Foster Gamble:

I think the major battleground coming up will be for the Internet. As long as we can keep the Internet open, we are getting informed so rapidly and getting organized so rapidly that it gives me tremendous confidence about a thriving future. Whereas, through S-PA, P-PA and A-TA and the Cyber S-curity Act and so forth, there are so many attempts by the g-vernment, by corporations and by the U- to take over control of the Internet that I was very concerned and it was my greatest concern when the film was coming out, frankly until the emergence of A-ONYMOUS, because I have been hoping that brilliant computer whizzes from all over the planet would organize in a way, just to protect free speech globally, and I am thrilled that they have.

Daily Bell:

How did you come to know of us? We are not exactly a mainstream publication.

Foster Gamble:

Well, my son, T-evor Gamble, was the one who introduced me to key elements of c-nspiracy and how money really works and finally, the whole perspective of liberty. He gave me lots of things to read, references and websites to go to, and he and I would stay up late arguing night after night for months about these principles. I realized that he was standing on much stronger ethical and logical ground than I was, and invited him to teach me. The Daily Bell was one of the sites that he introduced me to and I also want to proudly let people know that he has just published a book after many years of his own research, called The S-crets to Non-Violent Prosperity The Principles of Liberty. You can check this out on Amazon. I think the Bell readers would really appreciate the job he has done, collecting and simplifying a tremendous amount of data and anticipating and answering the usual objections.

Daily Bell:

Explain how you became interested in Austrian economics and knowledgeable about it.

Foster Gamble:

As we discussed earlier, my son was most instrumental to begin with. I consider the liberty awareness as the third great discovery in my life. The first was Aikido. Aikido is a non-violent martial art and I taught this art for 15 years. When I found there was a way to access universal energy and to protect ones self and one's loved ones, in a non-violent blending way, it was an absolute turning point in my life, that has affected everything that I have done, because then I have gone on to apply those principles in every area, so that was the first one.

The second one was when I came across these inventors who were accessing f-ee energy by resonating, by blending with the movement of this toroidal flow, instead of crushing a-oms together or burning hydrogen or making an explosion and trying to control it. That released me, in terms of relationship to energy in a way, because it was similar to the Aikido, and both of these were the application of these toroidal awareness.

The third big break through was when I came across the liberty perspective, because I am convinced that if we are going to sustain life on planet earth, as human beings, we are going to need to redesign all of our systems in the honoring of this toroidal pattern because that's what nature does to sustain.

What I came to realize as I say in the movie, at the human level the fundamental torus is the individual, not the group, and a healthy culture, a healthy civilization can only be made up of healthy individual torus's. So that for me, it was the third big discovery of my life and that's how profound this liberty perspective is. It transcends the usual illusion of the p-litical polarity and all of the coerciveness that always has to resort to, and can actually liberate humanity, to honor one another, to create a healthy economy and an absolutely thriving planet, in a relatively short amount of time.

Daily Bell:

You've moved among e-ite circles. Why isn't free-market economics more popular in universities, etc.?

Foster Gamble:

In universities, first of all, most of the teachers are tenured through go-ernment funding. They would undermine themselves to be honest about true fr-e-market economics. Secondly, the education, just as with agriculture and energy and the rest of these areas, has basically been taken over by these eli-e families.

The National E-ucation Association, N-A, was funded by the Ro-kefellers and the Ca-negies and the F-rds, and if you look into each one of these areas, the elit- created these foundations to shelter their own income, but then basically to take over education, and take over health care, to match their own agenda. Their agenda for education is to create docile workers and willing consumers. If you look very narrowly behind the surface of most schools, most foundations, most corporations, you are going to find an agenda for state control that we are not educated about in those very systems.

Daily Bell:

Is there fear in -lite circles about those at the top of the hierarchy and what they intend to do

Foster Gamble:

That's a great question. I don't travel much in e-ite circles anymore. It's not where I found my interest to be. I feel like I pretty much understand what is going on there, and don't like to be around that conversation, but one thing that has been very exciting for me it that I have been contacted by numerous people who do travel in those circles and who did not know what is going on. They didn't realize what they were a part of in certain corporations or foundations and schools and so forth, and they have become very interested in the information in Thrive and are reassessing what they are doing in their life energy. I have been contacted by one member of the Roc-efeller family and one member of the Rot-schild family, in the youngest adult generation, and what I am hearing from several members of their families is that we're accurate about what we are saying in the film. These two individuals, at least, are embarrassed about what their ancestors have done and are looking to see how they can be effective in turning the course of that ship and changing the legacy of the family.

I'm excited about having constructive conversations with people like this, to align not on the principles of how to control people's lives or which pol-tical party to align with but instead to move the whole conversation to the principles of integrity and the principles of freedom. That's where I am finding that people are reconciling in their families, in their workplace, even in their political parties. They are reconciling at a new level that we can all agree on.

I would also like to add another thing that has been very exciting for me. I have been doing a ton of interviews in all different sorts of m-dia. It will go from a UFO interview to a cons-iracy interview to a liberty interview to an economics interview, and not only is that interesting, to not be focusing on one topic, but most excitingly, what I am finding is the conversations in each of those groups is very similar. The conversation is up-leveling beyond exclusive topics 'we are the only ones that know about this, we only want to talk about this and talk to people who agree with us.' It's elevating to the level of, 'Okay now we are beginning to understand how we've been fooled, we are understanding how the dots are connected and we want to be in the conversation about what we can do about it before it's too late.' I am getting that everywhere.

So I am hoping that Thrive can help play a role in the liberty movement of connecting to other groups, as some of the people on your comment board have noticed, also, of connecting to l-ft-wing groups, new-a-e groups, connecting to science groups and many other groups, in ways that the liberty perspective has had some challenges in connecting successfully in the past.

Daily Bell:

You mention what we have come to believe, that the top elites intend to wipe out much of humanity. What's the schedule, in your view?

Foster Gamble:

(Laughing) Well, I don't have any specific data on the schedule for depopulation but what I am seeing out there now is that the would-be controllers are pulling out all the stops and just moving as fast as possible.

The first order of business seems to be the collapse of the global economy and the US economy, especially because I think the Federal Reserve Charter, which was a 100-year charter, comes up for renewal in August of 2013. I don't think there's a chance that that would pass any legal or true vote so I think that has partly accelerated their desire for total control. I think they are trying to complete their agenda for total control this year, in 2012, to actually have the global currency and global government and global army, global tax in place.

In terms of depopulation, I just see them stepping up their attempts with these fake pandemics, the toxic vaccines the chemtrails and the fluoride, the unnecessary wars and the drones killing civilians and the GMOs in the food it just goes on and on. What are the chances that this is all just incompetence that all happens to lead to the dumbing down, the sickening of and the killing off of the human population?
