Subject: Are You An Old Soul? Part 4.

June 11, 2012.

This talks about kinesiology. It also talks about the new people who are being born on this Earth called the Indigo. They being born with the knowledge of their previous lives on other planets. I look for good things to come from them.

However, what this means is that you can stay here longer, no matter what you've been told. Longer life is in your grasp - a lot longer. I'm talking to somebody who needed to hear that. We've given instructions on creating pure intent. We've told you that if you start a process of belief, where you literally go inside and become one with that which is your innate [innate is the quantum intelligence of biology], then you are starting a process where you are beginning to move into a more multidimensional Human, the true reality of all the matter in the Universe. Being 3D is not a normal reality.

It's the reality of a closed system of thinking and begets only what it knows instead of moving into what it can imagine.

Innate intelligence? Why would you use kinesiology unless you wanted to know something you don't know? Innate is the energy that you contact when you do muscle testing. Innate is the key. The dark and light balance of the planet is starting to move into a lighter balance, and then it becomes easier for you to contact your own cellular structure and start a process that will operate by itself, as long as you continue to desire light in your life.

Stop Assigning Power to an Outside Force

It's time for you to stop giving credit to the almighty outside and give credit to the almighty inside, as the m-sters did. What if the true divinity and power on the planet is hidden in Human Beings instead of a-gels in the sky or big buildings with impressive facades? Humans love to give away their power to others, both Human and not, since most Humans don't trust themselves. But what if balanced health could be yours and you could stop the aging process? Dear ones, you should live 200 years, at least! You rejuvenate! This is your design, but this design is not operating at full efficiency due to the dark/light balance that has been on the planet for eons. Now it is changing.

You're going to start seeing something in the next generation and the one after that: extended life without science. It's going to start happening automatically, and it will be a puzzle for the biologists. Why would Humans start living so much longer? They will say, "Maybe it's nutrition. Maybe it's this and maybe it's that. Maybe it's the lack of disease because we're curing them." They'll have all number of reasons and none of them will be accurate, because they don't know the energy of what you've done and how it's affecting the DNA. Counter-intuitive to all the pollution you are pumping into the environment, Humans will start to have extended lifetimes.

Go-ernments

Let me talk about governments, because you're going to see some change. First, look at history: For years, even in your lifetime and those of your grandparents, the leadership of countries has decided to conquer one another simply because they could! There was an unspoken barbaric attitude that, "If we are more powerful, then we deserve to conquer the weak and take their land." This is history and wasn't all that long ago.

Let me remind you, 30,000 years of your past history is filled with this. It's literally the history of humanity. Whoever had the most power invaded the one who did not, did you notice? The strong one didn't have to have a reason, either. If a country had no army, then they eventually had no country! Today, that is no longer in your consciousness, or that of most current governments. But sometimes it still happens, and when you see it, even on a small scale, it disgusts you, does it not? That entire attitude doesn't seem to be accurate anymore, and it's shocking when you see it. There's now more respect for sovereignty and the idea of conquering is something from the past.

Governments change. Attitudes change. So you might say, "Well, we licked that one. We've gone someplace." And you'd be right, for the planet really has changed in that regard. So, what about the next one? What is next for government that is vastly different from the "norm" that you grew up in? You're going to start seeing a change in the way government conducts itself. Believe it or not, you're going to start seeing that which has more integrity! There will be those who demand it and those who will shrink from it and there is where the battles will be. You may even see in your lifetime the end to name-calling during elections! Now, wouldn't that be something, where one candidate stands up and says, "I don't agree with my opponent, but he's a patriot and I can see that he loves his country as I do. I don't agree with him, and here is why and what I stand for"? This is more than taking the high road. It's a new paradigm of thinking.

Right now, you are more prone to say, "My opponent is a bad guy. Look at what he's done and look at the mistakes he's made and look at his personal ways of dishonesty and mischief." That's an old paradigm, dear ones. I want you to watch for this change. The first one who does it on a main political stage will create a breath of fresh air in your politics, and the system will never be the same. A new paradigm will be seen as "viable" by those who study these things. When you start seeing it in that arena, you'll know it's real. You're headed for an election year [this campaigning was in February 2012]. Don't expect much change in the ways things work, because the old energy is strong. It may take four more years for you to see a difference, perhaps even four more after that. But along will come someone who sets a standard that will be so different that everyone will know it's something that really works.

When the Indigos run for office, there will be a shift in the way they run and in the integrity that they have. They are conceptual and they can see the reaction of consciousness on those they talk to, and the older ones right now can't. So we tell you that the dark and light balance is then going to change what? It eventually will change who you elect! And it's about time. Don't look for it immediately, but it's going to be there. Watch for more conceptual common sense campaigning, leaving the old style behind that you have had for 200 years.

Financial

This is a summary on this subject: You have attacked your own financial systems in the last five years to try and make them fair and to clean out as much of the greed as possible. Historians alive today will tell you that this would have been seen as an impossible situation, since big money was seen as untouchable. Yet you have disturbed the nest and started planting the seeds of a better system. This recession you're in is a recalibration of big money. You called them on it, and we told you it was coming almost a year before it happened. We even told you what would fall first [insurance] and that it would be one of the largest insurance companies on the planet [and it was].

So think about this for a moment. We could see it coming because energy is like that. It creates slow, strong potentials that can be predicted. It's not over either, since the old system has to recreate itself. Your bankers are confused, if you've noticed. It doesn't matter what the government says they are allowed to do, or how much money they are being given to do it.

They're not doing it! They are frozen in the headlights of a new paradigm and don't know how to operate. That should tell you how new and uncertain this change is - like nothing you have seen.

Now that, my dear Human Being, is a shift of dark and light. Do you see this? Integrity won out over abundance and power, and the system gets altered. It may get altered again, but there'll come a day when the ones who have the money to loan must create win-win situations, instead of greed-based systems. You haven't even seen these systems yet, but you will. You won't believe some of the ideas that the Indigos will think of for ban-ing where everybody wins, and there won't be those left behind, scratching their heads and asking, "What happened to my house?" New systems are coming, and they won't be ones that are in your economic textbooks.
