This talks about how you should treat your kin-folks in case they are not interested in ascending.

But as humans they have the potential and with the new waves of energy and the enlightened consciousness that will make itself more and more apparent in the times ahead, those who are closer to an understanding that they are more than they think they are, that they are s-iritual beings having a physical experience, will move in a very accelerated level or manner to the newer levels, the higher levels, the more advanced levels of consciousness that are the human potential, that are part of that which is the multidimensional nature of a human being.

It would be erroneous to stay in a restricted constricted human experience because one is afraid that even though they themselves might have an awareness of that which is Ascension and higher levels of consciousness, that because other family members, especially beloved family members do not, that they themselves would not move forward in their experience. This rejection of Ascension because of the false premise that their loved ones will not move forward, for they are not as advanced, is an understanding that is underrated, that is not comprehensive to the understanding that each individual as a creator being has a purpose and a plan. Sometimes that purpose or plan is to move forward in Ascension, sometimes it is not. If one who has that awareness and understanding deliberately at the time chooses not to move forward, then they may find themselves involving themselves in a very long process where they return back to the place they now stand. It must be understood that despite the love one might have for any other family member, for the whole of the family, that each and all have available to them the Ascension experience. But if they do not choose this at this time, it does not mean that they will not return back to S-irit, that they will not return back into the s-ul.

It is simply that their so-l has chosen another set of experiences that must be respected and honored, and that the way forward in such a matter when one sees a family member who is less impressed and less convinced that this experience of Ascension may happen, is to simply hold one's ground, to radiate that confidence and belief that this is a possibility that needs to be considered, so that the individual when certain changes in consciousness come forward, can move into such comprehension themselves. Is this clear?

Questioner: Yes, yes it is, thank you. Do you by chance have a closing message please?

The-Ascension-Experience

Cosmic Awareness: This Awareness does not have a closing message at this time. It wishes to make further comment on the last concept of Ascension; this of course being the Ascension experience that is available to all of humanity. Many of course do not believe that Ascension is a valid concern or concept, and in this it must be recognized that they are simply following their so-l's path and their sou-'s purpose at this time in having their physical experience. This extends to those who may create in their lives an experience of the collapse of society.

Those who need to have physical experiences of catastrophe and destruction, of calamity and downfall, need to have this experience for it is their choice as sentient beings, spiritual beings having a physical existence that they have chosen.

To try to force one into accepting Ascension will never work. One cannot force another into such a belief, as one must come to this point in their own way at their own time.

Many will leap forward in consciousness, for there are certain planned actions, the release of certain levels of consciousness into the collective mind that will catapult many into a higher more evolved level of comprehension, but not everyone will choose to experience this, not everyone will choose to ascend.

All of those, even those who are most beloved who do not choose to ascend, must be honored and recognized as individuals who are choosing to follow their soul purpose.

Despair often is involved in the understanding that a loved one may not ascend at this time, but this is a false despair based on ignorance and a lack of understanding, for the human soul is eternal and even if death occurs, even if one goes down another path that will lead away for a time, the eternal soul will always return back into the fabric of the soul, and will always seek reuniting and reunification with the Divine and with God.

This is a promise that the Divine God-Essence has made to all who choose to have the physical experience for the benefit of enhancing the soul and enhancing God Itself. This is all for today.

Questioner: Thank you. That was beautiful, very much so.
