor in Chief of King Features Syndicate. Kennedy was a collector and scholar who bequeathed his extraordinary collection of underground comics to the library. Panelists included Brendan Burford, Bill Griffith, Matt Groening, and Patrick McDonnell.

In addition to these events, Wexner Residency Award Recipient Art Spiegelman gave a special presentation on Sunday, October 17.

Two cartoon exhibitions were on display during the Festival. Ireland of the Dispatch, a retrospective of the work of Billy Ireland, was held in the Exhibition Gallery of the spectacular and newly-renovated Thompson Library. Scenes of My Infint-hood: Celebrating the Birth of Krazy Kat was exhibited in the Cartoon Library & Museum Reading Room Gallery.

Avant Writing Symposium (Rare Books & Manuscripts Library)

In Memoriam Thomas L. Taylor

August 19-21, 2010, the Thompson Library was invaded by an exciting horde of writers, scholars, artists, and others for the 2nd Avant Writing Symposium. There were some 50 presentations, performances, papers, readings, installations, exhibits, and other events, and an untold number of observers, fans, scholars, and kibitzers. Sponsored by The Avant Writing Collection and the Rare Books & MSS Library, with additional support from The Department of Spanish & Portuguese and The Center for Latin American Studies, the attendees and presenters came from all over the United States, Latin America, and elsewhere; all with a focus on various of the Avant Gardes active in the world today, primarily those using language in some form or other. Events took place in the Thompson Library, at OSU's Urban Arts Space, and at Skylab in downtown Columbus. In addition to the presentations and performances, there were exhibits in the Thompson Library, and at Skylab, and a room dedicated to continual presentations of electronic and digital poetry and literature.

The previous Symposium, in 2002, was a huge success, and is still being talked about. The 2010 symposium provided another great opportunity to learn about literary innovation and experimentation, avant garde writing, electronic and digital literature, multi-lingualism, visual poetry, performance poetry, Fluxus poetry and texts, collaborative writing, sound poetry, international networking, artist´s books, cut-up text, concrete poetry, found poetry, mail art, video poetry, and much much more.

Rare Books Academy (Rare Books & Manuscripts Library)

On July 13-15, 2010, the Rare Books & Manuscripts Library hosted its first "Rare Books Academy" for children. Fifteen students—from Columbus and as far afield as Morgantown, WV—enrolled and spent three days learning how manuscript books were made in the Middle Ages, how books were printed in the hand-press period, and how librarians and conservators today help to ensure that old and rare books will continue to survive for years to come. The students didn't just learn things about the history of books, however; they also learned how to make their own manuscript and hand-printed products. They practiced the medieval technique of "pouncing," a method of illustration in which the artist lays a picture on top of a piece of parchment, pricks holes around its outline piercing both the illustration and the parchment beneath, and rubs colored chalk over the pierced illustration that passes through the pricked holes onto the parchment to form dots that the artist then connects to complete the illustration. Students also printed their own sheets on hand-presses at the Logan Elm Press, experimented with calligraphy, learned how to bind their own manuscript booklets, and lent a hand in the Libraries' conservation lab by treating old paper with a deacidifying spray-gun.

The students produced and bound their own sheepskin booklets, including pounced and free-hand illustrations, decorated initials, short stories and more. All fifteen booklets are currently being highlighted in a ten-day long "Rare Books Academy" exhibition in the Special Collections display area on the first floor of Thompson Library (through 1 August). Like the manuscripts and old books they're modeled after, each of these booklets has its own unique qualities and charm that reflect the interests and preoccupations of their makers. More importantly, they all also embody the thoughtfulness, creativity, effort—and fun—that goes into the design and use of books.

Collection Overview

Description The Woman's Building was a feminist community space that served as an educational facility and central icon in the feminist art and larger political movements. During its eighteen year lifespan, it housed conferences, performances, exhibitions and community events in downtown Los Angeles. This collection contains materials produced at the Woman's Building, exhibition catalogs, newsletters and calendars as well as information about different internal and external affiliated groups.

Background The Woman's Building was a non-profit arts and education center located in Los Angeles, California. It focused on feminist art and served as a venue for the women's movement. The Woman's Building began as the Feminist Studio Workshop (FSW), founded in 1973 by art critic and historian Arlene Raven, designer Sheila Levant de Bretteville, and artist Judy Chicago. This was one of the first schools for women artists. At the core of the FSW's mission was the centrality of art practice to the larger women's movement. A rented space in downtown Los Angeles became the home of the FSW and was eventually named the Woman's Building (the name was taken from the structure created for the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893). The Woman's Building was a shared space for the FSW along with Womanspace Gallery, the Women's Liberation Union, and the National Organization of Women.

