Subject: The Kings Chamber. Part 2.
Sept. 25, 2011.

This explains what Thoth had to do with the building of The Great Pyramid.

As such if you were to enter these pyramids with such limited belief you would not interface with the frequency in proper attunement. If you will attempt to see its dissonance or its disappearance you would equally gain very little. Truly if man attempts to subjectively define the process, it would not be of benefit because phi pyramids become living holograms with conscious sentience that ever expands and redefines itself in exponential paradigms of higher dimensional geometry.

Construction Processes

The Phi Resonance instruments used for Pyramidal construction processes were mentally tuned to produce harmonic wave forms associated with the unified fields. These tunings were intricately matched to the measure of the Pyramid base and to the appropriate resonating cavities within the Pyramid.

The placement of the sound-engineering technicians around the Pyramid were carefully aligned for the desired anti-gravity application, spaced at key points around the base. The instruments were employed in different toning and timing for staged applications of the construction. Specific sustained sound vibration enabled the building blocks to defy gravity.

But again, keep in mind the original construction occurred in thought field before the physical blocks were manifested, floated into place via multidimensional sound engineering. And while we realize this seems totally fantastic and unimaginable, it is a technology that has been employed previously in more advanced civilizations on the Earthplane.

Space and time as you understand them ripple through each other. They do not behave as you think they do. Presently you understand your laws of physics only in linear application within 3d. This will be confusing to you, but the Giza Complex has no true beginning point in linear time. But if you wish to pinpoint a date of construction for the Giza complex, we will say that the present version of the complex was manifested through Thoth and the Orion M-sters originally some 38,000 years ago. Yet that is a fleeting number, and is only valid from one linear perspective.

Question to Metatron: Amazing. You mention a construction point with Thoth and the Orion Ma-ters around 38,000 years ago. Isn't that a beginning point? Metatron: Ah, but we said it was a fleeting number, and that it dissolved and reappeared many times within physicality. And yes it is confusing, (*gentle laughter) but it is not the only time they were manifested in stone, in materialization. Indeed, part of the reason our answer may seem confusing to you, is that you are observing from the assumption that time is linear.

So we tell you the Pyramid was indeed manifested before the time you query, and formed in physicality again approximately 12,500 years ago you see.

So what was the beginning? There never was one. But we will say that 38,000 years ago is the time most relative to your current paradigm of reality. There are many Earths. We have told you that before.

Octahedrons and their complexities are among the geometric mechanism that connects all realities. So let us say that there are no specific fixed construction time-points of Giza. That is because at Giza you are in a precise intersection of time-space holograms of multiple dimensional reality of the Omni-Earth.

All holographic programs of what you term time coexist & juncture in that precise point. That is the logic of why the Pyramids were positioned there. In truth you have many pasts, many futures and many coexisting paradigms at Giza. All are valid, and all co exist simultaneously. Mas-ers, you must understand that there is no singular version of reality.

Giza is in truth an octahedron. As such the Pyramids at Giza are a conduit that connects many worlds, inner and outer. There are many such pyramids and conduits that serve this role, but none quite so potently as Giza. And Ma-ters, there is much much more that occurs in such points.

Points of Multidimensional Interface

The unique aspects of your particular physical world, within your specific NOW, are quite dependent on your existence and perceptions in it. As such the physical universe does not contain physical objects that can be perceived by those whose existence is not within your collective NOW.

Many other alternate forms of reality and consciousness coincide and coexist within the same space that your present earth occupies. Your simultaneous lifetimes exist in these, and it is the same space you live in, but other versions of you do not perceive the same physical objects you do because these other parallels are of a different frequency. Just as AM and FM radio waves travel in the same space without interfering with one another, so do parallel realities exist in the same space less illusion of physical space.

Now there are exceptions, as certain vectors of your paradigms can and do interface at specific flash-points. These are stargates, portals, and wormholes in your vernacular. But your scientists and academics are yet several centuries from understanding this.

And so these points on your planet are not understood, and are vastly unrecognized. Yet they exist on many grid-points on the earth. The points are portals, and within these magnificent portals realities merge. Multidimensionality is a validity of the unified field, of quantum physics. It exists, it is real. It is not science fiction, but it is indeed sacred science!

Few are truly able to adjust their human frequency to fully optimize Mer-Ka-Na within these points of multidimensionality, which is requisite to fully explore them. But many of you indeed have the opportunity to expand beyond and increase your present light quotient within them.

The Pyramids at Giza and indeed other such power nodes & sacred sites were built precisely on such vector point-coordinates. That is why they are still revered. But the knowledge of their placement, construction and purpose has been lost.

Life Force Generators

In highly simplified terms, these interface points provide the coded crystalline light-force of life itself, and provide the means for thought to be solidified into physical matter or for probable events to be manifested and coagulated into experience.

On a higher level, all of you understand this, despite your groans of incomprehension. It is only your duality filters, your relatively limited grasp within the illusion of human existence on the earth plane that makes this seem so unlikely. So understand that these power-vector points are in essence life force generators. There are twelve such interface points that connect all paradigms, all probable and parallel realities.

The Vortex

The King's Pyramid of Giza exists not only in all twelve dimensions on your Earth Plane, but also in your Earth's parallels. There are other such inserted manifestations on your Earth, but none quite so tangible as the Great Pyramid. Pyramids exist on all of your solar system planets. All are aligned to Orion, and all are great communication devices in one aspect, although there are variations in their properties and dimension. That is because the other planets support dimensional fields different in number and nature than those of the Earth.

The King's Chamber is not the center of mass of the Great Pyramid, rather it is where the primary energetic vortex is centered. The vortex is the true alignment. The vertices are oriented to the Earth and to Orion, so as such so they are tilted. The vortical funnel is not straight, rather it is angled.

If you were to place yourself within the vortex, you would wish to stand at an angle, you see. You must know that the energies move, and so they direct themselves. Now, as they are at an angle, then it appears that they are managed by an axis, and that axis rotates here and there.

Now, under the proper circumstances, under very specific conditions, the entire chamber would also appear to rotate, even as the heavens rotate creating an indoor planetarium within the very pyramid. All of this comes about because the complex harmonic frequency makes it so.

Now if I were to give to you the specific date as you had asked earlier, all of this would then disappear for you. Can you understand? In time and date and linear sequence, the vortices would then not exist in the same vector, or in the same specific astronomical gravity fields, and you would not then gain the benefits.

It is multi-dimensional, timeless; such is the nature of higher dimensional vortical-portals. They crystal-shift and electro-magnetically attract. They cannot be pinned down in linear time. Truly, because linear time only exists in the duality of lower dimensional fields, and such vortex-portal matrixes exist above that level by a complex merging of hyper dimension and grid.
