Subject: UFO Crash Near Phoenix, Arizona. Part 2.
2012.

April 18,

This talks about the insectoid space people.

"I called back that we had a live one. The craft filled with gloved and masked medical personnel to help free the occupant. He was quickly carried outside and placed on a gurney. I remarked that he felt heavy for his size and a few others that had assisted agreed. As the alien was whisked off for medical attention, Professor B-ar examined the inside of the craft.

He found what he thought was a star map depicting the constellation Eridanus and wondered if that might be where the alien was from. After a brief discussion concerning the nature of the communications, Be-r asked me to accompany him to the medical lab. As we talked along the way I referred to the alien being as 'Hank.' The professor asked if that was the name the alien had given me.

"I explained that it was not and that I had chosen that nickname based on it's native American reference to a 'troubled s-irit.' The professor smiled and said, 'Hank it is,' and the name seemed to immediately stick. In the antiseptic, impersonal m-dical room Hank's discomfort was compounded by his complete undressing. While still in great pain he was examined from head to toe. No stone was left unturned, so to speak. They treated him as if he were a baby of some rare animal species being first born into captivity. It became evident that Hank could not communicate with everyone involved so I was asked to be translator. I had no trouble understanding that the normal anesthetics we were administering had little or no effect. Suddenly, with Hank's discomfort still a concern, everyone's attention became divided between the being and a new person arriving on the scene.

"This new person was obviously important yet seemed to make everyone uneasy. Even Hank recoiled in f-ar when he came close. He barked a few stern orders and several people, myself included, marched into a nearby conference room. The man introduced himself as Frank D-ake and told us he was the head of the operation. The reports would hence forth be titled 'Project OSMA' (with an 'S'). As the sound of his continued briefing faded into a day-dream, I thought about how my regimented life had just jumped track and was now speeding off in a totally new direction...'

Forest C-awford, commenting on the incident, states:

"This extraordinary story, according to the witness, is not fiction. Oscar is a simple country person from rural Missouri where he lives with his wife, three children, and a menagerie of stray animals. His life is seemingly uncomplicated and unhurried. However, his eyes reflect a clarity indicative of inner knowledge and understanding.

"We first came to meet this man as the result of a lead from n-clear physicist and renowned Ufologist, Stanton F-iedman. At the 'Show-Me UFO Conference 1989' in St. Louis, Fr-edman asked Bruce W-daman, State Director of Missouri MUFON, if he would attempt to locate a witness that called responding to the 'Unsolved Mysteries' show on the Roswell crash. The person in question had possibly been involved in a crash retrieval while in the military. The tip had come from a former neighbor of Oscar's.

"Wi-aman of course agreed to follow up since Frie-man felt that the witness did not have a phone. So with little else than a name, town, and rumor to go on, the search began. Wida-an and Alex H-rvat, Public Information Officer for Missouri MUFON, arrived in the small town near St. Louis after dark. After questioning a girl at a local convenience mart no further leads were found. Hor-at suggested checking the local bar. This produced a description of a front yard that might be that of the elusive witness. After driving up and down the lane several times, one yard seemed more appropriate than the others so they hesitantly stopped.

Stepping from the car into the country night proved harrowing enough as several large dogs snarled and barked from the surrounding darkness. Widama- was further unnerved when a large black dog began licking his hand as he knocked on the door. Not knowing whether he was being greeted or tasted by the animal, Wida-an was relieved to see someone answer. After a brief explanation of who or what our investigations were, an invitation to sit and talk came as a positive sign. The stranger said he did not know where 'Bill,' the name given Frie-man, was, but that he was his brother. After Wid-man and Hor-at explained their purpose and some of their feelings and ideas he finally conceded that he was in fact the man they were looking for. He explained that his real name was O-car and that the name 'Bill' had been given so he would know where any inquiries were coming from.

"As Os-ar told the story that began this article it became obvious that, because of his mil-tary background, the name given was for his protection.

The account unfolded further to reveal horrible injustices to Hank and to Osc-r himself. At the direction of Dra-e the team conducted med-cal experiments such as spinal taps, marrow sampling, taking organ specimens and other exploratory surgery on Hank WITHOUT anesthesia. Oscar had spent many hours over three months communicating with and growing close to the alien.

