This talks about life on Sirius B.

TARMAIN FROM SIRIUS B

I am from Sirius B. I tell this story in hopes that you, our grounded ones of Earth, can learn from our ascension and integrate these lessons into your reality. Sirius and Earth, Terra, as we have called it, have always been closely linked. Our world was also a water world; yet it was not the same as earth water. My form on Sirius B was similar to that of your cetaceans, but at this point, I seldom limit myself to any form and prefer my emanation of light. I am all I wish to be, and I have completed all of my experiences, including the ascension of my planet and star system. You may call me Tarmaine.

Dear Earth Ones, please know that I use your language, as our language was completely t-lepathic. Therefore, it would be a language that you could not understand. Because our translator has downloaded me into her consciousness, I am able to access your language and communicate with you in a manner that you can understand. I speak in terms of I/me/my for the sake of your earth language. However, no such pronouns exist at my vibration. We are all in oneness and commune constantly in the d-vine unity of the One. We can track our consciousness back into individuality if we wish, but most of us keep that experience only as a memory. We return our consciousness to the third dimension solely to guide the grounded ones, as I am doing now.

I have come to you in your time to tell you our story of Planetary Ascension. Perhaps my story will ignite your memory, for many of us have incarnated on your world, which is also a water world. Furthermore, we have learned to incarnate in human forms to act as guides to those of humanity who could open their hearts and minds to us. In fact, there are many of us who volunteered to take form, both human and whale, on Earth during your time to assist with your Planetary Ascension.

ABOUT SIRIUS B

Sirius, located in the Canes Major constellation, can be considered directly upstream from our solar system in a cosmic sense in that refers to its relative position in the Milky Way galaxy. Sirius B is part of a Triune Star System of Sirius A, Sirius B and Sirius C. (<http://sirianrevelations.net/the-source/the-sirius-ra-connection/>) The planet of my origin, which is called by a te-epathic name that is not translatable to your language, was pivotal in the ascension of our solar system. Like Earth, our planet was the last planet that was ready for the shift into the fifth dimension. Hence, we, like Earth, were the trigger for the ascension of our Solar System, Sirius B. I speak in past tense because our planet resonates in the fifth dimension and beyond. We are now an ascended planet of Light. However, just like our friends the Arcturians, we still hold a presence in the Galactic Sky. All of Sirius B is beyond polarity, separation, and limitation, but I speak to you from my masculine expression of Tarmaine to better tell my story of unification with my Div-ne Complement, Shaleem.

The liquid we lived in was more viscous than your water. The bottom, ground, or base of our atmosphere was much like the bottom of your ocean. Visualize a reality where the atmosphere, air in your world, was a viscous, watery substance. What would be your rivers and oceans would be our valleys and caves. These valleys and caves were filled with the same viscous, watery substance as the atmosphere, except that the atmosphere was the denser. As we moved farther away from the ocean floor, our atmosphere became less and less dense. Because of the density close to the planetary floor there was little or no light, and the ones who lived there became luminescent to create their own light.

Those of us who lived at the bottom of our atmosphere worshipped the darkness that was around us, whereas those of us who lived at the top of our atmosphere worshipped the light that we had sought through many generations of evolution. We believed at that time that the more evolved citizens of our society, such as our Council of Light, lived in the upper atmosphere. These High Councilors, myself included, were the leaders of the Council of Light, as well as the leaders of the upper atmosphere. From the perspective of our Council of Light, the less evolved lived in the lower atmosphere. We believed that this separation was a sign of our superiority and the inferiority of those who worshipped the darkness.

On the other hand, the Council of Darkness believed that we, the Council of Light, were heretics and had denied our heritage when we abandoned our Source by moving away from the surface of the planet. Before our ascension, we did not realize that our society was based on a hierarchical system, filled with separation and limitation. We just both thought that we were right. The Councilors of Darkness lived near the valleys and caves in the Grounded Temples, and the Councilors of the Light resided in Temples that floated near the surface of our liquid atmosphere. These Temples floated because they were near the threshold between the third/fourth dimension and the fifth dimension.

Just as dimensions one through three intermingles in your world, dimensions one through four were intermingled in our world. Therefore, magic, imagination and all forms of psychic powers were always a main element of our society. For example, all of our communications were telepathic. We had no need for arms, as we moved things telekinetically, nor legs, as we swam and/or teleported ourselves.

On my world, males and females were always equal. In fact, we could change from male to female, or vice versa, within a single incarnation. We were almost androgynous, yet we still had Divine Complements with whom we eventually merged in preparation for our entry into the fifth dimension. Because our society had dimensions one through four intermingled, it made our ascension process into the fifth dimension much easier. However, we were not without the prelude of extreme polarities that your planet is now experiencing.

We had to amplify our polarities, just as your planet is doing now, in order to stretch the rubber band of light versus darkness to the greatest extreme. In this manner, we prepared for our ultimate ascension past all polarities, into the fifth dimension and beyond. As our time of ascension drew closer we, too, found that the first leaders to amass a great following were the leaders of Darkness, representing the old guard of separation and limitation. These leaders, who were firmly based in the familiar, used fear to control their legions. The leaders of light used love to guide their legions and, therefore, took much longer to amass a following. Fear is a choice of perception that is difficult to ignore. Unfortunately, love is a choice of perception that is often difficult to choose.

THE PROCESS OF SELF-AWARENESS

All of our inhabitants sprang from the depths of our caverns. Therefore, it took eons and eons for enough inhabitants to go through the long process of self-awareness in order to resonate to, and live in, the lighter, less dense vibrations of our atmosphere. Fortunately, when we died and reincarnated we had the choice to return to the frequency of form we had attained in our previous incarnation. After more generations than we could count, the population divided into those who would not change, and therefore, remained in the darkness, and those who had moved into the light and were ready to change even further to move into the next dimension.

The forces of the Light Council lived in unity. Therefore, each leader had to learn to rule their self with SELF. On the other hand, the Council of Darkness remained set in the pattern of an elite few ruling the many. This was largely why the Forces of Darkness were more powerful near the end. They had fewer changes to make and did not have to face, or transmute, their vast power of habit. The Forces of Light, on the other hand, had to learn an entirely new manner of guiding themselves before they could guide others.

Those who dwelled in the Darkness were not all dark. In fact, those who had stayed in the shadows and created their own illumination secretly gathered with their extreme opposites, the Threshold Dwellers. The Threshold Dwellers were never members of the elite Council of Light. They were, instead, members of our society who could no longer hate the Council of Darkness, as did the Council of Light. The Council of Light and the Council of Darkness were staunch enemies for as long as we could remember, and they refused to relinquish their traditions, or their belief that their way was better.

The followers of Light had risen to the lightest area of our planet by finding their SELF within. However, over time, the Councilors of Light became corrupted by their power. Once they had risen to the highest atmosphere and become High Councilors they stopped looking within because they no longer wanted to change. Instead, they wanted only to rule.

Another group, those who were not among the ruling class and later known as the Threshold Dwellers, quietly went about their SELF-realization without the temptation of being rulers. Hence, they could continue to see their own darkness and their own inner enemies. Through this process of SELF-realization, they had evolved beyond the need for enemies. They had faced their enemies within and no longer needed to project their fear out onto others, creating outer enemies.
