Subject: The Life Of Ellie. Part 4 of 4.
May 11, 2011.

This talks about a space person dropping in to see her son.

She agreed that there are renegade Pleiadians rebels - when I asked her about a remark in Barbara Marciniak's publication that mentions negative Pleiadians.

Ellie said it is her understanding that Earth is an experimental world that consists of a living library, a school of higher learning, a playground where many species can mingle and adapt to other species a testing ground. Other worlds have brought seedlings to it to see how they would interact with other races of beings. She said many of the species here exist as people on other planets. She gave the example of praying mantises. She said there are three praying-mantis people, highly skilled surgeons, on her Father's ship, who have been assigned to assist Plen in maintaining her wellbeing. She said that the Star Wars bar scene, where many strange beings gathered to mingle, was pretty much what it was like on her Father's ship. This chapter is the final one in Earth's duality phase. She praised Gaia whom she said had been through hell with us. She said she sees Gaia as a very loving, dedicated spirit who volunteered to bring life to this planet when it was created. I would add: a good sport. She said that many starseeds are now completing their contracts and after a grand reunion celebration, will return to their own worlds. Perhaps that's what Archangel Michael meant when he said recently that it was time for many to graduate.

Following our conversation, Ellie sent me an email with a few additional memories. Let me append that email:

Hi Steve!

I hope you knew I was not referring to sexual needs when I said "all my needs have been met all through my life"! LOL! Although those needs were satisfied as well - I did spread a lot of Pleiadian unconditional love around

- confusing many men who had never before - and probably never since - experienced that vibration. I got a LOT of comments such as "I don't understand ... I don't know what is going on but you are different ... I can't explain what I feel but ... " I loved them all! And there were more than a few! But I never had an unwanted pregnancy or STD! I have been SO protected!

I was thinking just now of some of the unexpected blessings I have received - among which were many cars given to me by friends who were buying newer cars and wanted to know if I could use their "old" one (instead of using them for trade-ins). One favorite - a 1986 Buick Century - was given to me by a Russian lady in 1999 - Jerry and I drove up in his car to a Denver, CO suburb to collect it - spent a delightful weekend with her.

A drunk woman hit that car head on with Jerry driving it a short distance up the road to my daughter's house - he was going 25 around a very sharp curve - she came barreling around at about 75 mph and lost control. Totaled my car - Jerry was okay other than broken nose and loose teeth from hitting the steering wheel when the floor buckled up under his feet. He still has a problem with a loose flap of skin inside his nose that makes him feel he needs to blow it but nothing comes out. Very annoying!

I have come into contact with so many special people during my life journey! All pre-agreed, I am sure! Pre-planned on a higher level. I forgot to mention an interesting time when Jerry and I were in Sedona, AZ at Boynton Canyon. Jerry had been in long time contact with an alien being called Amtron - a "technician" with whom Jerry worked on a ship on special projects. Amtron asked if he could switch bodies with Jerry for a few minutes to see our planet through Jerry's eyes. Jerry gave permission and I watched the body exchange. When completed, Amtron slowly turned his (Jerry's) head, looking around the landscape, commenting on what a beautiful planet Earth is! Tears began rolling down his face. Amtron, startled, asked what was happening - was Jerry's face melting? I explained how emotions sometimes trigger tears of joy. Then we got into a conversation about emotions and tears - something entirely strange and new to him! Another time, Amtron exchanged bodies with Jerry when a friend was visiting me and we got into conversation about technical matters that I had no answers for so we turned to Amtron for answers. During Amtron's conversation with her, my cat came into the room and brushed against Jerry's leg - Amtron looked down, taken by surprise, asking why a furry creature was in my living space. I explained about "pets" and how they share living spaces with people who supply food and shelter for them. He said that was surprising to him since furry creatures were supposed to be self-sufficient - hunters, etc. I explained how city life was not supportive of feral creatures without human help. And that a very loving relationship exists between animals and humans when they choose to share living space. And that reminds me of when I began referring to Planinitar as "Plen" - he asked about that and I told him it was my pet name for him - he said "But I am not a pet!" Then I had to explain how pet names were used as an informal, intimate address among friends. He finally accepted that it was not a bad thing. LOL! My friend who communicates with Plen refers to him as "The Plenster" which confused Plen even more. hee hee. Oh, and another thing, Mom and I came into a very low profile lifestyle by choice, for our protection - there were negative beings who would have loved to do harm - take us hostage or just interfere with our mission - if they knew how to locate us. They were looking for us to be living in high style as befitting "royalty" - not in the poverty we accepted by choice for security reasons. You stirred up a LOT of thinking, Steve! I guess that is a good thing? Oiling up the storage cabinet drawers and dusting off files! LOL! Namaste

Well, is that not the strangest biography you may have ever read? I feel incredibly fortunate to have known Ellie for several years and am more and more amazed the more I hear about her life. She's served Earth probably more than we might know or suspect. She and her other Pleiadian and galactic friends have kept this planet from spiraling into the hands of the dark and are part of the cosmic assistance we're getting to prepare us all for Ascension. Thank you, El, or Amppa, soon to be Queen Amppa, I presume. When you're riding in your coronation carriage, I know you'll be remembering your 2000 terrestrial Volkswagen and your days in a harem and smiling seraphically.

You and Maxine!

Steve, look what you've done! Now I can't stop thinking! LOL!
I was thinking about relationships on the Pleiades - there are no long term relationships (as compared to Earth type long term) or commitments unless both parties are agreeable to that kind of arrangement. Since we live to be 1,000 years old (or more if desired), why would we want to "read the same book for a thousand years when there are so many more books to be read"! Relationships would go stale after a few hundred years. There is no need to go into se-ual relationships as children are conceived and tended in a much different way than here. And pleasure of touch and sp-ritual interaction are beyond description so nothing "bad" or "s-nful" applies. In the case of Mother and Father, I suppose they "read all the books they needed for their purpose, entertainment and information" and chose to stay together "forever" as a perfectly balanced couple. I feel that applies to Plen and me as he is my chosen mate, and I, it seems, am his. So he will be my "Prince" when I return home until I assume my stately responsibilities. Another funny story about Amtron, Jerry's technical coworker: Amtron had a question about a project he and Jerry were working on so he transported himself physically into Jerry's workspace in a computer shop, in broad daylight - luckily in a secluded corner so he didn't scare the c-ap

out of observers - however, one fella did spot him and after Amtron left, the tech asked Jerry "Who was that weird fellow? Why was he dressed like that?" Jerry said he was a friend who popped by to invite him to a masquerade party. LOL! Amtron is short - about 4 ft or so - stocky built
- I think greyish cast to his skin - and was wearing a cape and one piece uniform.

Must have been quite a spectacle! HA!

As for my "story", I don't pretend to know all things! Just sharing my personal beliefs, feelings and knowings at this time - but who knows what else is waiting to be revealed in the next "now"!

Okay, now I am through thinking for today - I think! *grin***

til later

hugs