Historical Note +/-

Spy Hop Productions is a not-for-profit youth media center specializing in educational solutions through the multimedia arts. Their mission is to cultivate the visions and voices of an emerging generation - via the big screen, the airwaves, and the world-wide-web. Founded in 1999 by Utah natives Rick Wray and Erik Dodd, Spy Hop Productions was created with a vision to empower underserved youth through multimedia arts education and to meet the demands of the community for after-school programming that helps prepare young people for the digital future. With their experience and expertise in education, multimedia production and business management, Mr. Wray and Mr. Dodd successfully developed the organization from a two-person operation to one that now serves over 600 young people a year and employs over 25 full and part-time employees.

In collaboration with community partners such as the Mayor's Office Youth City Program, the Sundance Institute, the University of Utah Youth Education, the Boys and Girls Club, ArtStart Rowland Hall St. Marks, Art Kids, and the Kennedy Center Imagination Celebration of Salt Lake City, Spy Hop Productions provides a creative and dynamic studio environment where young people of all backgrounds actively engage in the production of their own narratives and solutions to the challenges they face. The young participants involved in Spy Hop's programs have worked with mentors and instructors in multiple media arts disciplines including documentary arts, film and video production, radio, web design, 3D graphics, and animation. In 2004, the young producers' creative works reached local and national audiences exceeding two million people.

On the way home, they open the windows in the van and several butterflies fly into the van and they stop the vehicle to witness a butterfly migration and Peter smiles for the first time during the film.

3 "Sticks and Stones" - narrative 2000

A girl, Beth, and her boyfriend, Cam, help her new roommate move in and have a celebratory dinner. Cam walks in on the new roommate, Amy, and her lesbian girlfriend kissing and is disturbed by it and the fact that his girlfriend lives with a lesbian. When he tells a friend about it, the friend councils him to get to know Amy as he might discover she's cool and they have common interests...other than girls. When he goes over to Beth and Amy's house he meets Gavin, a friend of Amy's, and they talk about Jeeps for a while. In another room Amy tells Beth she hopes Gavin meets someone nice as the breakup with his last boyfriend was difficult. Later Amy's girlfriend confronts Cam about how he avoids Amy and is giving her the cold shoulder because she is a lesbian. After the confrontation, Cam vandalizes Amy's car as Beth spies him in the act from a window. Cam's hatred escalates until he beats Amy with a tire iron.

1	"It Began West..." - documentary	2003
	Exploring the history of non-Latter-Day Saint immigrants to the Salt Lake Valley, this film looks at various factors pulling immigrants toward relocation in Utah such as the Trans Continental Railroad, mining, and factors in their homelands which lured populations from Jewish, Greek, Hispanic, and various other communities. Due to the fact that the LDS Church discouraged its members from working in the mines, the mining industry was a strongly diverse opportunity center for immigrants not associated with the LDS culture. The emigrant population working in the mines created their own community on the west side of town full of "blue collar" workers. Little now remains of these communities and most of the buildings still standing have been gutted or altered so much that there is little left to show little of the emigrant heritage of those working in the mines, smelting, and factories of that area.
2	"Let Me Be Heard" - documentary	2003
	A West Salt Lake City Perspective - Minorities from the west side of Salt Lake City discuss how the unique blend of cultures in the area proves to be "rich soil" for rap artists. Members of Sicc Lake Productions, discuss how living and working in the Salt Lake Valley as rap artists affects them and their music as they discuss issues such as racism, isolation, stereotyping, and censorship in a predominantly Caucasian and religious state but even how minorities who are not black have difficulty making it in the rap side of the music industry.
3	"The Other Side of the Tracks" - documentary	2003
	Residents of both the east and west sides of Salt Lake give their opinions about where the division of east and west is located, as well as myths and beliefs about property value, violence, crime, and diversity of the two sides. Residents of the west side give their opinions about the bias of the media's attention to negative incidents in their side of town when crime, in their opinions, is equal on both sides of town. Young adults from both sides of town come together to confront one another's myths about their side of town.
4	"Measure of Success" - Reel Stories documentary	2003
	Filmmaker Melissa Mullen takes a journey where her initial pity for local (Salt Lake City) street performers leads her to ask the question "what is success?" Determining after asking several street performers what success is to them, Mullen believes that she is the only one who can measure her own success and that happiness and personal fulfillment are vital in the equation.
5	"Voices Beyond the Barn" - Reel Stories documentary	2003
	Animal rescue farm owner, Faith Ching, discusses her views on the mentality of many people today concerning the disposability of animals and of life in general as she tells the story of several of the animals who have made their home on her farm.
6	"Ofa he Lei: The Love of the Lei" - Reel Stories documentary	2003

