Subject: Matthew's Opinion.

April 8, 2011.

I've been waiting to hear what Matthew had to say about Bin Laden and here it is.

This just in. Haven't even had time to read it yet.

With loving greetings from all souls at this station, this is Matthew. So long ago as to be incalculable in linear time, humankind's cellular make-up was crystalline and had as many as 24 DNA strands. Through the ages the dark ones manipulated that genetic make-up in some populations by reducing the light within cells until they were carbon and had only two strands of DNA. The dark ones succeeded in producing civilizations with weakened immune systems susceptible to all kinds of diseases, a greatly shortened lifespan, total loss of spiritual clarity, and severely limited brain capacity. That vast diminishment in health, longevity, spiritual awareness and intelligence has long been the lot of people in third density worlds.

All of this is known to souls living in spirit, so why would any choose to be born into a third density civilization time and time and time again? They do so because in other incarnations they succumbed to rather than surmounted the rampant fear, ignorance, deception and wrongdoing that are the cornerstones of dark control. Each time they choose to complete third density karmic lessons in roles agreed upon with all others who want to share the lifetime so all can achieve balanced experiencing and start back up the ladder spiritually and intellectually. Each time the souls are convinced that this time in personage they will retain the light with which all infants come.

However, time and again their determination to successfully maneuver through a world where darkness flourishes became mired in the actuality of living in those low density conditions. Thus for millennia Earth's residents unwittingly have been captives of the lies perpetrated and perpetuated by on-planet puppets of the dark forces. Always a few persons did heed messages from soul level and spoke the truth, but their voices were cut short or their information was distorted, and deception and the massive negativity issued from it continued to reign.

About seven decades past in your timing, Earth cried out for help to end that destructive cycle. In response, the highest universal council created the master plan for her transition out of third density and the return to fifth, where Earth's soul originated and remained even as the accumulating negativity caused her body to spiral downward. The plan included the joint efforts of evolved beings from other civilizations with selected persons on Earth and a timetable for the planet to be out of third density, the end of your year 2012. Even though time which in reality is the prevailing energy frequency is passing more quickly by the day, Earth's timely arrival at the threshold of what was named her Golden Age is certain.

This is not the case for her residents who still are inured to believing and acting in accordance with whatever is told them repeatedly by authorities. The numbers of those who are light-receptive are increasing; however, through ignorance of truths, many others are still in the dark. In her love for all of her residents, Earth wants every one to accompany her into fourth density, but to do so, they must accept the light that will enable their physical survival in the higher frequencies that the planet is fast approaching.

On and off-planet members in the vanguard of the light forces, who know that a great deal must be accomplished rapidly, agreed that it must begin with the emergence of truths so the peoples will demand the changes that have been formulated to achieve a transformed and peaceful world. The members agreed that no time can be wasted in disclosing the truths that the Ill-minati have kept hidden by assassinating knowledgeable persons or ridiculing them into professional oblivion and labeling anyone who believes them a conspiracy theorist.

The members also agreed that something dramatic was required to get the peoples' attention; however, because it is your world, it was up to your leaders to decide what that would be. Announcing that members of other civilizations are among you required resolving myriad details before it could be properly presented, and the suggestion that all truths be told straightforwardly was vetoed because there was no agreement as to which should be revealed first in essence, which finger should be pulled out of the dike. Some felt that would best be achieved by announcing the death of Osama bin Laden, the officially accused mastermind of 9/11. They felt that announcement could be veered into exposing the truth about the horrific events of that day almost ten years ago, and it would eliminate fear in the people who believe what they so often have been told: No one is safe as long as bin Laden is alive.

Only when that suggestion was raised did some in the group, including US President Obama, know for certain that the man had been dead for almost a decade, and those few vehemently denounced the suggestion. But since no one had any other idea that would get the attention of the world, the majority voted to kill bin Laden and later publicly explain why that story was released.

It can be argued that deception to achieve a positive goal is better than deception to embark upon a negative goal. It is not our desire or our purpose to judge the decision, much less judge those who made it, but only to relate the information given us by Earth's monitors in Nirvana. They do not know how the explanation for the decision will come because the responsible parties are still discussing strategies for the next steps.

Regardless of how this plays out, by the end of next year, the light will have vanquished all darkness on Earth; this has been assured from the beginning of her ascension. You can best serve in your capacity as lightworkers by neither condoning nor condemning the bin Laden story, but rather by adding your light to its intention to speed disclosure of all truths so reforms also can come swiftly. And for those leaders who know the greater urgency, the intention is for all persons to have the opportunity to embrace the light within truth before it is too late for them to physically go along with Earth if they chose that journey in their soul contracts.

Today is Mother's Day in many countries around your world. We join you in honoring these souls who agreed to accept the most demanding of lifelong responsibilities.

The love of all light beings throughout this universe is reinforcing your light, and many of God's emissaries are walking with you side by side.
