"World at Break Point"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2008/02/28>

Thursday February 28, 2008

Author Steve Quayle discussed flash points of increasing tension around the world, including m-litary unrest, financial meltdowns, and UFO activity. Recent fireball in the Pacific Northwest wasn't actually a meteor-- it was a UFO being shot down by a bl-ck budget US mil-tary unit using exotic new weaponry, he reported. There's an ongoing battle between the milit-ry and ET craft, and the US has developed s-cret spacecraft such as the huge triangular TR3-B, he claimed. Quayle warned that Russia was returning to its Cold War stance with the US, and China, Iran and Pakistan were also concerns. On the economic front, there is too much debt. Six million Americans will lose their homes, the dollar will fall even lower and the middle class will be wiped out, as part of a plan by the Global E-ite, he suggested. For more, view a page of links he set up, covering the subjects of this show. Quayle also touched on his research into giants. He discussed the remains of a 12-18 ft. tall ...

"Special: UAE Port Controversy"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2006/02/22>

Wednesday February 22, 2006

In this special program, six guests addressed the controversial United Arab Emirates port deal, which would put Dubai Ports World in charge of running major US shipping ports. In order of appearance: Maritime Master Capt. Kelly Sweeney suggested that the issue wasn't so much who owned the ports, but what security measures were being taken to ensure safety to Americans. He strongly believes we need increased Coast Guard inspections and that every shipping container should be screened for radioactivity. Consultant Charles R. Smith commented that the UAE have been close milit-ry allies to the U-ited States and have no obvious associations with terrorists. Yet like the Saudis, their country may harbor many enemies to the US, he noted. Author Steve Quayle said "something doesn't pass the smell test" on the UAE deal, and related it to a larger "globalist" agenda that seeks to bring down the US financial structure in order to install a one-w-rld economy. Foreign concerns ...

"Giants: Evidence & Legend"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2005/11/07>

Monday November 7, 2005

Steve Quayle returned to discuss the phenomena of giants, which he views as a "Rosetta Stone" for understanding history and genetics. Myths, legends and oral traditions of almost every culture have all talked about the time of the giants, he noted. He shared details from an email he received from a US Air F-rce officer about a dead giant he observed in Afghanistan eight months ago who was flown to a secret military base in Europe. The giant was estimated to weigh about 1100 lbs., appeared to be twice the height of a normal human, and had an unusual odor. Quayle also revealed that an Arctic giant image/video that had been circulating on the Internet was actually fictional footage shot as a promotion for a new video game called Shadow of the Colossus. Yet, he believes there is currently a joint mili-ary operation underway to retrieve ancient artifacts related to Admiral B-rd's findings in the Arctic and the fake footage could have been used to cover any leaks. For more on ...

"Evening of Commentary"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2005/09/22>

Thursday September 22, 2005

In a unique Evening of Commentary, six different guests appeared, each for a half-hour time slot. After a first hour of Open Lines, Steve Quayle joined the show to discuss earth changes and civil preparedness. A recent series of quakes in the San Joaquin Valley in California could indicate a dangerous situation, he said, noting that a geologist reported seeing lightning emanating from the ground, which has been associated with the Kobe quake. Next up, Howard Bloom talked about his disappointment with NASA's recent moon mission plan. He advocated usage of the more economical space planes to get material inorbit, and outlined how the space program could pay for itself by beaming down an energy source, and creating opportunities for space tourism. Frosty Wooldridge joined the show to summarize the problems associated with il-egal immigration and why he believes it's the biggest problem facing America. Three million ille-al immigrants enter the country each year, taking over jobs, an ...

"Health Care & History of Giants"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2005/08/20>

Saturday August 20, 2005

In the first hour, Dr. John Abramson, a clinical instructor at the Harvard Me-ical School and author of Overdosed America, called the state of America's health care system a "national emergency."According to Abramson, 40% of the most quoted me-ical studies do not stand up when the studies are repeated.

Abramson hinted out that most clinical studies are funded by drug companies, and are five times more likely to show a given drug works.

Abramson also revealed that Americans are paying twice as much for health care than the citizens of 21 other industrialized nations, yet living less time in good health.

At least 30% of health care received by Americans is not necessary and is often harmful, he explained, resulting in a staggering $600 billion in wasted health care costs. Steve Quayle discussed the origins and historical accounts of giants. ...