One day he stepped between D-ake and Hank with his .45 cal. pistol drawn and demanded an end to the torture. Drake withdrew but the next morning Osc-r had new orders to depart immediately for Saint Al-ans Hospital in Radford, Va., where he was incarcerated for debriefing. He remained isolated for several months until the efforts of Lt.(?) Charles T-rner, Oscar's Commanding Officer, got him to move to a psyc-iatric ward. His family, who had now been out of touch with him for almost three months, was told that Oscar had suffered a head injury during a submarine accident. After spending time under psy-hiatric care, which would damage his milit0ry record, he was oddly enough given an honorable discharge.

"After having returned to civilian life he and his father embarked on a hiking trip to North Dakota. They purposely entered the res-riicted area surrounding the base where -scar had been stationed. Perimeter patrol picked them up for removal from the area. While in their company O-car asked how Hank was doing. One of the guards confided that the alien had died several months earlier.

"The next trip out to the country included myself and David R-pp, a physicist with 13 years experience in the aerospace industry and also Director of Investigations for Missouri MU-ON. Because of our backgrounds in science the discussion focused on technical questions about Oscar's experiences..."

As for the alleged home of 'Hank's' people, Cra-ford states:

"The pattern from the panel inside the ship was confirmed by Ra-p to match stars of the constellation Eridanus as seen FROM EARTH. It was later confirmed by Hank that the stars of origin of his people were Tau Ceti and Epsilon Eridani. In later sessions Os-ar discussed some reasons for the presence of the aliens. He said THEY DO NOT LIKE THE SITUATION WITH SOME OF THE SMALL GREY ALIENS (emphasis ours - Branton). He corrected us when we used the term 'grey' and said that they are actually w-ite. The Tau Cetians feel that the abductions being carried out by some of the Greys ARE A GREAT INJUSTICE TO HUMANITY. 'THEY ARE A PARASITIC R-CE THAT HAS AND IS PREYING ON HUMAN CIVILIZATIONS THROUGHOUT THE UNIVERSE,' Osc-r relayed. He added that our go-ernment's involvement with the grays IS VERY DANGEROUS AND OUT OF CONTROL... Osca- is ADAMANT that the bug people (i.e. Os-ar's term for these creatures - Branton) are using HUMAN FLUIDS FOR SUSTENANCE. They feed by immersing their arms in vats and/or rubbing the fluids on their bodies. HE CLAIMS THAT THEY ARE ALSO KID-APPING CHILDREN..."

To our knowledge 'Os-ar' had in no way at the time been in contact with John L-ar nor any other researcher who has alleged this exact same thing. O-car's claim that these creatures are more whitish or albino in color would seem consistent with accounts concerning SOME branches of the 'serpent ra-e'. Os-ar alleges, not all 'grays' have been described as having the same coloring. Some have been described as plain gray, others blue-gray, gray-green, or grayish white! One source suggests that the 'coloring' has a direct connection with the amount of 'protein formula' which they have access to. Also, Oscar's reference to the 'bug people' may be based on the fact that the reptilian branch known as the grays and others branches of the 'serpent race' are often said to resemble 'praying mantis' like creatures in that their eyes are sometimes bug-like and protruding, and their long arms which often reach down below their knees often appear mantis-like when in their folded or reposed position - elbows pointed downwards and clawed-hands positioned above. In fact, some of the early saurians such as the Tyrannosaurus Rex kept their arms in such a position, elbows pointed down, although many of the modern sauroids possess arms which are now much longer. But a more likely explanation is one that has been given by researcher Ray Keller. Keller's sources indicate that reptilian grays from Reticuli have created a sub-race by assimilating genetic materials from another intelligent (and malevolent) alien species of Insectoids. Therefore some of the "grays" being observed by abductees may actually be reptilian-insectoid genetic hybrids. John Le-r stated in his infamous UFO document (which he posted on the Paranet Computer Bulletin Board) that some of the beings recovered from the earlier crashed disks were mantis-like and reptilian-skinned.
