

Subject: Re: MOON LANDING - A HOAX?

From: "Freedom Man" <liberty@once.net>

Date: 24/07/2009, 19:07

Newsgroups: alt.conspiracy,alt.conspiracy.area-51,alt.conspiracy.new-world-order,alt.mindcontrol,sci.environment

"David Johnston" <david@block.net> wrote in message <news:g6vh65hqps7ogjgusm2nvbj9juiutat2dc@4ax.com>...

On Thu, 23 Jul 2009 15:41:29 -0400, "Freedom Man" <liberty@once.net> wrote:

So just HOW do all you childish name-calling conspiracy denialists explain that flag, allegedly on the moon, waving in the wind? There is no atmosphere, therefore there CANNOT BE any wind on the moon!

How would you explain wind on the sound stage that would have been required for a fake? Of course there was no wind. The flag was rippling because of the impact required to drive it into the ground. In a vacuum there would have been nothing to bleed away the kinetic energy.

The flagpole was ALREADY in the ground. The flag was moving, and continuing to do so, just as if it was in a strong breeze. The energy you refer to would not have caused it to move horizontally like this. On a soundstage or movie set, large fans are used to create wind.