7	"Me and My Mustache" - Reel Stories documentary	2003
	A Vietnam War veteran, John Hinton, tells the story of how he and a fellow pilot made a pact to grow mustaches to help identify them if they were captured or killed in the line of duty and that they would shave off the mustaches when they returned home. Hinton explains that he has never shaved his mustache because his friend was killed in Vietnam and as a memorial to his fellow pilot, he has kept the mustache.

8	"From Somalia to Salt Lake" - Reel Stories documentary Teen refugee, Mohamed Alinur, from Somalia, the grandson of a former president. Mohamed tells about how he had to learn Arabic when he and his family moved to Egypt and then had to learn English when they then sought asylum in the United States. An English as a Second Language student at Highland High School, Mohamed tells of his experiences as he tries to assimilate into the culture while still retaining his own culture.	2003
9	"Not Just Another Pretty Face" - Reel Stories documentary Miss Utah pageant contestants and former participants are interviewed about their experiences in pageants, and how their community service projects and their ability to interview are weighted above and beyond their appearance in determining score.	2003
10	"El Otro Lado de America: The Other Side of Salt Lake" - Reel Stories documentary An illegal emigrant tells his story of how he crossed the boarder into California on foot, was sent back to Mexico three times, and his perseverance, not wishing to die on the trail as so many do every year. After making a home for himself in Dallas, Texas he now sends money home to his family in Mexico.	2003

When the production assistant asks the director if a cigarette is really necessary he gets angry, saying that it is just a prop. The announcement ends with the statement that due to smoking in movies 1070 youth start smoking every day, 340 will die early as a result.

10 "Original" - public service announcement 2003

Three youth tell the camera they are original, that no one else is like them as they encourage others to be original as well, encouraging individuality.

11 "Watch What You're Watching" - public service announcement 2003

Two young men are engrossed in a reality police television show when the police enter their home and carry one of the young men's father's away. Unaware that what they are watching on television is happening behind them, one of the men comments "That guy looked like your dad," while the other marvels at the television "It did look like my dad."

12 "Watch What They're Watching" - public service announcement 2003

A short informative public service announcement styled piece urging adults to monitor the television content viewed by children in their home.

13 "Laughing Matter" - narrative 2003

A struggling comedian (Dan) makes a deal with Satan to give his career a makeover. After a rise in his career, Dan chokes on a piece of steak on night and finds himself in Hell (filmed in the Utah salt flats). After a confrontation with Satan, Dan takes offense at Satan's comment that he wasn't funny and challenges the devil to a double-or-nothing laugh off where if he wins he gets his soul back but if he looses then Satan will get to take over his life "for a vacation." In order to win, Dan has to make the devil laugh. After a long and painful attempt to make Satan laugh Dan finds inspiration and is able to make the devil laugh by telling jokes about God and religion. When he awakes to a knock at his door, Dan is served by "Jesus H. Christ" with a restraining order to bar him from Heaven for eternity for the things he said while in Hell.

14 "Assassins of Salt Lake" - narrative 2003

Two assassins battle it out to see who will be able to kill their "hit" first. As they meet to combat each other with swords, their hit sneaks up behind them and shoots both of them instead.

15 "A Night on the Town" - narrative 2003

Parents take their ill-behaved children for a nice dinner on the town. At the restaurant the children argue and hit one another, the young boy even attacking the waiter with a dinner roll. When the father leaves the table to take a call on his cell phone, things become even more heated and the mother has had enough when dinner turns into a food fight even including the restaurant staff.

16 "Couchless in a Lonely Room" - narrative 2003

Two roommates, a jock and a nerd, find a free couch in front of their neighbor's house. After failing to move the couch two houses down to their home, they call friends with a van and give up trying to get it into their basement apartment when the large couch becomes lodged in the stairwell. After an argument, the jock retreats to find comfort in the pages of a chemistry book while the nerd practices his skills at Lacrosse. In the end their frustrated friends vandalize the couch and the two roommates are even lonelier than before and still without a couch.

