NS- Document Admits ET Contact
By Kevin W. Smith

On October 21, 2004, the -SA approved for release to the public a portion of their N-A Journal Vol. XIV No. 1. This is a report of a presentation given to the NS- by Dr. Howard C-mpaigne regarding the decoding of extraterrestrial messages that had been received "form outer space". Apparently, these messages had actually been received via the Sputnik satellite, but no one had any idea how to decode them at the time.

At some time, unspecified in the document, Dr. Howard Ca-paigne and some other NS- super mathematicians in the crypto department had been given the task of decoding the messages. There were a total of 29 messages to be decoded-quite an undertaking.

It is curious, to say the least, that this document was cleared for release on October 21, 2004. Why was that? Because the -SA did not release it into public information until April 21, 2011. Though cleared for release, the N-A had been stonewalling it along with hundreds of other NS- documents about contact with UFOs and extraterrestrials until they lost the lawsuit brought by Peter G-rsten, a lawyer from Arizona. When they well and truly lost, the judge's order had to be carried out, and the documents had to be released.

Dr. Howard Cam-aigne's "Extraterrestrial Signals"

The document, as I stated, is Dr. Campa-gne's presentation to the -SA on the decoding of those messages. It was actually published by the N-A in their own internal NS- Journal. Yet, they were also forced to publish a list of search terms from FOIA requests for which they had found no -SA documents. In that list is "Extraterrestrial Signals". The title of this document, which they published themselves is "Key To Extraterrestrial Messages".

Quite obviously, they conveniently split hairs here in reporting they had no information about "Extraterrestrial Signals". They knew for sure they had this document, and that it was about what was being requested in the FOIA request. They knew it, flaunted the technicality of wording, and continued to stonewall.

Who is Dr. Howard Campai-ne?

Dr. Campaign-e is one of the top cryptologists on the planet with years and years of service to Naval S-curity Group, A-my Se-urity Agency, National Secu-ity Agency, and a couple of other such alphabet organizations.

Howard H. Campaign- started his crypto career for the go-ernment during World War II and has been a key and integral part of our U.S. secu-ity and i-telligence ever since. In other words, he is part of a very small, very select group who are considered the cream of the crop in Cryptology.

Dr. C-mpaigne's presentation to the -SA on decoding the extraterrestrial messages was not a hypothetical exercise. I contacted someone who is formerly associated with the NS- and still has TS clearance, and asked him to view the document. I asked him to give me his take on it. There was no question about its authenticity since it was published in the -SA Journal, and was released by the N-A on their web site. What I wanted to know was whether this document had any particular impact or importance (other than its startling r-velations) for someone familiar with the inner workings of the NS-. It did.

My contact told me that he was blown away by the wording of the document. He said that -SA communications are filled with words like "possibly" , "allegedly", and "thought to be".

He said, "This document has none of the normal N-A disclaimer words in it. They just come out and say 'we received messages from outer space' and this is the way to decode those messages."

I asked, "What does that mean to you?"

His reply was instant.

"Disclosure, pure and simple. They aren't making any fanfare about it, but there it is. They have just made open disclosure."

But what do the messages say?

Dr. Ca-paigne focused on a set of information in a couple of the messages that turn out to be some mathematical equations. They also contain the listing of all the elements in our Periodic Table. I suppose those equations may make some sense to a physicist or engineer, but do not mean anything to me. I clearly understand how Dr. Camp-igne came to the translation since he explains it very well. But, as to what the meaning of the equations are, I could not venture a guess.

It is curious, though, that during his presentation Dr. Campa-gne mentions there are "words" that they have translated, and some "words" they have not yet begun to understand. He gives an example of a connective word that he knows is connective (joining two or more statements) but does not yet understand the translation of that word.

Debunkers are scared as h-ll of the release of this information as it proves beyond any doubt that they are, and always have been, d-ad wrong. Their careers as debunkers are finished in light of the re-elation of this material. They are already using the only possible "tool" left to them by saying, "That's old information. It's been out there for years."

As usual, they are either just uninformed, or outright l-ing. It is true the document was cleared for release on October 21, 2004. It is true that date is from "years". But it is also true that it WAS NOT released until April 21, 2011.

"No, Virginia, that information has not been available for years."

Researching this development for my show, I have found a great deal of other information that constitutes what most people would call open disclosure.

This is truly blockbuster information. No one from the gov-rnment has stepped in front of the cameras and come clean about ET reality as yet. But, here we have the most sec-et in-elligence organization in the U.S.A. , the National Sec-urity Agency, disclosing openly that there has been contact with intelligent extraterrestrials. Not only that, we have decoded their messages.

You will see that it is the official NSA.GOV website.

Want disclosure? It appears to be here...

Bringing Back Fond Memories Of The Incredible Brian Scott Case

A review and personal remembrance by Timothy Green B-ckley. Brad and Sherry Steiger's Real Aliens, Space Beings And Creatures From Other Worlds Offers No Quick Fix, Just Hours Of Fascinating Reading.

In order to understand the complex nature of the UFO mystery you cannot approach the phenomenon from a short term point of view.

The best prospectus would be as an alien astronaut hovering far above the earth looking down at its multitude of rivers, streams, inlets and tributaries. Likewise, only a veteran of the "UFO w-rs" can hope to understand the dozens and dozens of twists and turns that this mystery has confronted us with since the first modern day "flying saucer" sighting by Kenneth Arnold. There is no single -- or simple -- answer to this puzzle, and so the jigsaw eludes us as we continue to move the pieces about on the matrix board someone, or something else, has constructed for us. A neophyte can easily get lost in the maze of reports, landings, abductions, men in b-ack encounters, cattle mutilations, trips to Mars, and govern-ent cover-ups. Its overwhelming, time consuming, and seems to lead to nowhere. You need more than a compass let me tell you that from years of experience as editor of UFO Uni-erse and other nationally sold magazines on the topic.

Brad Steiger is that veteran, the General Patton of these "UFO Wa-s," who from his lofty position of forty plus years of UFO research, can manage to sort out at least some of the riff from the raff, the hoi from the polloi, and give us various answers that elude the most sincere but undereducated younger UFOlogist. This is best shown throughout the pages of Real Aliens, Space Beings, And Creatures From Other Worlds (Visible Ink, May, 2011)

I must admit in true disclosure fashion that I have been friends with Brad Steiger since we first shook hands at the largest indoor UFO convention every held. Organized by another "ole timer," Jim M-seley managed to gather together over ten thousand of the faithful at the Hotel Commodore in Manhattan to hear some of the most popular UFO researchers of the era (i.e. John Keel, Dr Frank Stranges, Vi Venus, and special guest Roy Thinnes of the popular TV series The Invaders). Since then Steiger and I have consulted and shared information on numerous UFO and paranormal incidents. One of the first we worked on as a team was the case of Brian Scott who had, he claimed, been abducted along with a friend in the Superstition Mountain range outside Phoenix. The case remains unusual in that it was on going for many years and offered a bit more in the way of evidence than your typical UFO abduction episode (if there is such a thing as "typical" in this arena of research). The case also was 'substantial' in that it l involved the participating of a number of high profile parapsychologists from the world of academia.

Let's pass through one of Bob L-zar's worm holes and go back to that point in time when Brad and I were need deep involved with the Bryan Scott abduction as excerpted from the Steiger's most recent work. . .
