"Genetic Nightmares"

Wednesday August 6, 2003

Author Steve Quayle (stevequayle.com) appeared on Wednesday's program to discuss his new book Genetic Armageddon. He believes "we have neither the moral or ethical base" to deal with upcoming developments in genetic engineering, and abhors the idea of headless human bodies being grown to supply organs.

Such technologies as the "s-ul catcher chip", and the mixing of human and animal DNA will backfire, Quayle said, as he suspects they did in ancient times. He suggested that the G-ds from classical mythology, who sometimes were part animal, may reflect genetic experimentation gone awry. Quayle also speculated on unusual activity in Antarctica, citing reports of "exobiotic" bacteria, which he said may be cultivated on that continent as a kind of bioweapon. H-tler had previously established s-cret bases there, where genetic and biological experiments were likely conducted, he added. Further, Quayle said a trusted source warned him of a "b-ack wind," which is being prepared to c ...

"Philadelphia Experiment and Beyond"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/07/21>

Monday July 21, 2003

Al Bielek, who said he was a participant in the Philadelphia Experiment, was the main guest on Monday night. In his life as "Edward Cameron," he said he was aboard the U.S.S. Eldridge on August 12, 1943, when the ship became invisible as part of a mi-itary test. ...

"ET Contacts"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/06/09>

Monday June 9, 2003

James Gilliland (eceti.org), the founder of ECETI and the Self Mastery Earth Institute, was the main guest on Monday night. Discussing his ET and interdimensional contacts that occur at his ranch in Trout Lake, Washington, Gilliland said there have been nights when as many as 50 craft have been seen darting around the sky. He described his encounters with "exquisite looking" Pleiadian beings who "time shift" between their world and ours on ships that "totally align with their occupants." Gilliland, who first communicated with the beings in a meditative state, believes they have come here to help us e-olve.

Joining James Gilliland on the program, were UFO researchers Spar Giedeman and Steve Moreno, who have been investigating sightings on the ranch. "James is the continuation of the Billy Meier saga," said Giedeman, who added that he saw a craft in the sky, shortly around the time that Gilliland said they would be there. Of particular interest, were two recent sightings (documen ...

"D-mon Possession"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/05/23>

Friday May 23, 2003

Both the de-onically possessed and people who have helped to exorcise such dem-ns phoned into the program, when George set up a special topic line this Friday night. "I was c-rsed by a w-tch," said Shirley from Phoenix, who said she has undergone around fifty exorcisms to rid her of the numerous demo-s that have plagued her. A caller named Tony said he had "the gift of discernment" (being able to recognize demon-c s-irits), and that he had assisted in two official C-tholic C-urch exorcisms. In the most profound case, he said a woman was possessed by over 200 -emonic entities, and they focused on making contact with the chief or captain of these de-ons. . . .

"Giants and Fallen A-gels"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/04/22>

Tuesday April 22, 2003

Steve Quayle (stevequayle.com), said he's on "a quest to find out (the) real history," when he appeared on Tuesday night's show. A bioterror-sm expert, Quayle has also spent thirty years investigating arcane texts like the Book of En-ch to uncover the lost past of giants and fallen an-els. He said that evidence for giants such as complete skeletons has been shunted away over the years in obscure locations, like the remains of a 9-ft red-haired giant he claimed was in a museum in Lovelock, Nevada. Quayle also mentioned a mummified body which was 12 ft. tall that's in a museum in South Africa. He added that some giants' heads were 4 to 6 times larger than a human head and had protruding jaws containing two sets of teeth with two complete chewing surfaces.

Quayle believes these giants were sired by fallen -ngels, who became "fallen" after they mated with human females. Fallen ang-ls according to Quayle, had bodies but they could change form as opposed to dem-ns which he describ ...

"Haunted in Brooklyn"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/04/03>

Thursday April 3, 2003

It began with an ominous sense of being stared at said Elaine Mercado, who has documented her experiences living in a haunted home in Brooklyn in her book Grave's End. This Thursday night, she presented a spellbinding narrative of the disturbing events that occurred to her and her family. At first she simply heard names being called out and mumbling, but then she began to undergo "suffocating dreams" where it felt as though she was being pushed into the bed. "We started seeing little orbs the size of a golf ball bouncing along the ceiling," Mercado said. Her daughter was also experiencing odd phenomena, such as having water dumped on her and being hit by a gerbil cage that was floating in the air.

While cleaning out a room, they found a very small white wedding dress wrapped in newspaper that had been stored inside a wall. Sometime after that a p-ychic visited the home and out-of-the-blue said she saw a little lady hiding under the stairs. Eventually the famed ghost hunter ...

"Iraq & Open Lines"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/03/28>

Friday March 28, 2003

Bioter-orism and disaster preparedness expert, Steve Quayle (stevequayle.com), spent the first half of Friday night's show discussing the w-r. This was followed by Open Lines which included tales from time travelers.

It's like a "four-tiered Monopoly board of the Middle East it seems like there's so many moves and counter moves that finally one wonders what game is being played," Quayle said of the current wa- situation and the behind the scenes machinations of countries such as China and Russia.

"The rhetoric in Russia has been rising dramatically," Quayle said, who reported that they had sent emissaries to Iraq to remove their se-ret spy files in the advent of Saddam's departure. "North Korea is the glove, and China is the hand in the glove," Quayle added about one of A-erica's other concerns. "Things are profoundly different," in the year 2056 said the first "time traveler" on Friday's Open Lines. He claimed to be able to travel back to our time via a *womb-like devic ...

"W-r: Now & Later"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/03/20>

Thursday March 20, 2003

It was another Coast to Coast under wa-time this past Thursday night, with George presenting a six-hour marathon show for the second night in a row. While seer Sean David Morton was the guest for the latter half of the show, the first three hours (available on Streamlink) featured different mil-tary experts commenting on the w-r situation. ...

"Visions of -ar"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/03/19>

Wednesday March 19, 2003

As w-r broke out on Wednesday night, George stayed on the air for a full six hours combining updates from the Middle East with open lines. Callers phoned in their reactions to the new wa- and how it was affecting their lives.

George also set up special topic line "for people who have the ability during troubled times to get a vision." One of the most fascinating calls on the Vision Line came from Ruthanna of Atlanta. "It concerns homing pigeons," she said. While there is a tight watch on the US borders, what she saw unfolding was the releasing of birds carrying harmful biologicals landing at random places in the US. She was particularly struck at what an effective we-pon this was, and how it was such a contrast to the barrage of 9-11. Other caller's visions detailed a car b-mb at LAX, a huge object striking Mexico, and people dissolving on the floor from a red liquid. ...

"Geopolitical Machinations"

<http://www.coasttocoastam.com/show/2003/03/03>

Monday March 3, 2003

David Hagberg (hagflan@aol.com) the author of numerous fast-paced international thrillers, appeared on Monday night's program. Eerily, he described events similar to 9/11 in Joshua's Hammer, which he wrote in 1998 and featured Ossama bin Laden as a character. "All the signs were there," Hagberg said. Instead of waging wa-, he suggested one effective way to reduce ter-orism would be for the US to launch a marketing campaign to convince the Islamic world that Ameri-ans are a friendly people.

"The first thing that passed into my mind was sabotage," said Hagberg when asked about the Columbia Shuttle disaster. "I could think of a thousand ways it could happen," but one way he delineated was via a plastic explosive hidden in the landing gear door that would be triggered by a pressure switch.