17 "The Dumb Bunnies: The Quest for the Lost Remote" - narrative 2003

A paperboy runs into trouble when he accidentally runs into a sign with the message "Welcome to the Bunnies." A couch potato family, the Bunnies, frantically takes up a quest for their remote control when they discover it is missing. Wandering around town, members of the family interrogate people about the remote control at the city pool until they're thrown out. After stealing what they thought was a free car, the Bunnies head to a movie theatre where they are thrown out again for disturbing other audience members. Buster, the young son, remembers that he's had the remote with him the entire time. When Buster pulls the remote from his pajamas, it slips from his hands and is run over by a car. Returning home Buster is punished by becoming the human remote control anytime his family wants to change the channel.

Biographical / Historical Note

After graduation from the Naval Academy in February 1941, Captain Lynch had a wide range of duties including assignments in destroyers, submarines, aircraft carriers, and auxiliary ships as well as staff assignments. His first duty after graduation was on patrol in the Atlantic prior to World War II, and in action against German U-Boats until March 1942. In March 1942, Captain Lynch volunteered for submarine duty and, after attending submarine school, was assigned to duty in submarines for the remainder of World War II and the year following. As a submariner, Captain Lynch made eight war patrols in the Western Pacific in the USS SNOOK (SS 279) and the USS SEA DOG (SS 401). At the end of the war,

Captain Lynch was in command of the USS S-45 (SS 156). Prior to leaving submarines duty for flight training in October 1946, Captain Lynch also commanded the submarines USS DEVILFISH, (SS 292) and USS SARDA (SS 488).

After completion of flight training in 1948, Captain Lynch was assigned duties involving flying. These have included tours of duty as Commanding Officer of ASW Patrol Squadron FORTY-NINE, Navigator of the USS CORAL SEA (CVA 43), Commanding Officer of the USS JUPITER (AVS-8) and Commanding Officer of the USS YORKTOWN (CVS 10) and staff assignments on the Staff of General Lauris Norstad, USAF, at SHAPE, Paris France; Chief of Staff and Aide to Commander Antisubmarine Warfare Group THREE, Assistant Head of the Air Weapons Analysis Staff in the office of the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Air; and Navy Planner in the office of the Assistant Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Strategic Plans (OP 60).

Lynch holds the distinction of being qualified to wear both submariner's dolphins and aviator's wings. He is one of only a few officers in the history of the U.S. Navy who has commanded both submarines and an aircraft carrier. He has also been awarded the following decorations and medals: Silver Star; Navy and Marine Corps Medal; Bronze Star with "V"; Navy Commendations Medal with gold star and "V"; American Defense Service Medal with "A"; American Area Campaign Medal- Asiatic- Pacific Area Campaign Medal with 1 Silver and 2 Bronze stars; World War II Victory Medal; Philippine Defense Ribbon; Navy Occupation Ribbon with European Clasp; Vietnam Service Medal with two bronze Stars; and Submarine Combat Insignia with six stars. Lynch retired from active duty on August 31, 1968.

Description

The Lynch Papers consist of four series. These include Correspondence, Printed Materials, Photographic Prints and Oversized Materials. For a detailed listing, please see the container list. The correspondence documents Lynch's military career from its beginnings through 1967. Many of the letters are either written to Lynch or are about Lynch, usually concerning his outstanding performance and advance through the military ranks. Also included are letters written during Lynch's tours aboard the USS JUPITER (AVS-8) and the USS YORKTOWN (CVS 10)

Printed Materials consists of rosters, invitations, programs and clippings highlighting events and commemorations related to Lynch's military career. Most articles focus on Lynch either leaving a command or being assigned to a new command. Of particular interest is an article written about Mrs. Patricia Lynch (Lynch's wife) in which she offers insight into her life as a military wife. There are also award certificates documenting the various specialized courses Lynch completed. Also included are several forms concerning Lynch's rank and assignments.

Photographic Prints includes mostly military-related photographs, with a few personal-related included. Many of the photos are of Lynch with fellow commanding officers. Also included are aerial photographs of many of the vessels Lynch served on, including the USS YORKTOWN (CVS 10), USS JUPITER (AVS-8), USS CORAL SEA (CVA 43), USS SEA DOG (SS 401) and the USS SNOOK (SS 279). Group photos document Lynch's affiliation with several groups. These groups include the Strategic Plans Division (OP-60), the Navy Strategic Plans Division, the Joint U.S. NATO Standing Committee and the Australian Joint Antisubmarine School.

The Oversized series contains three items that were relocated due to their large size. Of particular interest is an aerial photo of the USS SARDA (SS 488) entering Havana, Cuba in 1944. Also included is Lynch's diploma for his completion of submarine school in 1942, as well as a newspaper clipping on the USS YORKTOWN (CVS 10), a ship also known as "Fighting Lady".
