This is a continuation of the information called Space People Of A Long Time Ago and Venus. We will call this information Mars.

Certainly, TIME and natural entropy have changed the unnatural order of the planets positions. But, it is the artificial acts by intelligent life forms that fascinate. Is what we assume as nature not natural at all? Have interplanetary wars ravaged our Solar System? What destroyed the original 5th planet where today we find an intense field of pulverized pieces precisely where a planet should be? There was once Earthlike conditions on Mars. Ancient ruins, larger and older than anything on Earth, stand in the dunes of Mars. Could MARS have gotten its legendary name as the G-d of W-r because awesome armies once fought with their neighboring planet? Could a Wa- of Worlds have been responsible for not only massive radiation damage to Mars; ruining the planet for ages to come but, the total destruction of its enemies on the 5th planet?! This researcher has wondered if, WE were the Martians? Did WE blast a planet to BITS; turn Mars red and useless then, travel to Earth and build Atlantis?

INCREDIBLE IAPETUS!

Iapetus is the 17th of Saturn's 33+ known moons and the third largest. The astronomer Cassini first viewed Iapetus with a telescope. The satellite was observed to disappear every 40 days, half of its 79-day orbit. Cassini noticed that the winking moon's one hemisphere was vastly brighter than the other side and the moon was synchronously rotating. Three hundred ten years later, on 11/14/80, N-SA's Voyager 1 transmitted the first clear images of Iapetus back to Earth. Cassini was correct. One side of Iapetus was ten times darker than the moon's other side. The satellite has been called the Yin/Yang Moon. Scientists found the same extraordinarily RARE situation (like our Moon) that they termed Gravity-Lock. Oddities are endless with Iapetus. Not only is the super-ancient satellite ARTIFICIAL, it seems to be coming apart at the seams! Thank you, Richard H-agland and the Enterprise Mission; your postings of Iapetus show some of the most bizarre photographs in the Solar System! Amazing details of the exotic moon were revealed by the Cassini spacecraft in 2004. Iapetus is a squashed walnut unlike round moons of Enceladus, Dione and Mimas. Why not Iapetus? Why are a few craters hexagonal in shape? A JPL news release from 1/7/05 stated, a long, narrow ridge (WALL) that is almost exactly on the equator of Iapetus, bisects its entire dark hemisphere and reached 12 miles high. It extends over 800 miles (nearly its diameter) along its mid section. No other (known) moon has such a striking geological feature surprising for such a small body as Iapetus. Around the satellite's center, an equatorial WALL extends miles into space. Hoagland has called the structure a vast, planet-spanning, artificial construct. How can there be a 60,000 foot high, 60,000 foot wide and 4 million foot long wall across an entire hemisphere? (Was a kind of King Kong on the other side?) Iapetus is abnormal for numerous reasons beside a synchronic relationship; being two-toned and a huge number of fabricated features. The moon's orbit is strangely circular, not elliptical like all orbits. Iapetus is tilted 15 degrees from other Saturnian satellites. For the planet's third largest moon, Iapetus extends very far from the planet; more than two million miles away from Saturn. Students of the UNKNOWN; those readers who want to SEE something different and explore virgin passageways, gaze upon the next photographs: VERY ANCIENT, ALIEN ARCHITECTURE ON IAPETUS? How could massive towers, sleek walls, curved constructions and titanic ARCHITECTURE have been built on Saturn's special moon?

Iapetus only has 1/40 of Earth's gravity because it slowly rotates once in 79 of our days. Imagine being on a planetoid of VERY LOW GRAVITY. Imagine what cosmic adventurers could build on such a world! One could move mountains with not much effort. Do our eyes enlighten us to the fact that LONG AGO life forms on odd Iapetus once thrived? Are we viewing ruins of a type we are unfamiliar? Iapetus structures appear to beautifully swoop and curve for miles into the air. Are they alien towers? Would closer inspection reveal windows and balconies? You may be viewing the most astonishing ruins in the Solar System! The towering architecture rises miles above the ground. WHO BUILT THIS? A few descriptions have been: castle-like walls, geometric architecture and a terrestrial city. Also reported were, intensely angular and repetitive, vertical, architectural geometry and rectilinear design extending across this entire region is unmistakable and totally unnatural as well as remarkable, highly ordered evidence of sophisticated, aligned, repeating architectural relief.

Experts concluded that Iapetus surface is also foreign to any natural process. Iapetan structures are truly marvelous upon closer inspection. BUT, WHAT IF ALL OF IAPETUS IS FAKE? Could the moon be a geodesic sphere? Iapetus is not one of the normal moons of Saturn, but is actually a 900-mile wide, manufactured, ancient, world-sized spaceship created under 1/40 terrestrial gravity. Richard Hoagland Examine the crescent Iapetus photo on left and compare unnatural ANGLES to a geodesic dome or sphere. HORIZON of the satellite IS ANGLED! We see the 6-sided, sub-module assembly model for the entire moon. It is the same geometry that defines a geodesic dome, a replicating tetrahedral pattern. Iapetus has flat, straight (horizon) planes for a hundred miles then they angle in a geodesic manner. No natural, cosmic body is supposed to have hundred-mile-long FACETS. It may have started with a skeletal framework that would have made Buckminster Fuller proud. Surface materials seem to have been placed over an angled frame in layers. We observe a 6-sided, inner grid circling the spheroid. Like an old golf ball, we can see into its interior. Iapetus has an outer shell with more layers inside exposing massive, inner, structural supports. Iapetus could be the best example of an artificial moon. Goldsmith and Owen, in The Search for Life in the Universe (1980), wrote of Iapetus: we might seriously regard as an ALIEN SIGNPOST and was liberately modified by an advanced civilization. Hoagland and the Enterprise Mission are 100% certain that Iapetus is an artificial construction; a manufactured spaceship. Hoagland stated WHO he thought created the mysterious orb. It was a god-like technology a long, long time ago. Hoagland also believes the Iapetans were originally Martians. Did MARTIANS colonize other planets including Earth as they fell to ruin? Iapetus could have functioned as an ark-ship, a super engineering that once held together an entire world and for some reason, placed it in the Saturn system. Yurchey's Incredible Iapetus online has more info and photos. Richard Hoagland, who lectured at U.N., agreed with many of my theories as he took over after I was yanked off Coast to Coast with George Noory Show on 8/6/07. Hoagland is known for his vortex idea that each planet is hollow and (if solid planets) its hollow centers can be reached via openings at the poles. Solid planets have volcanoes or EM phenomena, while gaseous planets have (Great Red Spot of Jupiter or Great Blue Spot of Neptune) VORTEXES at the same locations (proportionally). Hoagland wrote the book, The Monuments of Mars which showed the artificialness of CYDONIA and FACE ON MARS. Richard demonstrated mathematically how LARGER VERSIONS OF EGYPT'S GIZA STRUCTURES STAND IN UTTER RUIN ON MARS! On the radio, Hoagland stated that Nikola Tesla's Wardencllyffe N.Y. Station was positioned on the (same) Earth's VORTEX! Was Iapetus used to transport beings as a giant, rescue ark? Or, did the weird Saturnian moon function like the Star Wars DE-THSTAR? But, now it is not operational and must slowly orbit in silence and decay? What were the real functions of these cosmic bodies? Magellan's Venus was more the Deathstar and qualifies as another artificial orb only made to appear as a piece of nature. Does everything somehow revolve around Earthlings (Martians) or, is it human Venusians? Could Mars be the very distant past and Venus the very distant future while humankind on Earth remains stuck in the present? Does everything connect in a way that is so difficult to assimilate? Few can conceive of real events performed by real life in the long history of our Solar
